The PREFACE & DEDICATION

THE thanks of the public, and especially the Catholic portion of it, throughout the Empire, are due to the Originators and painstaking Compilers of The Catholic Who's Who. During the past eight years, per varios casus et tot discrimina rerum, they have ungrudgingly devoted themselves to the production, in its present completeness, of this most useful, instructive and exceptionally interesting book. No one is more alive to the fact that, in spite of their utmost care and attention to detail, there must inevitably occur deficiencies, which they will yet make good, and even some errors, which further information will enable them to rectify. But, as it seems to me, the detection of faults of omission and commission will be no easy task, even for those best qualified to criticize.

The book is unique. To whom should this historical record be dedicated? I think there can be but one answer to the question. The only possible dedication of this "Roll Call" of Catholics throughout the British Empire, with here and there a welcome guest chosen from among their best friends in other lands, must be to our gracious Sovereign, Rex et Imperator, King Edward VII, in plain, straightforward token of the firmly-founded devotion of all British Catholics to His Majesty's person and throne. Loyalty is the true note of Catholic life. That His Majesty, in his generous sympathy and kindness of heart, will deign to accept this humble offering as a genuine expression of the heartfelt loyalty of Catholics throughout his Empire we feel well assured. Ad multos annos! Vivat Rex et Imperator! God save the King.

Books for the Girl

Rosette: A Tale of Paris and Dublin. By Mrs William

O'Brien. Cloth 3s. 6d. net (postage 4d.)

"This new' Tale of Two Cities' is a charming story of a young French girl who, after passing through many trials in her native land, finds a happy home in Ireland. The writer, who is, like her heroine, equally at home in both countries, is best known by her French version of her husband's historical novel. Apart from its merits as a tale, the book is admirably adapted to inspire its young readers with an interest in literature."—Tablet.

The Story of Ellen. By Rosa Mulholland (Lady Gilbert).

Illustrated. Cloth, 5s.

"An Irish tale of modern times, wherein the chief interest is centred in problems of love and religious faith. The plot is well worked out, and the reader's interest is held to the end of the story."—Tablet.

THE CATHOLIC ENCYCLOPÆDIA

15 Volumes. 1,000 Contributors. 2,000 Illustrations 32 Departments. 30,000 Articles. 75 Maps

THE Catholic Encyclopædia will represent every Catholic interest, and preserve in encyclopædic form the enormous mass of Catholic literature of nineteen hundred years. This great work, so long awaited, and now published with ecclesiastical approval, will view comprehensively the entire influence of the Catholic Church in all matters, temporal and spiritual. Every article will be secured at first hand from the best living authority, and each article will be signed by the writer contributing it, with a full list of the sources of his information. The theological scholarship of the world has been exploited in order to make this monumental work, which will rank with all the great encyclopædias of the world as a standard work of reference, worthy of the high ideal which the learned Editors set before themselves at its inception. Amongst the one thousand contributors are to be found the names of Doctors Casartelli, Gasquet, O.S.B., and Barry; Fathers Thurston, Cortie, Sydney Smith, of the Society of Jesus; the Most Rev. Dr Healy, Professors McRory and Bewerunge, the Rev. Sir David Hunter-Blair, O.S.B. Wilfrid Ward, Esq., B.A., Orby Shipley, Esq., M.A., etc., etc. Other distinguished contributors are: M. Charles Woeste, the Catholic leader in the Belgian Parliament; Father Van der Gheyn, the Orientalist and Keeper of Manuscripts in the Royal Library in Brussels; several Louvain Professors; the Abbé Felix Klein, Laureate of the French Academy; Father Charles de Smedt, the learned chief of the Bollandists; Professor von Hertling, a member of the German Centre Party; Dr Ludwig Pastor, the famous German Historian and director of the Austrian Institute for historical research in Rome; Father Brandi, S.J., Editor of the Civilta, and a long list of professors at various colleges in Rome.

THE CATHOLIC WHO'S WHO

à Beckett, ARTHUR, novelist, playwright, and one of the distinguished company of Catholic journalists at work on the general Press-born 1844, a son of Gilbert à Beckett; entered War Office 1862; afterwards called to the Bar : brightly edited The Glow-worm ; correspondent for The Standard and The Globe during the Franco-German War. After his reception into the Church he became private Secretary to the Duke of Norfolk; later he joined the staff of Punch, a journal with which both his father and his brother had been famously associated. He edited The Sunday Times 1891-5; and The Naval and Military Magazine 1896; served as President of the Institute of Journalists 1900, and on the Managing Committee of the Society of Authors. He married (1876) Susannah, daughter of Forbes B. Winslow, M.D., herself a woman of letters. The twenty or more works which Mr à Beckett has written include The Member for Wrottenborough-Green Room Recollections-The Modern Adam-London at the End of the Century—The à Becketts of Punch—Recollections of a Humourist, and several plays.

Aberdeen. BISHOP OF, Right Rev. ÆNEAS CHISHOLM, LL.D. (Aberdeen), D.D.-born at Inverness, 26 June, 1836, son of Colin Chisholm, solicitor; studied at Blairs College, Aberdeen, and at the Gregorian University, Rome ordained priest of the Diocese of Aberdeen 1860, and served missions at Glenlivet, Beauly, Aberdeen, Glengairn, and Banff; Rector of Blairs College 1890; Domestic Prelate to Leo XIII 1898; consecrated Bishop of Aberdeen 1899. The See of Aberdeen was founded at Mortlach in 1063; transferred to Aberdeen in 1125, under its fourth Bishop, Nectan; and was vacant from 1577 till the restoration of the Scottish Hierarchy in 1878. The good feeling existing between the inhabitants, and the Bishop of Aberdeen found free and delightful expression on the day of his consecration: "In his frequent intercourse with Protestants," he said, "he had met with many and strange heresies; but he might truly say that he had never met a real heretic." It was during the Bishop's rectorship of Blairs that the fine new buildings were erected, making the College, for its size, perhaps the most comfortable and the best equipped in the country.

I

Abingdon, Earl of (Montague Arthur Bertie)—born 1836; educated at Eton, and succeeded his father as seventh earl in 1884; received into the Church 1858; married in the same year Caroline Theresa, eldest daughter (and in her issue co-heiress with her sisters the late Lady Alexander Gordon-Lennox and Lady O'Hagan) of Charles Towneley, of Towneley. She died in 1873, and Lord Abingdon married secondly, ten years later, Gwendoline, daughter of the late Gen. the Hon. Sir J. C. Dormer, K.C.B. His youngest sister, Lady Frances Evelyn Bertie, also received into the Church, entered religion in 1882 at the Convent of Mercy, Westbury-on-Trym. He is a patron of five Anglican livings.

Abinger, Lady, wife of the fifth Baron and daughter of the Right Hon. Sir William White, formerly our Ambassador at Constantinople. The late Lord Abinger left properties to future bearers of the title conditionally on their not being Catholics—an inquisitorial "dead hand" which legislation ought long ago to have rendered inoperative as putting a premium upon hypocrisy. The Shelley property at Boscombe came to Lord Abinger through the marriage of his father with the adopted daughter of Sir Percy Shelley, son of the poet. Lady Abinger's father, Sir William White, hurried on the Oxford Movement, for he lent Rosmini's Maxims of Perfection to William Lockhart, the Oxford undergraduate whose secession led to Newman's resignation of St Mary's.

Abraham, Philip Boyle, LL.B. Cantab., Barrister-at-Law—Hon. Administrator of one of the most excellent of London's institutions, St Pelagia's Homes for Destitute Girls, managed by the Sisters Servants of the Sacred Heart of Jesus; elected Bencher of the Middle Temple 1907.

Achonry, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. JOHN LYSTER, D.D.)—born at Athlone 1850—eldest son of Patrick Lyster, architect; educated at Summer Hill College, Athlone, at the Dublin Catholic University, and at Maynooth, where he was ordained; was Professor at the Athlone Establishment, and afterwards President of Sligo College; consecrated Bishop of Achonry, a See in the Province of Tuam, 1888, and is an Assistant at the Papal Throne.

Acton, Lord (Richard Maximilian Dalberg-Acton, Bart.)—born in Germany 1870, son of the eighth Baronet and first Baron and Countess Marie Arco-Valley; succeeded his illustrious father, "a great scholar, a great Catholic, a great Englishman," in 1902; educated at Magdalen College, Oxford; entered Foreign Office 1894; was appointed in 1896 Third Secretary Diplomatic Service at Berlin; promoted Second Secretary in 1900, and received at Berlin the Insignia of the Third Class of the Royal Victorian Order, 1901, from Edward VII, to whom he was a Lord-in-Waiting 1905 to 1907—a post his father held in the Court of Queen Victoria. Lord Acton married (1904) DOROTHY, daughter of T. H. LYON, of Appleton Hall, Cheshire.

Acton, WILLIAM ROBERT, J.P. for Worcestershire—born 1835, eldest son of W. J. Acton, J.P., of Wolverton Hall; married (1861) SARAH, daughter of R. DAND, of Gloster Hill, Northumberland.

Acton, Thomas Vincent—born 1836, second son of William Joseph Acton, of Wolverton Hall, Worcestershire; educated at Oscott; married (1876) Margaret, daughter of Sir Arnold Knight, M.D., of Six Hills, Lincolnshire, and sister of Dr Knight, sometime Bishop of Shrewsbury.

Adelaide, Archbishop of (Most Rev. John O'Reilly)—consecrated Bishop 1888; translated as Archbishop 1895.

Aelen, Rt. Rev. John, D.D., Coadjutor-Bishop of Madras—consecrated as Coadjutor to Archbishop Colgan 1903, under the title of Bishop of Themismium. As an Army Chaplain during the Afghan War of 1879-80 he won several military decorations, and his labours at Madras and Roosendaal have been publicly recognized. He established a Missionary College at Roosendaal.

Agius, Most Rev. Melbourne Evans; succeeded his cousin as 14th Baron 1907, and is co-heir to the Baronies of Fitz-Payne, Kerdeston and Dynham. Lord Arundell's family, which provides an effective example of religious "continuity" since medieval times, produced famous soldiers. Sir Thomas Arundell of Wardour (the "Valiant") was created a Count of the Holy Roman Empire by Rudolph II, Emperor of Germany, in 1595, for taking a Turkish standard at the Battle of Iram while serving in the Imperial Army in Hungary. On his return to England he was created 1st Baron. One of the most stirring episodes of the Civil War was the defence of Wardour Castle by Blanche, Lady Arundell, in the absence of her husband, mortally wounded in the Royal Cause. His son, the 3rd Baron, who dislodged the enemy and blew up the Castle, suffered five years' unjust captivity in the Tower, the victim of the perjury of Titus Oates; but he was released in 1683 and was Keeper of the Privy Seal to James II.

THOMAS A., O.S.B.—born at Coventry 1861; educated and professed at the English College, Douai; ordained 1887; Procurator 1888-93; on missions at Blyth and Frizzington 1894-1904; elected Abbot 1904, in which year the schools of Douai and St Mary's, Woolhampton, were amalgamated at Upper Woolhampton.

Bampton, FATHER JOSEPH, S.J.—born at Exeter 1854: educated at Stonyhurst; Rector of Farm Street Church 1894-98; Rector of Beaumont College from 1901; elected a member of the Head Masters' Conference, 1906. Has published occasional sermons.

Bancroft, Lady—Marie, daughter of Robert Pleydell Wilton; can look back on nearly fifty years of successes on the London stage; married (1867) Mr Squire Bancroft (knighted in 1897), whom she assisted in the management of the old Prince of Wales's and Haymarket Theatres; joint author of Mr and Mrs Bancroft on and off the Stage. Many have been the tributes to the work of the Bancrofts for the stage, one of the most recent having been paid them by Mr John Hare, who said: "The Bancrofts banished the old Adelphi style from the Boards for ever, and they gave us rooms that really looked like rooms, with strong wooden doors and ceiling all complete. Before their time we had blue skycloths in drawing-room scenes, flats that did not join, and lath and canvas doors that shivered with every gust."

Banks, Canon Evan, B.A.—President of St Edward's College, Everton, Liverpool, since 1895.

Bannin, Father Joseph P., P.S.M.—is the influential London head of a Society that has charge of Italian emigrants in all parts of the world. He spent some years in the great Italian colony in New York as a preparation for his work in London, where he has helped to make the Italian Church, of which he is Rector, one of the great spiritual centres of the metropolis. The Chairman of that popular organization, the Catholic Association, he has organized in that capacity several Roman pilgrimages, including the "Jubilee of Solemn Homage" pilgrimage of 1901. As Manager of the Hatton Garden Schools his name has stood for efficiency in matters educational, and he has zealously promoted the work of evening classes. He received the Cross Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice from Leo XIII in 1901.

Bannon, Christopher James, J.P. and D.L.—born 1863, eldest son of Edward Joseph Bannon, of Broughall Castle, Tullamore; was High Sheriff of King's County for 1904.

Bans, Rev. Emmanuel—appointed by Cardinal Vaughan President of the Crusade of Rescue, 1902; administrates homes for Catholic children maintaining over 800 orphans and destitute boys and girls, including the St Vincent's Home in the Harrow Road, founded by the Rev. Lord Archibald Douglas, and carried on by the particularly loved Father Douglas Hope (a convert from Christ Church, Oxford), and by Father Barry.

Barnes, MGR ARTHUR STAPYLTON, M.A.—born 1861, son of G. C. Barnes, C.B., and Margaret, daughter of Major Henry Chetwynd-Stapylton; educated at Eton and Woolwich, holding a commission in the Artillery 1877-79. He subsequently studied at University College, Oxford, for the Anglican Ministry, and was successively Curate of St Agnes's, Kennington, London; Vicar of St Ives, Huntingdonshire; and Warden of the Ilford Hospice. During his residence in Rome, after his reception into the Church by Cardinal Merry del Val in 1895, he made himself an authority on the burying-place of St Peter, winning the good word of Professor Lanciani. He was ordained in Rome 1898, nominated Private Chamberlain to Pius X 1904, and succeeded Mgr Scott as Chaplain to the Cambridge Undergraduates. Editor of The Popes and the Ordinal (1897), a collection of documents bearing on Anglican Orders; and author of St Peter in Rome (1900).

Barnewall, Sir Reginald Aylmer, Bart.—born 1838, only son of Sir Aylmer Barnewall, and Esmey, daughter of Christopher Barnewall, of Meadstown, Co. Meath; succeeded his father when less than a year old as tenth Baronet (Ireland, created 1622), and therefore probably the longest living holder of that title; educated at the Catholic University, Dublin, and well known in London as being a popular member of society.

Barraud, Father C. W., S.J.—educated at Lancing; convert; entered Society of Jesus; Parish Priest of Barbados, West Indies; has published volumes of poetry and plays.

Barraud, Francis, artist—born 1856, son of Henry Barraud, of Gloucester Place, London; educated at Ushaw and St Edmund's, Ware; art studies at Royal Academy schools. Chief pictures: "An Encore too Many" (purchased by the Liverpool Corporation), "A la Santé de Madame la Marquise," and "His Masters."

Barrett, Captain Frederick Whitfield, 15th Hussars—born 1875, youngest son of W. J. Barrett, of Silver Spring House, Cork; joined 15th Hussars 1896; Captain 1905; married (1904) Hon. Isobel Edwardes, daughter of 4th Lord Kensington.

Barrett, Lady Maud—second daughter of 9th Earl of Cavan; married (1892) Henry Barrett, who died 1901; convert.

Barrett, Dom Michael, O.S.B.—Contributor to Art and other magazines; member of Fort Augustus Abbey.

Barret, T. A. ("Leslie Stuart")—at the age of fifteen was organist at St John's Cathedral, Salford; organist of the Church of the Holy Name, Manchester, for seven years; coming to London he won fame in two continents as the composer of Florodora and The Silver Slipper, and, among songs, of Louisiana Loo and Soldiers of the Queen.

Barron, Canon Eustace—born 1847, youngest son of Pierse Marcus Barron, J.P., D.L., of Barroncourt, Co. Waterford; called to the Irish Bar 1871; clerical studies at Prior Park; ordained 1876; Rector of St Peter's, Gloucester, 1878-94; member of Clifton Chapter 1889; Administrator of Pro-Cathedral, Clifton, 1894-98, in which year he went to Weston-super-Mare, being appointed Diocesan Inspector; Member of the Catholic Education Council, and was Chairman of the Diocesan Schools Association until its dissolution. The Canon's favourite hobby is oil-painting, and he is an annual exhibitor at the Bristol Academy.

Barron, Pierse Eustace L.—born 1826, eldest son of Pierse M. Barron, J.P., D.L. of Barroncourt and Belmont Park, Co. Waterford; educated at Downside and London University; called to Irish Bar 1851; formerly Lieut. Waterford Militia; married (1864) ELLEN, daughter of Edward Abney, of Measham Hall, Derbyshire.

Barrow, Sir Francis, Bart.—born 1862, and in 1900 succeeded his father, Sir John Croker Barrow, 3rd baronet, man-of-letters, and a convert in 1859 from the ranks of the Anglican clergy; married (1890) WINIFRED, daughter of W. Steward.

Barry, Edward, M.P. for Co. Cork, S., since 1892—born in Co. Cork 1852, son of Garratt Barry, of Roscarberry; married (1882) Marianne, daughter of Timothy Sullivan.

Barry, Henry Robert Bruno Standish, J.P.—born 1873, son of Charles Standish Barry, J.P., of Lemlara, Carigtuo-hill, Cork, who married the Hon. Margaret Southwell, sister of 4th Viscount Southwell; educated at Downside; married (1899) Eleanor, daughter of Major-Gen. C. B. Lucie-Smith.

Barry, James Grene, Assistant Land Commissioner for Ireland, D.L. and Magistrate for Co. Limerick—born 1841, eldest son of James Barry, of Sandville Grange, Co. Limerick, and Maria, daughter of John Grene, of Cappamurra House, Co. Tipperary; educated at St Mary's College, Oscott; married (1881) Mary, daughter of Thomas Kane, M.D., of White Hall, Co. Clare.

Barry, Canon John—Rector of Our Lady's, Birkenhead, from 1895; Rector of St Mary's, Crewe, 1885-95; installed Canon of Liverpool 1896.

Barry, Sir John Edmund—born 1828, son of John Barry, a Dublin merchant; educated in Dublin and Wexford; has been three times President of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, and was member of the Dublin Port and Docks Board for thirty-four years; knighted 1889; is a member of the Superintendence Board of the Dublin Hospitals, and a Director of the National Bank; he married (1849) Miss Teresa Keefe.

Barry, His Honour Judge Ralph Brereton, K.C.—born 1856, eldest son of James Barry, a Limerick solicitor; educated at Baylis House, Slough, at Clongowes, and at Trinity College, Dublin, where he was Senior Moderator and medallist 1878, while the year following he was Senior Scholar in Common and Criminal Law at the Middle Temple; called to the Irish Bar and joined Munster circuit 1880; became Professor of Law at Queen's College, Cork, subsequently holding law professorships in Dublin, and the post of Examiner at the Royal University of Ireland. He is County Court Judge for Kildare, Carlow, Wicklow and Wexford, and married (1880) CLARE, daughter of William Roche, Crown Solicitor for Limerick.

Barry, Redmond John, K.C., M.P., Solicitor-General for Ireland since 1905—born 1866, third son of Patrick Barry, of Hill View, Cork; educated in the city of Cork; called to the Irish Bar 1888; took silk 1899; returned as a Home Ruler for North Tyro ne 1907; married 1895) at St Marie's Southport, Ethel Mary, third daughter of Edward Pyke, of Merton Bank, Southport, and niece of Mgr Carr, V.G. His namesake and kinsman and fellow Catholic, the late Sir Redmond Barry, K.C.M.G., was the first Solicitor-General of Victoria, and became Chancellor of the University of Melbourne.

Barry, Rev. William, scholar, theologian, and man-ofletters-born in London 1849, by descent a Norman-Celt of the South-West of Ireland. From Oscott he passed to the English College, Rome, where he had Cardinals Franzelin and Tarquini for masters of Divinity, and was examined for his degree by Father Perrone. He was ordained in Rome, where he remembers the sittings of the Vatican Council and the entry of the Italian troops by the Porta Pia. A Vice-Presidency of the Birmingham Seminary was followed by his appointment to the Chair of Divinity at Oscott; later he was engaged in mission work at Wolverhampton, and his subsequent charge at Dorchester has given him such leisure for literary labours as free him from giving up to a parish talents that were meant for mankind. Dr Barry has studied Hebrew and Persian literature, and is master of Greek, Latin, French, German, Italian and Spanish; he has lectured in America and at the Royal Institution, and was the deliverer of the Centenary address on Edmund Burke, both in Dublin and London, in 1897. His first novel, The New Antigone, was published anonymously in 1887, and its success has since been repeated by The Place of Dreams-The Two Standards, and Arden Massiter; he has contributed a History of the Papal Monarchy to Mr Fisher Unwin's "Stories of the Nations" series, and has written studies of Newman and Renan for the "Literary Lives" series. In Heralds of Revolt he has collected some of his essays; while his Tradition of Scripture and other works have been translated into various languages. To be various yet expert in all that he undertakes is Dr Barry's achievement-a rare one in the history of literature; this faculty, and the light robe in which he is able to cloak profound learning, constitute him the most brilliant Quarterly reviewer and Dublin reviewer of his generation.

Bartle, ANITA (Mrs Brackenbury), anthologist—daughter of an English engineer at Valencia; educated in Spain; contributed to The Daily Chronicle the popular "This is My Birthday" series, which became (in Mr Zangwill's phrase) the "talk of literary London," and was afterwards gathered into a goodly volume; received into the Church by Dr Brown, of Clifton, 1906, in which year she married Gabriel Brackenbury. She it was who made (in 1906) that charming collection of Marian poems published as The Madonna of the Poets.

Bartlett, J. HARRY, Managing Director of the Art and Book Company, Ltd, Westminster, and an authority on metal work and other branches of Church decoration—born at Worcester 1860; nephew of late Father Henry Bartlett, O.P.; educated at St Edward's School, Oxford; received into the Church 1877; married (1892) ELEANOR MACKEY, niece of the late Canon Mackey, O.S.B.

Basevi, FATHER CHARLES LIONEL, of the Oratory—kinsman of the late Lord Beaconsfield (whose mother was a Basevi), and of the architect of the name who met his tragic fate by a fall from scaffolding in Ely Cathedral. Lord Beaconsfield, who made many of his heroes and heroines and minor characters (Contarini Fleming-a convert, May Dacre, Sybil, Miss St Jerome, Cardinal Grandison, and the rest) adherents of the ancient Faith, had many ties with Catholics in life. In one of his earlier letters he recorded with evident pleasure, the meeting of his wife with a group of Tichbornes and their relatives: many close friends of his became Catholics, and his study of Cardinal Manning in Endymion (unlike that in Lothair) is wholly sympathetic. When the late Lord Albemarle (then Viscount Bury and Under Secretary for War) went to Lord Beaconsfield in fear and trembling to announce his conversion, as a possible embarrassment to the Government, of which he was a member, the Chief exclaimed, "How lucky, a relative of mine has just become a Catholic; I must write, and you can tell me what it is most appropriate to say."

Bathurst (N.S. Wales), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. JOHN DUNNE)—consecrated 1901.

Batten, Leonard Lauriston, K.C.—born 1863, son of R. W. Batten; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge (B.A. and LL.B.); called to the Bar at the Inner Temple 1885; and took silk 1905; married Helen, daughter of George Monck Gibbs, of Abington Manor, Gloucestershire.

Baxter, Dudley, B.A. Oxon—born 1871, son of the late Dudley Baxter, of Mancetter, Bognor, and the representative of the family of Richard Baxter, the famous Nonconformist Divine; entered into such Saints' Rest as the earth affords by being received into the Church (1896); energetic worker in the diffusion of Catholic periodical and other literature, to which he himself is a contributor; founder of the Catholic Reading Guild, of St George's Confraternity for Catholic Soldiers, and of the League of Reparation; author of England's Cardinals—The Holy Rood—Cardinal Pole—Kalendar of the English Martyrs—The Story of an Oxford College—The Most Christian Throne of France—Syon Abbey—Our Lady of Walsingham, besides slighter publications.

Bearne, Father David, S.J., Editor of The Messenger of the Sacred Heart, and Stella Maris—born at Castle Donington 1856. He entered the Society 1887 and was ordained 1896. A convert himself (in 1877) he has reconciled many non-Catholics, including the late Mr Aubrey Beardsley, to the Church. He published his first book of Ridingdale Stories in 1902, and followed it by a series of successful volumes, including The Golden Stair: a Chronicle of Havenhurst—The Ridingdale Boys—Stories from the Bright Ages—Paying the Price and Lance and his Friends. He is known also as a writer of verse of exceptional quality, and he has archæology and natural history for hobbies.

Beauclerk, Father Charles Sidney, S.J.—of ancestry which connects him with the ducal house of St Albans on one side, and an ancient Spanish family on the other; educated in the Society of Jesus. Having secured, for a number of years, from the Holywell Urban District Council, the lease of St Winefride's Well, he successfully contested the proposed "secularization" of the Well by the Council in 1898. Father Beauclerk built the new St Winefride's Hall, enlarged St Winefride's Church, built new schools, and otherwise prospered the work of the mission; and he has revived the old fame of the town of Holywell as a place of pilgrimage. He was succeeded at Holywell by Father Borscht in 1899.

Beaumont, Baroness (Mona Josephine Tempest Stapleton)—born at Broughton Hall, Skipton, 1894, elder daughter of the 10th Lord Beaumont; declared Baroness Beaumont by letters-patent when she was two years old, ranking as 11th in line, with precedency of 1433, the original creation being of 1309. Carlton Towers, Selby, the family seat, is noted for a fine library of 4,000 volumes.

Beaumont, ETHEL, LADY—widow of the 10th Baron, and daughter of Sir Charles TEMPEST first (and last) Bart., of Heaton and Broughton Hall; married (1893) and was widowed in 1895, when her husband lost his life by a gun accident.

Beaumont, VIOLET, LADY—widow of 9th Baron, and only daughter of F.W. ISAACSON, sometime M.P.; she married, in 1888, the 9th Lord Beaumont, who died 1892.

Beaumont, ISABELLA, LADY—widow of 8th Lord Beaumont, and eldest daughter of 3rd Lord Kilmaine; mother of the 9th and 10th Lords Beaumont, and grandmother of the present Baroness; received into the Church 1872.

Beaumont, Major Godfrey Lancaster, late R.M.L.I.—born 1864; educated under Lord Petre at Woburn; entered Royal Marine Light Infantry 1883; Captain 1895; in Benin expedition of 1897 (despatches and brevet Majority); appointed Adjutant 2nd Royal Malta Regiment, 1897; retired 1902.

Beazley, Percy L.—born 1859, son of James Beazley, of Aghadoe, Killarney; educated at Killarney and in Paris; editor of The Catholic Times from 1884; married (1880) Nannie, daughter of P. J. Hickie, of Newcastle-West.

Beckley, REV. FRANCIS COTTER—born at Islington; educated at St Edmund's, Ware, and Valladolid; ordained 1867; Rector of St Patrick's, Wapping; formerly Member of the old London School Board; now on the Industrial School and other sub-Committees; member of a Committee of the Westminster Association of Voluntary Schools appointed to estimate the requirements of the local authorities 1907.

Bective, Earl of (Terence Geoffrey Thomas Taylour)—born 1902, eldest son and heir of 4th Marquis of Headfort, by his marriage with Miss Rosie Boot, of the Gaiety Theatre. This romantic wedding, among other happy results, has brought into the Church the heir to a peerage long associated with Irish, and therefore rather aggressive Protestantism. "Oh, that we could make them love the Church!" was the rather touching entry in a diary kept by somebody who had seen Lord and Lady John Russell at the time of that statesman's anti-Popery legislation. It has been given to Lady Headfort to achieve in her husband's family the high ambition which, in theirs, so many learned and reverend signors have failed to fulfil.

Bedingfeld, LADY—AUGUSTA LUCY, daughter and heiress of Edward CLAVERING, of Callaly Castle, Northumberland; married (1859) Sir Henry Paston Bedingfeld, 7th Baronet.

Bedingfeld, SIR HENRY PASTON, Bart., late Major in 3rd King's Liverpool Regiment—born 1860, son of 7th Baronet by his wife, Augusta, daughter of E. Clavering; educated at Downside: J.P. for Norfolk: succeeded his father in 1902 (Engl., created 1660); is co-heir to Barony of Grandison, and patron of one living; married (1904) Sybil, eldest daughter of Henry Claremont Lyne Stephens, of Grove House, Roehampton. Oxburgh, the family seat of the Bedingfelds, and one of the "show-places" of Norfolk, is a red-brick mansion between two towers, enclosing a great courtyard, and possessing a wide moat. It was built by Sir Edmund Bedingfeld, Knight, in 1482, and among its treasures are Henry VII's bed, with tapestried curtains, which were the work of Queen Mary Stuart, done perhaps at Fotheringay. A Sir Henry Bedingfeld was Governor of the Tower to Queen Mary Tudor, and custodian of her sister Elizabeth, who, however, visited her former gaoler at Oxburgh when Queen of England. In consequence of representations by the late Baronet, Tennyson made some modifications in his play "Queen Mary," in reference to this ancestor of the family. During the Civil War another Sir Henry himself suffered confinement in the Tower, and lost $47,000 in the King's cause. His son claimed this sum in compensation from Charles II, who in lieu of a money payment created him a Baronet. The sixth Baronet took the additional name of Paston in 1830.

Bedingfeld, Major Raoul Stephen Bisshopp—born 1835, son of Sir H. Bedingfeld, 6th Baronet; late Major and Hon. Lieut.-Colonel Norfolk Artillery; married (1879) Katharine, daughter of Edward Walker, of Henbury Manor, Wimborne, and widow of Henry A. Claremont Lyne-Stephens. of Grove House, Roehampton.

Beesley, RIGHT REV. MGR JOHN, Provost of the Salford Chapter from 1897—educated at Ushaw; priest at St Anne's, Ashton, in the 'sixties; Rector of St Ann's, Stretford, from 1892; named Dom. Prel. to His Holiness 1897.

Belfield, Captain William, J.P. for Gloucestershire—born 1824, second son of T. D. Belfield, of Blagdon, Devon; served in 17th and 88th Regiments throughout Crimean War; married, first, a daughter of James G. P. Fitter, and secondly, Florence, widow of Major A. C. Warner, 20th Hussars. Received into the Church in 1907.

Bell, EDWARD INGRESS—the distinguished architect is a convert to the Church. Among ecclesiastical buildings he is responsible for the Church of the Sacred Heart, Caterham (1880), and the fine Gothic Church at Carshalton (1899), while his much-admired secular buildings—including the War Office—have won him a position in his profession to which few are able to aspire, and which fewer would be able to reach. His papers read before meetings of the Royal Institute of British Architects have been specially welcomed. With Sir Aston Webb, Mr Bell is the designer of the new University of Birmingham.

Bellasis, Father Richard G.—eldest son of Serjeant Bellasis, and the first boy to arrive at the Oratory School founded by Cardinal Newman; Priest of the Birmingham Oratory.

Bellasis, Edward, Lancaster Herald-born second son of Mr Serieant Bellasis, one of the eminent mid-Victorian converts among lawyers, and Eliza, daughter of William Garnett. He was educated at the Oratory School, which his father's friend, Newman, founded in 1859, and was called to the Bar 1873, in which year began his heraldic career as Bluemantle Pursuivant. He was Registrar of the College of Arms 1894-99, and became Lancaster Herald 1882, serving as Secretary to the Garter missions to Spain and Saxony in 1881 and 1882. As a literary executor of Cardinal Newman, Mr Bellasis has inherited from Father Neville a large number of duties and responsibilities, demanding in the discharge of them-what he well can supply-knowledge, tact, and an open-mindedness answering to the Cardinal's own. Mr Bellasis has himself written the invaluable Memorials of his father, and a standard work on Cherubini.

Bellew, LORD (CHARLES BERTRAM BELLEW, Bart.)—born 1855, son of 2nd Baron (created 1848, Ireland), whom he succeeded in 1895, and Augusta, daughter of Col. George Bryan, of Jenkinstown, Kilkenny; is an Irish Representative Peer and Lord Lieutenant of Co. Louth. In earlier days, 1885, he contested N. Division of Kilkenny Co, in the Conservative interest, and was Captain in 6th Batt. Royal Irish Rifles; he married, in 1883, MILDRED MARY JOSEPHINE, daughter of Sir Humphrey de Trafford.

Bellew, Hon. RICHARD EUSTACE—born 1858, fourth son of the 2nd Lord Bellew; married first (1887) Ada, daughter of H. Gilbey, J.P., of Stanstead, and secondly (1895) Gwendoline, daughter of W. R. J. F. Herbert, of Clytha.

Bellingham, SIR ALAN HENRY, Bart.—born 1846, son of 3rd Baronet, whom he succeeded in 1889; educated at Harrow and at Exeter College, Oxford (M.A.); received into the Church 1873; called to the Bar 1876; served as Captain in 5th Battalion Royal Irish Rifles; Commissioner of National Education for Ireland; elected M.P. for County Louth, 1880; Private Chamberlain to Pius IX, Leo XIII and Pius X; married, first (1874) Lady Constance Noel, daughter of the Earl of GAINSBOROUGH, by whom he had four children (one of them now Marchioness of Bute), and secondly (1895) the Hon. Lelgarde Clifton, daughter of Augustus Wykeham Clifton and Baroness Grey de Ruthyn. Sir Henry, whose interest in contemporary questions associated with religion has always been very keen, is the author of Social Aspects—Catholicism v. Protestantism and several articles in The Dublin Review.

Bellingham, Captain Edward Henry Charles Patrick—born 1879, eldest son of Sir Henry Bellingham, Bart, and his first wife, Lady Constance Noel; educated at the Oratory School; gazetted to the 1st Royal Scots 1899; served in the South African War 1899-1901, taking part in operations in the Orange River Colony.

Belloc. MADAME (née BESSIE RAYNER PARKES)-born 1820. her mother being the granddaughter of Dr Joseph Priestley, the discoverer of oxygen, and her father Joseph PARKES, the friend of Lord I. Russell, Brougham, Grote. and J. S. Mill, and himself a man of talent. As a girl she ate Rogers's breakfasts, and became acquainted with some of the foremost men and women in London, including D. G. Rossetti and his sister Christina, William and Mary Howitt, George Eliot, Adelaide Procter, and the Brownings. Miss Parkes first saw Italy in 1857 as the visitor of Mrs Jameson; she met Montalembert in Paris, and heard Dupanloup preach. On a visit to Ireland in 1861 she became interested in the work of the Irish Sisters of Charity and the Irish Sisters of Mercy, and three years later she was received into the Church. In 1867, during a stay in France, she married Louis Belloc, and has two children, Mr Hilaire Belloc, M.P., and Mrs Frederick Lowndes, She lived abroad till her widowhood in 1872. She is the author of A Passing World-In a Walled Garden-Historic Nuns. and The Flowing Tide, books that deserve a far greater reputation than they have yet managed to secure.

Belloc, HILAIRE, M.P.—born 1870, only son of Louis Swainton Belloc, French barrister, by his marriage with Bessie Rayner Parkes; from the Oratory School he passed to Balliol College, Oxford. As the French citizen he then was (he naturalized as an Englishman in 1902), he was called away from a scholastic career of exceptional brilliance to serve in the French Army. He subsequently began journalism in London, and was quickly known as one of the most brilliant accessions to London Letters, contributing particularly to The Speaker and The Daily News; more lately he has been a frequent contributor to The Tribune, and has done much to develop the literary possibilities of The Morning Post. In 1904 he was chosen as Liberal candidate for South Salford, and was returned at the General Election in 1906. He married, in 1896, Miss ELODIE AGNES HOGAN, a Californian. Mr Belloc's first success in the book world was his Bad Child's Book of Beasts, published in 1896, since when he has become known to the serious historian by his studies of Paris, and of Robespierre and Danton, and to the literary public generally by his Path to Rome, his Caliban's Guide to Letters, his Algerian studies, and other delightful works. In 1906 the joined the Catholic Education Council as a nominee of the Bishops.

Belloc-Lowndes, MRS—MARIE ADELAIDE, only daughter of Louis Belloc, who married Bessie Rayner Parkes, and sister of Hilaire Belloc, M.P. Since her school-days at Mayfield Convent, she has been a successful journalist and writer of books, and in 1896 she married a journalist, Frederick S. Lowndes, M.A., on the staff of The Times. Mrs Belloc-Lowndes is the author of The Life and Letters of Charlotte, Princess Palatine; Pages from the Journal and Correspondence of Edmond and Jules de Goncourt (with Miss Sherlock), a biography of King Edward VII, and The Philosophy of the Marquise and The Heart of Penelope, novels which each secured her success in their respective seasons.

Bellord, EDMUND J., Solicitor, and Trustee of the Providence Row Night Refuge—born 1860, youngest son of James Bellord, of Highgate, and brother of the late Bishop Bellord; educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate; married (1886) Helen Teresa, daughter of George B. Smith, of Oxford.

Bell-Smyth, Major John Ambard, King's Dragoon Guards—born 1868; educated at Oratory School; entered Army 1890; Captain 1895; served as A.D.C. to Lord Methuen in South Africa, and was mentioned in despatches; Major 1904.

Bennett, H. Morden—born at Bournemouth, where his father was Vicar; was educated at Exeter College, Oxford (M.A.), and, after holding Anglican orders, was received into the Church in 1888. In the days of his Anglican pastorate he became well known as the writer of The Preacher's Vade Mecum, The King of Glory, The Foot of the Cross, and several books of meditations.

Benson, Rev. Robert Hugh—born 1871, at Wellington College, fourth son of Archbishop Benson of Canterbury; educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A.); took Anglican Orders, and held curacies in East London and at Kemsing, near Sevenoaks; joined the Anglican Community of the Resurrection, Mirfield, 1898; received into the Church at Woodchester Priory 1903, and ordained in Rome in the following year. Since Tobie Matthew, son of the Archbishop of York, became a Catholic in 1606, probably no son of an Anglican Archbishop, other than Father Benson, has joined "the Italian Mission" (as Archbishop Benson lightly named it), and certainly none has done so with so high a sense of responsibility and so entire a devotion of his time and interests to the service of the Church. Like his brothers, Mr A. C. Benson, and the author of Dodo, he has a ready pen at his command, which is also a pen of suggestive power, as is shown in The Light Invisible, By What Authority (a novel treating of the Elizabethan period), The King's Achievement (a story of the suppression of the Monasteries), and other works, of which his astonishing fecundity allows us to say that they are almost too numerous to name. In The Religion of the Plain Man he has simply set forth the reasons of the faith that is in him. Of this persuasive little manual, it has been said that the title page itself contains an argument in the mere name of the author with all its hereditary associations.

Berdoe, Dr Edward, M.R.C.S., etc.—born 1836, and educated in London, where he has practised his profession. A chance hearing of a lecture on "Sordello" made him a student of Browning; consequent on this study he passed from Agnosticism to the acceptance of Christianity in its fullest form, and was received into the Church in 1889. He is author of Adventures in Search of a Religion (written before he entered the Church), Browning and the Christian Faith (dedicated to the clergy), and other works well-known to students of that poet. He has also contributed largely to the literature of the Anti-vivisection movement, in which he has taken a leader's part. He married Miss Mary Inskip, of White Rock, Hastings.

Bergh, RIGHT REV. FREDERIC THOMAS, O.S.B. (Cassinese Congregation of the Primitive Observance), Abbot-Visitor of Ramsgate since 1905—educated in Germany, England and Italy; assumed in 1876 the headship of St Augustine's Monastery and College and the general control of the Isle of Thanet missions. His twenty-five years' rule was marked by the erection of St Catherine's Hospital and a second church at Ramsgate, of a church and convent at Minster, and the establishment of missions at Westgate and Broadstairs, besides additions to the college and monastic buildings of St Augustine's. He was consecrated first Abbot of St Augustine's in 1896, and now, as Chaplain of the Daughters of the Cross at Carshalton has the "learned leisure" for the ecclesiastical studies in which he excels, Bergholt, the Lady Abbess of (Dame Hildegarde Parker, O.S.B.)—The convent of Benedictine "Dames Anglaises" was founded at Brussels in 1598 by Lady Mary Percy. The community (to which the Convents now at Stanbrook and Oulton are lineal) flourished at Brussels till the French Republican invasion of 1794, when it settled at Winchester, and finally in 1856 at East Bergholt. There are now eight English Convents of the Benedictine Order, and among the Nuns are to be found almost unrivalled experts in liturgical and other studies.

Birt, Dom Henry Norbert, O.S.B.—born at Valparaiso 1861; educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate, at Kensington Catholic Public School, and at London University College School; entered Benedictine Order 1880; ordained 1889; served missions at Coventry and Heckfield; Acting Chaplain to the Forces during South African War. Author of History of Downside School—The Elizabethan Religious Settlement, which gives him a recognized place among historians—Lingard's History Abridged and Brought Down to Date.

Bishop, EDMUND (who was received into the Church 1877) has shown his almost unrivalled powers as an historical and liturgical writer by his authorship of The Genius of the Roman Rite (1899), and his joint authorship, with Abbot Gasquet, of Edward VI and the Book of Common Prayer. To Mr Bishop the Abbot dedicates his book Henry III and the Church (1905) as "my old and tried friend, to whom I owe more than words can express"; and from Pope Leo XIII he had a gold medal. Of his many contributions to periodicals may be named, as illustrating at once his learning and his candour, his series of Tablet articles in examination of the miracle popularly associated with the Holy House of Loretto.

Bliss, W. H., archivist—educated at Magdalen College, Oxford (M.A.); sometime in Anglican Orders and Rector of Hincksey; received into the Catholic Church; late Sublibrarian of the Bodleian; sometime tutor to H.R.H. the Prince of Naples, K.G.; commissioned by the British Government to investigate the Vatican archives for papers relating to British history, and many important documents have been published under his superintendence.

Blount, SIR WALTER DE SODINGTON, Bart., D.L. for Worcestershire—born 1833, son of Sir Edward Blount, 8th Baronet, and his wife, Mary, daughter of Edward Blount, sometime M.P.; educated like other members of his family at Oscott; formerly Captain in the Worcestershire Yeomanry; succeeded his father as 9th Baronet (created 1642)

England) 1881; married (1874) ELIZABETH, daughter of James Z. WILLIAMS. The Blount family is traced to the Blounds, Earls of Guisnes, one of whom accompanied William the Conqueror. The extinct baronies of Mountjoy, of Thurston, and of Ixworth in Suffolk, had their origin in this family. The first Baronet suffered imprisonment for the Royal cause during the Civil Wars.

Blount, Alfred John, Solicitor—partner in Messrs Blount, Lynch and Petre, of 48 Albemarle Street, W.; admitted a Solicitor 1869.

Blount, STEPHEN, J.P. for Staffordshire—born 1840, fourth son of Sir Edward Blount, 8th Baronet of Loxley; educated at Oscott; called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn 1863; married (1874) LIZZIE, daughter of William Worswick, of Normanton Hall and Birstall, Leicestershire.

Blount, HENRY EDMUND, D.L. for Sussex, Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, Director of the West of France Railway—born 1844, the only surviving son of Sir Edward Blount, K.C.B., one of the Pioneers of French railways, and Gertrude, daughter of William Charles Jerningham; educated at Oscott; married (1869) Marguerite, daughter of M. le Baron De La Rochette.

Dublin, and Mary, daughter of Valentine O'Brien O'Connor, D.L., of Rockfield House, Blackrock, Co. Dublin; grandson of William Blount, of Orleton and Orche Hill, M.P. for Totnes in 1839; married (1898) Grace Ethel, only daughter of Archibald Mackenzie, of Dingewall Lodge, Croydon.

Blücher von Wahlstatt, COUNTESS GEBHARD—EVELYN MARY, daughter of Frederick STAPLETON-BRETHERTON, J.P., D.L., of Rainhill, and niece of 12th Lord Petre; married at Westminster Cathedral (1907) Count Gebhard Lebrecht BLÜCHER VON WAHLSTATT, son of H.S.H. Prince Blücher von Wahlstatt, of Radun, Troppau, Silesia, and great-grandson of Waterloo Blücher.

Blundell, WILLIAM JOSEPH, J.P., D.L.—born 1851, eldest son of the late Colonel Francis Nicholas Blundell, J.P., D.L., of Crosby, and his wife, Agnes, daughter of Sir Edward Smythe, Bart.

Blundell, Mrs Francis-born at Killiney Park, Dublin, the daughter of Michael James SWEETMAN, of Lamberton Park: educated at home and in Brussels. On her marriage in 1879 with Francis Nicholas Blundell, she lived at Crosby, her father-in-law's Lancashire home. Here is the scene of In a North Country Village, and of the early short stories and sketches of country life, published under the name "M. E. Francis"; among other works which have given her a place and popularity of her own as a depicter of the country and of village life are The Story of Dan, A Daughter of the Soil (printed as the first Times serial in 1894), Among the Untrodden Ways, Miss Erin, The Duenna of a Genius, Yeoman Fleetwood, Dorset Pastorals, The Manor Farm, Christian Phal. Dear Dorset and Stepping Westward. Her stories, turned into plays, have held, once and again, the London stage. Her only son, Mr Francis Blundell, is the heir presumptive of the Crosby Hall estate. A fellow Catholic woman-of-letters, writing of one of Mrs Blundell's ever fresh contributions to the novels of the day, says, "In The Duenna of a Genius, this novelist tells the gay, sparkling, and also touching story of two little alien girls in England. A gentle, fussy and philanthropic English lady is admirably drawn; without any insistence on her personality the author puts her reader into complete possession of it from the first. Altogether, for a blameless novel full of nature, humour and sweet feeling and delicate life, readers of all ages could not do better than take up The Duenna of a Genius."

Blundell, Dom Odo, O.S.B.—born 1868, son of John Blundell, of Crook Hall, Lancashire, and Catherine, daughter of Peter Middelton, of Myddelton Lodge, Yorks; educated at Beaumont; ordained at Fort Augustus 1896; author of Ancient Catholic Homes of Scotland.

Blunt, Lady Anne Isabella—daughter of the 1st Earl of Lovelace by his marriage with the Hon. Ada Noel, daughter of Byron—the "Ada, sole daughter of my house and heart." Lady Anne married (1869) Mr Wilfrid Scawen Blunt, of Crabbet Park, Sussex, together with whom she has traversed the desert, made true friends among the Arabs, and visited remote parts of Arabia. She has made record of these adventurous travels in her Bedouin Tribes of the Euphrates and Pilgrimage to Nejd, published in 1880 and 1881. Her brush has borne out her pen, pictures of having been exhibited at the Grosvenor and other galleries. A devoted convert to the Catholic Church, Lady Anne Blunt has shown the universality of her sympathy with the unfortunate among nations and individuals. It is interesting to note that all the direct descendants of Lord Byron are Catholics—Lady Anne Blunt (his granddaughter) Lady Wentworth and the Hon. Mrs Neville Lytton (great-granddaughters), and the children of Mrs Lytton in the succeeding generation.

Blunt, WILFRID SCAWEN, traveller, poet, "lover of the Arab horse and man," son of F. S. Blunt, of Crabbet Park. Sussex, by his wife, the daughter of the Rev. John Chandler, of Witley. Mr Blunt's mother was a friend of Archdeacon Manning, and her secession immediately followed his own. He was born at Petworth House, the residence of his kinsman, Lord Leconfield, in 1840, and began his education at a private school, where we gather from his poems that he was less than happy. Later he proceeded to Stonyhurst and Oscott, his association there leading later to a correspondence between himself and Dr Meynell. which was edited by Aubrey de Vere and published under the title of Proteus and Amadeus. Entering the Diplomatic Service in 1858 he began that fellowship with Robert (afterwards Earl of) Lytton ("Owen Meredith") which was to have a record in literature, and the two men spent many a congenial hour together, relieving the tedium of diplomacy in exile by verse-writing; and long after Mr Blunt had abandoned the diplomatic career in which his friend persevered, he dedicated a volume to "one in a high position," Lytton having then become Viceroy of India. In 1869 Mr Blunt married LADY ANNE NOEL, and on the death of his elder brother, Major Francis Blunt (founder of the Capuchin Monastery at Crawley), he succeeded to the family estates in Sussex. His own health was delicate, and he then began, in company with his wife, the series of Eastern travels with which their names will always be associated, visiting Arabia, Syria, Persia and Mesopotamia, and thus acquiring the character of a cosmopolitan, whose observations and sympathies far outrange merely conventional and national bounds. From this followed naturally Mr Blunt's effective intervention for the life of Arabi Pasha after the battle of Tel-el-Kebir; and that sympathy with Irish nationalism which led to his arrest for speaking at a proclaimed meeting. Left alone in Kilmainham Gaol for many weary hours. Mr Blunt came to the conclusion that the Old Testament denunciations of the enemies of the Lord (his only reading) made for the cheerfulness of political prisoners. A photograph of Mr Blunt in his prison dress affords, according to a story, the solitary instance in which Edward VII has been baffled by braid or button. The portrait stood on the shelf of a friend of the prisoner with whom the Prince of Wales, as he was then, happened to be taking tea. "I don't recognize that uniform," said the Prince, a little piqued. Laughter followed when it was explained that the uniform was that of one of Her Majesty's prisoners. In the nature of the case the popularity granted to Mr Blunt as a poet has been denied him as a politician. The Love Sonnets of Proteus have gone through edition after edition; but three attempts made to enter Parliament were unsuccessful. First as a Conservative Home Ruler, and then as a Gladstonian Home Ruler, he was defeated by narrow majorities in Metropolitan constituencies and at Kidderminster. In Satan Absolved—a poem dedicated to his friend Herbert Spencer-Mr Blunt made his protest against that spirit of aggression which, in his opinion and in that of the philosopher, cost England the Boer War and civilization the blessings of peace. The Arab stud at Crabbet has a world-wide renown; and there is some expectation that Mr Blunt, whose prose is amongst the best lately written, may one day publish a monumental monograph on the horse. The long friendship existing between Mr Blunt and Robert, Lord Lytton, had its sequel in the marriage of Miss Judith Blunt-Mr Blunt's only surviving child—with the Hon. Neville Lytton.

Blunt, Sir John Harvey, Bart.—born 1839, only surviving son of William Blunt, B.C.S.; sometime Captain 1st Batt. Royal Dublin Fusiliers, with which regiment he served in the Indian Mutiny; succeeded his brother, the 7th Baronet (created 1720, Great Britain) 1902; married, 1870, Susan, daughter of P. Hoad. The family represented by Sir John Blunt is a branch of the Blount family, and traces its descent from Sir William Blount, the Norman Admiral, through Thomas Blount, who, on conforming to the Established Religion in 1645, changed his name to Blunt. Our own times have witnessed the return of the family to the faith of its fathers.

Bodkin, Matthias McDonnell, K.C.—born 1850, son of Dr Thomas Bodkin, of Tuam; educated at St Stanislaus's College, Tullabeg, and at the Catholic University, Stephen's Green; was gold medallist of Dublin Law Students' Debating Society; sat in Parliament for North Roscommon in the Nationalist interest, retiring in 1901. Besides having a busy practice at the Bar, he has contributed largely to journalism, is the author of novels, Pat'o' Nine Tails—White Magic and The Rebels, and in earlier days was a successful athlete. He married (1885) Arabella, daughter of Francis Norman, of Dublin.

Bodkin, Father William, S.J.—born in Galway 1867; educated at Stonyhurst, where he was afterwards Professor for eight years; took his divinity course at St Beuno's; went abroad for a year, and then returned to Stonyhurst to teach; entered the Society 1884; established the Catholic Grammar School, Leeds, 1905; succeeded Father Pedro Gordon as Rector of Stonyhurst 1907.

Boland. John Pius, M.P.—born in Dublin 1870, second son of Patrick Boland of that city; educated at the Oratory School, at Christ Church, Oxford (where he graduated M.A. and was President of the Newman Society), and at Bonn University. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple 1897, and has represented South Kerry in Parliament as a Nationalist since 1000. An accomplished athlete. Mr Boland distinguished himself in sports at the University, and was among the successful competitors at the Olympic Games held at Athens in 1896. In 1901 he helped to establish a Summer School for the study of Irish at Glenbeigh, Co. Kerry, and there is no movement which has the benefit of Ireland or the promotion of her arts and industries for its object which he has not forwarded with conspicuous zeal, fairness and ability. He married (1902) EILEEN, daughter of Dr Patrick Moloney, of Melbourne, Bombay, Archbishop of (Most Rev. Hermann Jurgens, S.J.)—born in Münster, Westphalia, 1847; entered Novitiate S.J. 1864; ordained 1884; has laboured in Bombay since 1886; held several times the office of Superior Regular of the Mission, and twice acted as Adm. Apost. of the Diocese; preached the funeral sermon at Bombay Cathedral on the occasion of the requiem service of two of his predecessors, Archbishops Porter and Dalhoff; consecrated Archbishop of Bombay and received the pallium, July 1907.

Bonaparte, Charles Jerome—born in the United States, and unlike some members of his illustrious family a Republican first and last; one of the most brilliant lawyers in America; U.S. Attorney-General; Vice-President of the International Catholic Truth Society; has been named "the first Catholic layman in the United States." It is not often that Mr Bonaparte (a Bonaparte a mere Mister!) alludes, as he does in the following sentence, to the home of his race: "No one is an American citizen" (he has said), "who feels himself an Irishman, or a German, or anything else, except as George Washington or John Adams might have felt himself an Englishman, or (to compare a very small person to great ones) as I may feel myself a Corsican."

Bonaparte-Wyse, Andrew Nicholas, M.A.—born 1870, second son of William Charles Bonaparte-Wyse, J.P., of the Manor of St John's, Waterford; grandson of the Right Hon. Sir Thomas Wyse, K.C.B., British Minister at Athens in 1849—the first such appointment of a Catholic made since the Reformation—and the Princess Letitia Bonaparte, niece of the great Napoleon; educated at Beaumont; is Lord of the Manor of St John's, Waterford, and an Inspector of National Schools for Ireland; married (1896) Marie, eldest daughter of the Count de Chripounoff, of Bulevetz, Elctz, in the Government of Orel, Russia.

Boon, John—born in Ireland 1859, son of Andrew Boon, of Covlagh; educated at the Sorbonne in Paris, at Rome and at Madrid; began to contribute to English and French papers in 1880, acting in 1883 as foreign editor and special correspondent of the Central News; from 1885-92 was the Parliamentary representative of the Exchange Telegraph Company, of which he is now the wonderfully able chief Editor. Mr Boon was created Knight Commander of the Order of Isabel la Católica in 1892.

Boothman, C. T.—antiquarian and general writer; contributor to The Tablet and to The Catholic Encyclopædia.

Boucher, Antoine—born 1831, in the Province of Quebec, where his family have been settled since 1634; called to the Quebec Bar 1855; was translator for ten years to the old Legislative Council of Upper and Lower Canada, and after Confederation in 1867 to the Canadian Senate, to which he was appointed assistant clerk in 1877.

Boulaye, RIGHT REV. MGR JOHN, V.G. of Salford and member of the Chapter; Dom. Prel. 1906.

Boulger, Dorothy—daughter of Thomas Havers, of Thelton Hall, Norfolk, sometime Manager of the Falklands; passed seven years of her childhood in those remote islands. Later the family went to Monte Video, returning to England on the death of Mr Havers in 1870. The first short stories of Dora Havers appeared in The Galaxy, a New York magazine; her first novel, True to her Trust, was published in three volumes under the name "Theo Gift." a pseudonym which achieved popularity on the publication in Cassell's Magazine, and afterwards in book form, of Pretty Miss Bellew. "Theo Gift" was one of the later attractions of All the Year Round, and her More than a Woman's Love (first printed in The Lamp of Father Lockhart's editorship), together with her Lil Lorimer, A Garden of Girls, Wrecked at the Outset, Visited on the Children, Maud Ellice, Not for the Night Time, An Innocent Maiden, Victims, An Island Princess, Dishonoured and The Case of a Man with his Wife, have established her success as a novelist. She married, in 1879, Professor G. S. Boulger.

Boulger, Professor George Simonds, F.L.S., F.G.S., Vice-President of the Selborne Society, Actonian Prizeman of the Royal Institution—born 1853, the son of Edward Boulger, M.D.; educated at Wellington and Epsom Colleges; became Professor of Natural History at Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, 1876; since 1884 has been Professor of Botany and Geology at the City of London College. Professor Boulger, who is a convert to the Catholic Church, and married, in 1879, Miss Havers ("Theo Gift"), is the author of Familiar Trees, The Uses of Plants, Geology, Wood and, in conjunction with Mr Britten, the Biographical Index of English and Irish Botanists.

Boulton, HAROLD, M.V.O., Knight of the Order of St John of Jerusalem—born 1859, son of Sir S. B. Boulton, 1st Baronet, of Copped Hall, Totteridge, Herts, once the residence of the father of Cardinal Manning; educated at Harrow and Balliol College, Oxford (M.A.), where he took classical honours and narrowly missed the Newdigate; was the energetic Hon. Treasurer of Queen Victoria's Jubilee Institute for Nurses, and Chairman of the People's Palace Horticultural Society; has served on the Mendicity Society and as a committeeman of the London Hospital and the Gordon League; is J.P. for West Ham. Besides these and other public activities, Mr Boulton, who is a convert to the Church, has devoted talent to the editing and writing of songs. To Mr Boulton it was that Cardinal Manning (who revisited the home of his childhood at Mr Boulton's invitation) made the often quoted remark, "An English gentleman should read Horace and ride to hounds."

Bourassa, Henri, French-Canadian member of the Ottawa Parliament—born 1870 in the Province of Quebec; called to the Quebec Bar; was joint British Secretary to the International Conference, Quebec 1897; together with MM. Monet and Angers, two of his parliamentary colleagues, he opposed Canadian participation in the South African War; his seat, Labelle County, Quebec, was subsequently challenged, but he was returned by his constituents with an increased majority, his own breezy sincerity and exaltation of character ensuring his popularity among all who come into touch with him. Mr Bourassa has paid several visits to England, during one of which he enlisted the friendship of Cardinal Vaughan.

Bowden, Miss Emily Frances—daughter of Captain Henry Bowden, Scots Guards, and sister of Father Sebastian Bowden, has done the Church of her adoption excellent service as the singularly able translator of the Countess Hahn Hahn's Fathers of the Desert, a book to which Father Dalgairns contributed a monumental introduction.

Bowden, Father Henry Sebastian—born 1836, son of Captain Henry Bowden, Scots Guards, a mid-Victorian convert and founder of St Mary's Church, Chislehurst; educated at Eton and the Catholic University, Dublin; formerly held commission in Scots Fusilier Guards; ordained 1870. Father Bowden's work at the London Oratory, where he has served terms of office as Superior, has helped to give it its place as one of the great spiritual centres of London. He has published translations of Hettinger's Natural Religion and of his work on Dante's Divina Commedia; and is the author of The Witness of the Saints—The Religion of Shakespeare and universally popular volumes of Miniature Lives of the Saints.

Bowen, James B., Alderman and J.P. for Oxon—born 1836, second son of Benjamin Bowen, of Chipping Norton; married (1868) 3rd daughter of James Swiney, of Ramsgate.

Bowles, MISS EMILY—a Woman of Letters whose translation of the Récit d'une Sœur exhibited her as one of the best of living translators from the French, and conferred on English readers the great possession of Mrs Craven's masterpiece. Miss Bowles is also the translator of French Eggs in an English Basket—eggs from the farm of Emile Souvestre. Her original work includes the authorship of Floreat Etona.

Bowring, Lewin Bentham, C.S.I., J.P.—born 1824, third son of Sir John Bowring, F.R.S.; educated at the East India College, Haileybury; entered Bengal Civil Service 1843; was Private Secretary to Lord Canning during his Viceroyalty and was Chief Commissioner of Mysore and Coorg; retired 1870; received into the Church; married (1857) Mary Laura, daughter of Admiral Hon. Sir John Talbot, G.C.B., of Rhode Hill, Devon, and secondly (1867) Katharine, daughter of Serjeant E. Bellasis. He has recorded his Eastern Experiences, given his Autobiographical Recollections of Sir John Bowring, and contributed monographs of Haidar Ali and Tipu Sultan to the "Rulers of India" series,

Bowring, LIEUT. VINCENT LEWIN, R.N.—born 1875, third surviving son of Lewin Bentham Bowring, C.S.I., and Katharine, daughter of Mr Serjeant Edward Bellasis; educated at the Oratory School, Edgbaston; took part in the Vitu expedition 1890; Lieutenant 1896; commanded Torpedo-boat 102, 1899.

Bowyer, MRS—KATHARINE EMMA, daughter of the Rev. G. Sandby, of Denton, Norfolk; married (1855) Henry George Bowyer (who died 1883). Her son, who succeeded to the family Baronetcy, was brought up in the religion of his father; but her two daughters, of whom one is a Nun of the Order of the Assumption, and the other Mrs James Frederick Shaw, were brought up in the religion of their mother.

Boynton, Lady—Euphemia Violet, daughter of John Inglis Chalmers, of Aldbar Castle, Brechin, N.B.; married (1885) Griffith Henry Boynton, who succeeded as 12th Baronet in 1899. Lady Boynton and her daughters were received into the Church in 1905.

Bradford, LIEUTENANT BERTRAM H.M., R.N.—Midshipman 1896; Sub-Lieut. 1900; and Lieutenant 1904.

Bradney, EDGAR JOACHIM—born 1873, third son of John Bradney, J.P., of Bayford Lodge, and his second wife, Maud, daughter of Edgar Disney, of The Hyde, Essex; educated at Downside; married (1900) MARY, daughter of T. MARIOTT-DODDINGTON, of Horsington House, Templecombe.

Bradshaw-Isherwood, Henry, Barrister-at-Law of the Middle Temple—born 1868, eldest son of John Henry Bradshaw-Isherwood, J.P., of Marple Hall, Cheshire, and Bradshaw Hall, Lancashire, and Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Luce, of Malmesbury; educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge (B.A. 1890); received into the Church 1889; married (1907) Miss Bagshawe.

Brady, Canon James—born at Cavan 1848; educated at Kilmore Diocesan Seminary, Blackrock College, and Colleges of the Society of the Holy Ghost on the Continent; ordained at Chevilly, near Paris, 1874; first years of ministry in the West Indies and Ireland; joined Diocese of Middlesbrough 1880; Canon 1892.

Brand, James, K.C.S.G. J.P. for Glasgow, Civil Engineer—educated at Stonyhurst; head of the firm of James Brand and Co., Engineers; contractor for the Glasgow Subway Railway; created K.C.S.G. by Leo XIII 1903; Member of Catholic Education Council; served on Council of the Catholic Union 1901; member of the Catholic Union deputation to Plus X on his accession to the Pontificate.

Brangwyn, Frank, A.R.A.—born at Bruges of British parentage. He is a member of the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers, of the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts, of the Société Internationale de la Peinture à l'eau of Paris, of the Secession of Munich, of the Artists' Association of Vienna, and of the Japan Society of London; and examples of his work are to be seen in many of the great galleries of Europe. Here at home he has been reputed "the finest decorative artist we possess." His large panel decoration for the Royal Exchange is well known; as also are such works as "The Scoffers," "A Market on the Beach," "Gold, Frankincense and Myrrh," and the "St Simon Stylites" which Venice bought, and which is reproduced in the current edition of The Fathers of the Desert.

Brayden, WILLIAM H.—Editor of The Freeman's Journal since 1892; Barrister-at-Law; for two years reported in the Gallery of the House of Commons.

Braye, LORD (ALFRED VERNEY-CAVE, J.P., D.L., Knight of the Sovereign Order of Malta)-born 1849, son of Rev. Edgell Wyatt-Edgell, and Henrietta, Baroness Brave, whom he succeeded as 5th Baron 1879, the creation being of 1529. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, and was received into the Church in 1870, since which event he has taken a deep interest in Catholic affairs, especially in those which affect higher education and an expert study of the Holy Scriptures. This last department of research he has endowed by the gift of valuable scholarships. In 1882 he framed a well-rewarded petition to the Holy See on the subject of English University Education for Catholics, while his preface to The Position of the Catholic Church in England and Wales during the last Two Centuries (an essay by Mr Thomas Murphy which secured the prize of fifty guineas offered by the Fifteen Club in 1891) exhibited him as a layman who could give to serious views a very agreeable expression. Lord Braye took part in the South African War with the Leicestershire Militia, of which he has been Lieut.-Colonel commanding for some years; and his versatility has been very literally shown by his ability as a writer of verse. He married (1873) CECILIA, daughter of William Gerard Walmesley, of Westwood House, Wigan, Breen, Rev. J. Dunstan, O.S.B.—born in Dublin 1841; educated at Downside and London University; ordained 1869; served missions at Studley, Cheltenham, Redditch, Whitehaven, Brixton, E. Finchley, Greyshot and Petersfield; the able author of books, pamphlets, and articles on the Anglican position, including:—Anglican Orders: Are they Valid?—Continuity or Collapse?—189, or The Church of Old England Protests—Sacerdotalism—The Reformation in England.

Brenan, Canon John J.—Hon. Sec. and Treasurer of the Associated Catholic Charities of London; member of Westminster Chapter from 1901.

Brennan, Louis, C.B., inventor of the "Brennan Torpedo"—was born in Ireland 1852. Having emigrated to Australia in boyhood, he was apprenticed to a Civil Engineer at Melbourne, and here the future torpedo of England's navy was first conceived in the mind of its inventor when he was but twenty-two. Thirteen years later, in 1897, the Government, by the advice of the Admiralty, bought the invention for £110,000. Mr Brennan's latest triumph is an adaptation of the gyroscope to the mono-rail—a device which he demonstrated before the Royal Society in 1907.

Brereton, Austin—born at Liverpool 1862, and educated at St Francis Xavier's College in that city; entered journalism as dramatic critic of The Stage; Assistant-editor of The Theatre 1881-87; on the staff of the Sydney Morning Herald 1889-91; Assistant-editor of The Illustrated American, of New York, 1893-94; late dramatic critic of The Sphere. Mr Brereton has been an industrious contributor to the history of the drama, and is the author of Shakesperean Scenes and Characters, A Short History of "She Stoops to Conquer," "The Rivals," and "The School for Scandal," A Ramble in Bath, Peg Woffington, A Gallery of Players, memoirs of Henry Irving and Sara Bernhardt, and other works. He married in 1886 at the Church of Our Lady, Grove Road, London, Miss Edith Blande.

Brewer, Henry C., artist—born 1866, son of the late Henry W. Brewer, the archæologist and artist, and grandson of J. S. Brewer, editor of "The State Papers of the Reign of Henry VIII," to whom Lord Acton paid the tribute of having "done more than any other man to pour light upon a period which will always interest every description of educated man"; educated at St Charles's College, Kensington; travelled in Spain, with the painter's passion for that most pictorial of countries; illustrator with his father of the splendid History of St Ignatius by "Stuart Rose" (Lady Buchan). An exhibition of water-colours by Mr Brewer at the galleries of the Fine Art Society in 1906 gave London the opportunity of seeing the work of a Catholic artist of distinction.

Brewer, John Francis—born in London 1865, son of Henry W. Brewer, artist and archæologist and convert to the Church; educated at Kensington Catholic Public School; is an organist and musical critic and the author of three very bright novels, one of which was the best of its season, and, as its name betrays, of direct Catholic interest; but as it was published anonymously and much discussed, further particularity might be indiscreet here. Mr Brewer married the widow of the late Edyvean WALKER, of Rugby.

Bridge, J. J. R., Professor of English Literature in the Presidency College, Calcutta, since 1900—educated at Shrewsbury School and Caius College, Cambridge (B.A. 1897); Paris Medallist in 1896, and Scholar of his College; formerly President of the Fisher Society, Cambridge (founded in 1896 to promote literary pursuits and social union among Catholic members of the University); after taking his degree taught classics at Stonyhurst and at St Edmund's, Old Hall.

Bridges, James Emile, Barrister-at-Law, late Bengal Civil Service and Deputy Commissioner in Burma—married (1889) Marianne Roskell, of Stokyn Hall, Holywell, daughter of late John Roskell, of Flint, and grand-daughter of George Roskell, J.P., of Flint.

Bright, MARY CHAVELITA ("George Egerton"), novelist—born in Australia, where her father, Captain John J. Dunne, was stationed during the Maori War; travelled in Europe and in North and South America; married, as her third husband (1901) Reginald Golding Bright, and has inaugurated a new class of fiction in her Keynotes, Discords, Symphonies, Fantasias, The Wheel of God, Rosa Amorosa, and other novels.

Brisbane, Archbishop of (Most Rev. Robert Dunne)—consecrated Bishop of Brisbane 1882; Archbishop 1887.

Britten, JAMES, K.S.G., F.L.S., Hon. Sec. of the Catholic Truth Society-born in Chelsea 1846; educated for medicine, but having the offer of a post in Kew Herbarium, he was able to follow his favourite study of botany. In 1891 he proceeded to the Botanical Department of the British Museum, where he is now Senior Assistant. After his reception into the Church at the age of twenty-one, he was for four years editor of The League of the Cross Magazine, and was actively engaged in parochial good works, first at Isleworth and Brentford and then at St George's, Southwark, where he helped to found Newman House. The Catholic Truth Society, which had been started about 1870, but had fallen into abeyance, was in 1884, mainly through the efforts of Mr Britten, Mr A. Newdigate and the Rev. W. H. Cologan, reorganized in its present form, Cardinal Vaughan, then Bishop of Salford, pre-siding over the inaugural meeting. Mr Britten's labours were acknowledged by a knighthood conferred by Leo XIII. His multifarious activities have included the aid he gave to the foundation of the Folk Lore Society, while he edited Nature Notes for eight years, and is at present editor of Catholic Book Notes and of The Journal of Botany, which came into his hands in 1880. He also inaugurated the annual Conferences that have brought the Catholics of the country into closer touch with one another. Besides a vast amount of incisive controversial literature, he is the author of a work on European Ferns, and is joint compiler with Professor Boulger of A Biographical Index of British and Irish Botanists.

Britten, Major Thomas Xavier, Indian Army—born 1867; educated at Downside; Captain 1898; late Adjutant 10th Bombay Infantry; Major 110th Mahratta Light Infantry 1905.

Brodeur, Hon. Louis Philippe, Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries-born 1862 in the Province of Quebec, son of Toussaint Brodeur, "patriot of 1837," and Justine Lambert; educated at the Collège of St Hyacinthe and Laval University (LL.B.); called to Ouebec Bar 1884: K.C. 1889; editor of Le Soir 1896; having represented Rouville in three Dominion Parliaments, he succeeded Sir John Bourinot as Speaker of the House of Commons 1901: he exchanged this office for the portfolio of Minister of Inland Revenue 1904; married (1887) EMMA, daughter of J. R. Brillon, notary. Mr Brodeur, who has done high service as a negotiator in disputes arising out of fishery rights, has, moreover, placed in England a contract for the largest ice-breaking steamer vet made in order to maintain constant winter communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland.

Brodie, N. CAITHNESS—born 1842, third son of William Brodie, of Brodie, Lord Lieutenant of Nairn, and Elizabeth, daughter of Colonel Hugh Baillie, sometime M.P.; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A.); formerly in Anglican Orders and a curate at St Stephen's, Kensington.

Brodrick, Alan H., J.P. for Liverpool—Vice-President of Father Berry's Homes, Liverpool; Committee of St George's Industrial Schools, Liverpool.

Bromage, RICHARD RAIKES, M.A., F.R.G.S.—born 1853, son of James Bromage, banker, of Monmouth; educated at Clare College, Cambridge; formerly Anglican Vicar of Christ Church, Frome, and Surrogate in Diocese of Bath and Wells; submitted to the Catholic Church 1895; Secretary and Treasurer of the Universities Catholic Education

Board; married (first) L. MARGARET BUXTON, and (secondly) KATHARINE E. PARSONS. of Frome.

Brookfield, Charles H. E., actor-born 1855, son of Professor W. H. Brookfield and of Mary Brookfield, the friends of Thackeray, Tennyson, Carlyle, Coventry Patmore, and most of the literary and other celebrities of their day. With such opportunities materials for his subsequent Random Reminiscences came to him early; he saw Thackeray when he was five, and later on was introduced to Carlyle, whom he recalls as "an old man of rough exterior and primitive habits, seated on the floor by his fire-place and smoking a long clay pipe." He was educated at West-minster School, at Paris, and at Trinity College, Cambridge (Winchester Reading Prize); was called to the Bar. which he forsook for the stage, making his first appearance at the Alexandra Palace Theatre 1879, and played at the Haymarket Theatre under the Bancrofts 1879-85. Mr Brookfield was received into the Church with his wife in 1000, and is the author of Random Reminiscences (1902). The Life and Letters of Mary Brookfield (with his wife, 1905) Mrs Brookfield and her Circle (1906).

Brookfield, Mrs Frances M.—wife of Charles H. Brookfield, author, actor and dramatist; author of The Apostles (1906)—My Lord of Essex (1907); collaborated with her husband in Mrs Brookfield and her Circle (1905).

Brown, STEPHEN, J.P., Chairman of the Kildare County Council—educated at Clongowes; admitted a Solicitor; appointed on the Commission of Inquiry into the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, Ireland, 1905.

Brown, RIGHT REV. MGR WILLIAM F., V.G. of Southwark and member of the Catholic Education Council-born at Dundee, where his grandfather was Lord Provost and his forefathers among the pioneers of the jute and flax spinning trade. Inheriting their energy and ability, he was originally intended for the Indian Civil Service, and was educated at Dundee High School and Trinity College, Glenalmond; but, having relinquished the idea of a secular career, he studied at University College School, London, and at the Catholic University, established at Kensington by Cardinal Manning. He took his ecclesiastical course at St Thomas's, Hammersmith, and was ordained in 1886. His work as a priest brought him to South London, where, in the districts of Camberwell and Vauxhall, he studied the problems of education during his managership of Voluntary Schools. He and the late Mr Costelloe were the only Catholic candidates returned to the London School Board in 1897. With the same colleague he was among the pioneers of legislation for the relief of under-fed school-children. He was appointed rector of the Vauxhall Mission in 1903, and his zeal was specially rewarded by the dignity of Protonotary Apostolic conferred upon him in 1907. Mgr Brown, besides being the best informed of educationists, has a personality as a preacher, as many non-Catholics perceived when they heard his sermon on the occasion of the funeral of his friend, Mrs Craigie ("John Oliver Hobbes").

Brown, Canon William J.—born at Newcastle-on-Tyne 1851; educated at Ushaw; ordained 1874, and appointed Assistant to Mgr Consitt at St Cuthbert's, Durham; Rector from 1898; Canon of Hexham 1906.

Brownbill, John, M.A. and formerly Naden Divinity Student of St John's College, Cambridge—born at Liverpool 1856; convert 1885; antiquarian writer; author of The Principles of English Canon Law (1883); one of the editors of the new History of Lancashire in the "Victoria County History" series.

Browne, FATHER HENRY B., S.J. (Irish Province), Fellow Royal University of Ireland—son of J. Wilson Browne, of Birmingham; educated at New College, Oxford (M.A.); received into the Church 1874; Rector of Clongowes Wood College 1900-03; Professor of Greek at University College, Dublin.

Browne, Canon James W.—educated at Ratcliffe, at the English Colleges at Lisbon and Rome, and at Oscott, where he completed his clerical course; ordained 1886; Canon of Nottingham 1900; Rector of St Joseph's, Derby.

Browne, FATHER JOSEPH, S.J.—Rector of Stonyhurst 1898-1906; appointed Rector of St Francis Xavier's College, Liverpool, in succession to Father Hayes, S.J., 1906.

Bruce, ERIC HENRY STUART—born 1859, only son of General Michael Bruce, Grenadier Guards; educated at Exeter College, Oxford (M.A.); inventor of Bruce system of balloon signalling; Hon. Sec. and Member of Council of the Aeronautical Society of Great Britain; Member d'honneur Aero Club of France; F.R. Met.S.; convert to the Church; married (1884) HELEN AUXILIUM, eldest daughter of John Daniel King, of Montgomery House, Bournemouth.

Bryan, Major the Hon. George L., J.P., D.L.—born 1857, brother and heir presumptive of Lord Bellew. Entering the 10th Hussars he took part in the Afghan and the Nile campaigns of 1879 and 1884; retired from the Army 1898; served with the Yeomanry in the South African War 1900-01; inherited the Jenkinstown estate on the death of his uncle, whose name he assumed 1881.

Bryant, MAJOR GILBERT EDWARD, R.A.—born 1861; educated at the Catholic University, Kensington, and at Woolwich; entered Royal Artillery 1881; served in Burma 1885-87; Major 1897; commanded No. 10 Mountain Battery in Natal during the South African War.

Buchanan, Miss, M.A.—Fellow of Univ. College, London; on the Council of the proposed Catholic College for Women at Cambridge.

Buckfast, ABBOT OF (RIGHT REV. DOM ANSCHAR VONIER)born in Wurtemburg 1875; professed at Buckfast 1803; ordained 1899; subsequently engaged in teaching at Buckfast and at St Anselmo, Rome, where he took his own academical degree; consecrated Abbot 1906, being the youngest in the Order. His numerical place among the Abbots of Buckfast cannot be assigned, as not more than thirty-five names of his predecessors have been recovered. A few years ago it was believed that the Abbey dated from Canute: but the latest researches assign its foundation to St Petrock in the sixth century. Buckfast was a Benedictine Abbey in St Dunstan's time, and was canonically restored by a decree of the Abbot-General of the Cassinese Congregation of the Primitive Observance in 1902. The Abbey became Cistercian in the twelfth century by Affiliation with Clairvaux. It was colonized by Benedictines from Pierrequi-vire in 1882, being rebuilt on its ancient site, and is the only recovered Abbey of those dissolved by Henry VIII.

Buckler, Father H. Reginald, O.P.—borninLondon 1840, son of John Chessell Buckler, architect; received into the Church 1855; entered the Dominican Order 1856; ordained 1863. Author of The Perfection of Man by Charity, A Few First Principles of Religious Life, The Spiritual Retreat, and other treatises which have been most appreciated by those most fitted to form a judgement—English-speaking nuns wherever found, all the world over.

Bulfin, LIEUT.-COLONEL EDWARD STANISLAUS, Royal Welsh Fusiliers—born 1862, son of P. Bulfin, J.P., of Woodtown House, Rathfarnham, Co. Dublin; educated at Stonyhurst; joined Yorkshire Regiment, in which he became Captain 1895; Military Secretary to Sir W. Butler at the Cape during the momentous months which preceded the outbreak of the South African War; in the subsequent campaign he was Brigade-Major to General Pole-Carew in the actions at Modder River and Belmont, and was twice mentioned in despatches, receiving a Brevet Lieut.-Colonelcy 1901; since 1906 he has been Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General in the Cape Colony District; married (1897) Frances Mary, daughter of Francis William Lonergan.

Bull, Réné—born in Ireland, and educated at Clongowes Wood College; studied engineering in Paris, which he relinquished for art work in London in 1892; as war artist for Black and White he saw campaigning in Armenia, in the Turco-Greek War, and in the South African War; he was also with the expedition to the Tirah, and made the two Soudanese campaigns of the Atbara and Omdurman. A collection of his drawings, made in many lands, was exhibited in a London Gallery in 1907.

Bunbury, Captain Charles Hamilton St Pierre, Yorkshire Regiment—born 1877, eldest son of Colonel C. T. Bunbury, Rifle Brigade, and his wife, Lady Harriot, sister of 1st Marquis of Zetland; educated at Prior Park; entered Army 1898; served in the South African War 1899-1901; became Captain 1905.

Bunbury, Lady Harriot—sister of the 1st Marquis of Zetland; married (1875) Colonel Charles Bunbury, late Rifle Brigade.

Editor of The Gospel of St John and The Acts of the Apostles in the "Scripture" Series for Catholic Schools; author of articles in The Ampleforth Journal and pamphlets on Gregorian chant; composer of ecclesiastical music; Chairman of Liverpool Ecclesiastical Music Commission; Professor of Ecclesiastical Chant at Upholland and Everton Colleges.

Burke, Henry Farnham, C.V.O., F.S.A., Registrar of the Heralds' College, appointed Somerset Herald 1887, previously Rouge Croix Pursuivant of Arms—born 1859, eldest son of Sir Bernard Burke, the genealogist and herald; appointed genealogist of the Order of St Patrick 1889, and is the author of many heraldic and genealogical works; married (1885) Helena, daughter of H. Palmer, of Eccles.

Burke, ASHWORTH PETER, formerly Lieut. 1St Batt. and Captain 4th Batt. Royal Irish Regiment, and A.D.C. to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland—born 1864, second surviving son of Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King of Arms (who died 1892), and Barbara, daughter of James McEvoy, of Tobertinan, Co. Meath; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; editor of Burke's Peerage and other famous genealogical works of reference associated with the name.

Burke, SIR HENRY GEORGE, Bart., J.P. and D.L. for Co. Galway—born 1859, second son of the 3rd Baronet (created 1797, Ireland) and Lady Mary Nugent, daughter of the ninth Earl of Westmeath; educated at the Oratory School and Trinity College, Dublin (B.A. 1879); succeeded his brother in 1880 as 5th Baronet; was High Sheriff of Galway for 1883, and held a commission in 4th Batt. Connaught Rangers 1881-85.

Burke, WILLIAM ANTHONY, Barrister-at-Law—born 1866 son of Sir Thomas Burke, 3rd Baronet, of Marble Hill, and Lady Mary Nugent, daughter of the 9th Earl of Westmeath; married (1889) Coralle, daughter of Captain Power Lalor, of Long Orchard, Co. Tipperary; called to the Bar at King's Inns, Dublin, 1890.

Burke, FLEET-SURGEON HUBERT WILLIAM AUSTIN, R.N., L.R.C.P. and L.R.C.S. Edin. (1883)—born 1858, son of Major-General James Henry Burke, and Marion, daughter of Major-Gen. B. Crispin; grandson of Sir George Burke, 2nd Baronet, of Marble Hill; appointed Surgeon Royal Navy 1884, Staff-Surgeon 1896, and Fleet-Surgeon 1902; served in Chinese Waters 1900; married (1905) Miss Florence Bishop.

Burke, MRS HUBERT—Florence, daughter of William Henry BISHOP, whose second wife, Mrs Burke's step-mother, was the friend and biographer of Mrs Augustus Craven (Pauline de la Ferronnays), author of A Sister's Story. Under her parents' roof in Prince of Wales's Terrace, Mr Ruskin made one of his last semi-public appearances, when he delivered his Francesca lecture to a distinguished gathering of their friends—these including most of the leading writers of the time. Miss Bishop, whose sympathy and talent fitted her for the friendship of such moving spirits of the day, married in 1905 Fleet-Surgeon Hubert Burke.

Burke, John Butler, Physicist and Biologist—born in Ireland 1873, son of John Burke, M.D.; educated at Trinity College, Dublin (gold medallist); graduated M.A. (1900) of Trinity College, Cambridge; sometime lecturer at Mason College, Birmingham, and a Berkeley Fellow of Owens College, Manchester, Since 1905 he has written and lectured on his experiments at the Cavendish Laboratory, Cambridge, and his book The Origin of Life (published 1906) supplies new evidence to support the theory, as old as Aristotle, that the living can be produced from the non-living, a theory which is not, in Mr Butler Burke's opinion, one that, if established, need offer to the straitest orthodoxy any apprehensions.

Burke, Canon Joseph A., J.C.L.—Rector of St Patrick's, Bolton, and member of Salford Chapter.

Burke, Colonel Michael Arthur, late 7th Dragoon Guards—born 1854; educated at the Oratory School. Entering the Army, he saw active service in Egypt 1882, and became Lieut.-Colonel in 1893, when he retired; as Colonel in the Reserve of Officers, he commanded 2nd Batt. Imperial Yeomanry during the late South African War; married (1887) Monica, youngest daughter of William Gerald Walmesley, of Westwood.

Burke, Mrs W. A.—Author of The Value of Life (1896) and The Structure of Life, a companion volume of essays published two years later, to which the Rev. Dr Barry contributed a preface.

Burnand, SIR FRANCIS COWLEY-born 1836, of Huguenot descent on his father's side. From Eton he went to Trinity College, Cambridge, and, having taken his degree, prepared for the Anglican Ministry at Cuddesdon under Canon Liddon. But his reception into the Catholic Church, at the age of twenty-one, turned his thoughts for a time towards the priesthood, and he tried a vocation with the Oblates of St Charles at Bayswater under Dr (afterwards Cardinal) Manning. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1862, and began writing for the theatre and light periodical literature. The first number of Happy Thoughts appeared in Punch on June 23, 1866; it made its mark at once, and, when published separately, went through some twenty-six editions. Over a hundred and twenty plays, most of them burlesques, have come from his pen. Blackeyed Susan was one of his great stage successes, and equally popular was his version (with Sir Arthur Sullivan's music) of Morton's farce of Box and Cox. In The Colonel he proved himself the reformer of manners. Sir Frank, who had been already for many years the life and strength of Punch, accepted the editorship in 1880, retiring only in 1906, and it has been said of him that not one of his myriads of arrows of wit was ever yet poisoned. He appears as the happiest of autobiographers in My Time and What I've Done with it, and his more formal Reminiscences gained for him many friends among strangers. He has been one of the healthgivers of his day in its most widely-read literature. Sir Francis married (first) CECILIA VICTORIA RANOE; and (secondly) Mrs Paysan Jones, widow, both of whom were converts to the Church.

Burnand, Charles Hubert—born 1861, eldest son of Sir F. C. Burnand; educated at Baylis House and St Edmund's; Manager of Sir S. Scott and Co.'s Branch of Parr's Bank, Cavendish Square; married (1890) Mary Tirzah, daughter of James Nelson.

Bute, Dowager Marchioness of—Gwendoline Mary Anne Fitzalan Howard, eldest daughter of 1st Lord Howard of Glossop and his first wife Augusta, only daughter of the Hon. George Talbot, brother of the 16th Earl of Shrewsbury; married (1872) the 3rd Marquis of Bute, K.T. (who died 1900), the ceremony at the Oratory bringing together an assembly such as perhaps had not till then been seen in a Catholic church since the Reformation. Cardinal Manning performed the rite, and Mr Disraeli signed the register with a quartet of Dukes.

Bute, Marquis of (John Crichton-Stuart, Bart.)—born at Chiswick House, 1881, eldest son of John Patrick, 3rd Marquis, K.T., by the Hon. Gwendoline Howard; educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford. To be the son of a father who joined the Catholic Church when he was very young, who sat to Disraeli for Lothair, was Lord Rector of St Andrews University, several times Mayor of Cardiff, a Knight of the Thistle, and the translator of the Roman Breviary, is the greatest of the present Marquis's great inheritances. Like his father, he has travelled adventurously in the East, and has given expression to his love for Scottish nationalism, even to the kilt which, in his youth, he wore. Lord Bute married (1905) Augusta Mary Monica, younger daughter of Sir Henry Bellingham; a son (the Earl of Dumfries) being born 1907.

Butler, Lieut.-General Sir William, G.C.B.—was born at Suirvale, Co. Tipperary, son of Richard Butler. He was educated in Ireland and joined the 69th Regiment in 1858. The Red River revolt of 1870 gave him the opportunity of showing his daring as a scout, in penetrating to Fort Garry in advance of the Wolseley expedition. His subsequent command of the attempted West Akim diversion during the Ashantee War of 1873—a difficult and disheartening task which nearly cost him his life—called for rarer qualities of endurance and resolution, and was rewarded with the C.B. and promotion to Major. In 1875 he was a special service officer in Natal during the Governorship of Sir Garnet Wolseley, and four years later he was staff officer at Durban during the Zulu War, a service rewarded by a Brevet-Lieut.-Colonelcy in 1880. He served on the Headquarter Staff in Egypt during the Expedition of 1882, and in the subsequent Nile Expedition was A. A. G. for boat service, and commanded the mounted troops of the River Column, sharing in the action at Kirbekan, Feb. 1885. As Brigadier General of the Frontier Field Force, he commanded a Brigade at the battle of Ginnis, and was knighted in 1886. Four years later he became Major-General, and held successive commands at Alexandria, at Aldershot in charge of a Brigade, at Dover and at the Cape—the last a military office which he made memorable by his attempt to avert a racial war in South Africa. He commanded the Western District from 1899 until his retirement in 1905. having become Lieut.-General in 1900. His last official service was his Chairmanship of the Committee appointed by the Army Council to report upon the Sales and Refunds to contractors in South Africa; its findings boldly delivered but sought to be evaded by those to whom they were unwelcome were confirmed by subsequent enquiry. Sir William (who was married to Miss Elizabeth Thompson, the painter of "The Roll Call," by Cardinal Manning in 1877) has made his fame in the library as in the camp. His latest work. From Naboth's Vineyard, is the record of a visit paid to the scenes of the Boer War, the magnitude of which had proved him a prophet, though without honour in his own country. His story, Red Cloud, recalls especially for schoolboys the stirring adventures he himself encountered in North America: and the schoolbov must be dull if he does not find in The Great Lone Land and The Wild North Land narratives needing no gloss of fiction to add either to their own adventurousness or to the reader's wholesome delight in the record of it.

Butler, LADY (ELIZABETH THOMPSON)—was born at Lausanne, where her parents took a house during the early years of their married life, and had among their English visitors Charles Dickens. Her father, who, after leaving Cambridge, travelled widely, devoted himself to the education of his two daughters, one of them to become known as a painter, and the other (Mrs Meynell) as a writer. Florence and London saw the future artist at her specialized studies. Her first important oil-painting was a religious subject—a "Visitation of St Elizabeth," which gained an Honourable Mention at the Vatican Exhibition of 1870. This memorable year of the Vatican Council found her sending from Rome sketches to The Graphic; also water-colours to the Dudley Gallery, which Mr Tom Taylor, the critic of The Times, had the prevision to praise for a quite unusual strength of draughtsmanship. An oil-painting, "skied" in the Academy of 1873, brought her a commission which resulted in the "Roll Call." a Crimean subject. The fame achieved by this "picture of the year" at the 1874 Academy belongs to the romance of modern painting, and was sustained by the young artist in her subsequent pictures. "The Remnants of an Army" is in the Tate Gallery; "Quatre Bras" is in the National Gallery at Melbourne; "Scotland for Ever!" is in the Town Hall at Leeds; while "Steady the Drums and Fifes!" is in the possession of the regiment whose brayery it commemorates-the "Die-hards" of the Peninsular War. Of the two pictures purchased by the Queen, "Rorke's Drift" is at Windsor, and the "Roll Call " is at Buckingham Palace. In 1877—the year that the "Return from Inkerman" was exhibited at the International Exhibition in Paris-Miss Thompson married Major (now General Sir William) BUTLER. The many social duties attending her husband's commands in various parts of the world have inevitably withdrawn Lady Butler from her full activities in a field where she had that rare conjunction, the twofold homage of the public and the critic. Ruskin paid her his tribute by unsaying in her favour what he had always said, that no woman could paint; Millais quoted her drawing as a glory of the British school; and Meissonier himself did homage to her name. With the untechnical public she has her popularity, because she did for the soldier in paint what Rudyard Kipling has done for him in literature. Lady Butler made her only appearance as an author in Letters from the Holy Land, published in 1903a vivid and spontaneous record of a visit that was in truth a pilgrimage, compiled from letters written home to her mother from the Holy Places themselves, and adorned by water-colour drawings from her own brush.

Butler, Professor William F., M.A., F.R.U.I.—born in Co. Cork, son of Thomas Butler, R.M. at Mallow, and nephew of General Sir William Butler; educated at Clongowes; won Studentship in Modern Languages at the M.A. Degree Examination, R.U.I., 1894; Professor and Registrar at Queen's College, Cork. He has sat on the Home Office Committee on Judicial Statistics of 1892, as Chairman of the Home Office Committee on Inebriate Reformatories of 1898, and on the Royal Commission for considering the Treatment of the Mentally Feeble and Defective (1904).

Cafferata, Canon Henry Taylor—born at Birkenhead 1849; educated at Stonyhurst, Liège, Roulers, English College, and Grand Séminaire, Bruges; ordained 1874; first years of ministry at Market Rasen, Nottingham (Bishop's Secretary), Derby, and Retford; joined Diocese of Southwark 1888; at Mortlake 1888-93, and Southwark Cathedral 1898-1905; Rector at Sutton from 1905; was Army Chaplain at Chatham for eight years, and member of Medway Board of Guardians. Author of The Catechism Simply Explained—The Catechism for Little Children. Also many contributions to Land and Water, Fishing Gazette, etc., on his favourite pastime, fishing.

Cafferata, REDMOND—third son of Redmond Parker Cafferata, of Staunton Hill, Nottingham; nephew of Canon Cafferata; married (1900) TATIANA, second daughter of Michael DE BARTHOLOMEY, formerly Russian Minister at Washington.

Cahill, Colonel Charles John Staunton, late Indian Army—born 1838; educated at Stonyhurst; Colonel 1888; retired 1896.

Cahill, Captain Thomas Basil Staunton, M.V.O.—born 1878, son of Colonel C. J. Staunton Cahill; educated at Stonyhurst; entered Royal Munster Fusiliers 1900; created M.V.O. (5th class) 1903.

Callebert, Canon Francis—born in Belgium 1824; educated at Roulers and Douai; ordained at Ushaw; served Egton Bridge Mission 47 years; member of Middlesbrough Chapter 1881.

Cameron, Canon James—Rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Maryhill, Glasgow, and Senior Canon of Glasgow Chapter.

Cameron, Canon John—Rector of St Mary's, Beauly, and member of Aberdeen Chapter.

Cameron, Louis Duncombe—born 1866, son of R. Jewell, of Liskeard, and descended from Cameron of Lochiel (thirteenth Chief); took surname of Cameron by deed-poll 1904; educated privately and at Beaumont; correspondent of The Morning Post in the South African War, having previously represented The Times in Spain 1898-99. He founded the Celtic-Cornish Society, and is chief among revivers of the Cornish language. He married (1895) Mary, daughter of Lieut.-Col. Charles Slaughter, R.M.L.I. Author of A Modern Resurrection, The Handbook to British Military Stations Abroad, Practical Hints on Campaigning, The Image of War, A Short History of Carlism, and other books, and the editor of Armorial Cornwall.

Camilleri, Major John Mary, Indian Army—born 1865; joined 13th Bengal Infantry 1889; served in Manipur Expedition 1891, in the Chin-Lushai and Arbor Expeditions (despatches 1893), and on the North-West Indian Frontier 1897-98, when he was twice mentioned in despatches; Major 1903.

Camm, Dom Bede, O.S.B .- born at Sunbury Park, Sunbury-on-Thames, 1864, son of John Brooke Maher Camm, sometime 12th Lancers, of Burnham Grange, Bournemouth, and his wife Caroline Arden. Educated at Westminster School and Keble College, Oxford (B.A. with 2nd class Theological Honours 1887); studied at Cuddesdon for the Anglican Ministry; ordained by Bishop Thorold at Rochester 1888; curate of St Agnes's, Kennington Park, till 1890; received into the Church at Maredsous Benedictine Abbey, Belgium, 1800; clothed with Benedictine habit at Maredsous 1890, and professed 1891; studied at St Anselm's College, Rome, and ordained in the Lateran Basilica by Cardinal Parocchi 1895; since stationed at Erdington. Author of A Benedictine Martyr in England (1807)—In the Brave Days of Old (1900)—A Day in the Cloister (1900)— Blessed Sebastian Newdigate (1900)—Lives of the Blessed English Martyrs (Vol. I 1904, Vol. II 1905)-Tyburn Conferences (1906)—The Voyage of the Pax (1907).

Camm, Alfred Robert MacLean, Chamberlain of Honour to Pius X—born 1870 at Monkton Wyld, brother of Dom Bede Camm; educated at Blundell's School, Tiverton, and Worcester College, Oxford.

Camoys, LORD (RALPH FRANCIS JULIAN STONOR)-born 1884, eldest son of 4th Baron (whom he succeeded in 1897), by his wife, Jessie, daughter of Robert Russell Carew, a descendant of the Carews, of Garrivoe, Co. Cork; educated at the Oratory, Edgbaston, and at Balliol College, Oxford; is patron of one Anglican living. The Barony (created 1383, England) was in abeyance from 1426 till 1839, when it was revived in favour of Francis Stonor, of Stonor Park, M.P. for Oxford 1832-33, and subsequently a Lord-in-Waiting to Queen Victoria. The chapel at Stonor dates from 1349, and is the second oldest in England to be used continuously for Catholic worship. The Stonors have supplied to the English Court during Queen Victoria's and the present reign Lords and Ladies-in-Waiting who have been great favourites; and the Court of Rome has had a similar predilection for at least one bearer of the name.

Campbell, Father Archibald, S.J., Gaelic-speaking and Gaelic-writing Highlander—born 1850 at Ballachulish; entered the Society 1871; ordained at St Beuno's 1883; on the mission at St Joseph's, Glasgow, 1884; Rector since 1891; made missionary tour among the Gaelic-speaking Catholics of Nova Scotia 1907.

Campbell, Sir Claude Robert—born 1871, son of 3rd Baronet (created 1831, U.K.) and Esther, daughter of Charles Baynham. He succeeded his father, Sir Gilbert Edward Campbell, a convert to the Church, in 1899.

Campbell, LIEUT.-COLONEL JAMES RAMSAY, late Shropshire Light Infantry—born 1855; retired with rank of Lieut.-Colonel 1893.

Campbell, JOHN, I.L.D. of London University—born 1869; called to the Bar at the Middle Temple 1896; represented South Armagh in Parliament as Nationalist 1900-06.

Campbell, Miss Lilah Olive—born 1875, daughter of Lord Walter Campbell, granddaughter of the 8th Duke of Argyll, and niece of the Princess Louise; convert to the Church.

Campbell, WILLIAM, K.C., Dean of the Faculty of Edinburgh Advocates—born 1855, son of Robert Campbell of Skerrington, Ayrshire; educated at Ushaw, whence he matriculated at London University; took silk 1898; elected Dean of Faculty 1905—an office he was the first Catholic to hold; married (1880) ALICE, daughter of Patrick FRASER, a Senator of the College of Justice, Edinburgh.

Campden, VISCOUNT (ARTHUR EDWARD JOSEPH NOEL)—born 1884, eldest son of the Earl of Gainsborough; educated at Downside and Exeter College, Oxford; Lieut., 2nd Vol. Batt. Gloucestershire Regiment.

Canea, BISHOP OF (MOST REV. NICHOLAS DONNELLY)—born 1837, son of a Dublin merchant; educated at St Vincent's, Castleknock, and at the Irish College, Rome; first curacy at St Nicholas's, Dublin; Parish Priest of Bray since 1894, and V.G. of Dublin; appointed Bishop-Auxiliary of Dublin 1883, with the titular See of Canea. Of all the Irish hierarchy Dr Donnelly is the most interested in music; he is the author of an English translation of Haberl's Magister Choralis, and of a number of magazine and newspaper articles of musical criticism.

Canning, Thomas, J.P.—has taken an active part in the public life of Newport, Mon., having been several times Town and County Councillor of the Borough. In 1903 he was elected to represent the Borough Council on the Court of Governors of the University of Wales,

Cannon, Hon. Laurence J., Justice of the Superior Court of Quebec—born 1852; educated at Quebec and Laval University; Advocate at the Quebec Bar 1874-1904; stood as a Liberal for the Dominion Parliament 1882; Q.C. 1897; has appeared before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London as Counsel for the Province of Quebec; married (1876) AURÉLIE, daughter of J. DUMOULIN.

Capel, RIGHT REV. MGR THOMAS J., D.D.—born 1836; ordained by Cardinal Wiseman 1860; English Chaplain at Pau for some years; received the 3rd Marquis of Bute into the Church at Nice, December 24, 1868, an event which gained for him a place in the pages of Lothair as "Mgr Catesby," and once, by a slip of Disraeli's pen, under his own name. Returning to England, his sermons and doctrinal lectures delivered in London pulpits, especially in that of the old Pro-Cathedral, Kensington, made him one of the most widely popular of preachers. He was named Domestic Prelate to Pius IX 1873, and was Rector of the Catholic University College, Kensington, 1874-78, with the collapse of which his own public career in England came to an untimely end. He has since resided in California.

Capes, Frances M.—daughter of John Moore Capes, a convert whose journeys to Rome and back had their successive records in literature, and whose final resting-place was in the Church. Miss Capes, whose family has produced also Mr Bernard Capes, the well-known novelist, has devoted great energy and talents to social work, and is herself the author of A Life of St Catherine de Ricci (1905).

Carbone, Grazia-born in Buffalo, U.S.A., of Italian parentage; studied under Miss Elizabeth Cronin in the town of her birth, under Mr Santley in London, and in Berlin: sang, until the issue of the Papal restrictions in regard to Church choirs, in the Jesuit Church of New York. Since then, the "benediction" of her contralto voice has been heard in the concert-halls of America, Berlin and London, and in the principal towns of England, which she and her sister toured with Madame Adelina Patti during the autumn of 1907. The quality of Miss Carbone's voice has been compared to the note struck by the poetry of the seventeenth century-spiritual, rich and deep; while the soprano of her sister is likened to the muse of the sixteenth century, with its lighter and more purely lyrical ecstasy. Max Bruch, the great German composer, has associated her name and her sister's-Miss Carmela Carbone-with the music of religion by composing for their voices a duet entitled "The Cross": this was sung by them for the first time at the Oueen's Hall in 1907.

Carbone, HIS HONOUR SIR JOSEPH, G.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., Chief Justice of Malta—born 1839, son of B. Carbone; educated at the University of Malta (LL.D.); called to the Maltese Bar 1863; Crown Advocate 1880-95; knighted

1890; Chief Justice 1895; is President of the Court of Appeal and Vice-President of the Council of the Government of Malta; married (1872) TERESA, daughter of P. G. PORTELLI, M.D., of Malta.

Carmichael. Montgomery-born 1857, youngest son of John Carmichael, of Corosal. Having completed his education at Bonn and at Munich, he began life in commerce, but subsequently entered the Consular Service, becoming British Vice-Consul at Leghorn in 1892. He married MAUD. daughter of J.W. PARKER, the eminent publisher. He is chief among English authorities on Franciscan lore, is a member of the Accademia Properziana of Assisi, a corresponding member of the Accademia Araldica of Italy, and F.S.A. of Scotland. In 1904 the College of St Bonaventure at Quarracchi ceded to him the right of the English translation of the new critical edition of the writings of St Francis of Assisi. He contributes to several magazines and to The Saturday Review, and among the books that have come from his pen are In Tuscany, The Major-General (a Story of Modern Florence), The Lady Poverty, and John William Walshe, a romance put forth in the form of biography-in fact a personal presentment of temperament taking its place beside The Sorrows of Werther and Contarini Fleming. It stands alone among the histories of conversions, and if all roads lead to Rome, one of the roads remained unexplored until Mr Carmichael's Walshe trod it with fate-led feet.

Carmichael, Mary—born in Cheshire and educated in France, Germany and Switzerland, studying music in London and Munich. Like her brother, Mr Montgomery Carmichael, Miss Carmichael is a convert to the Church. She has won fame as an accompanist, and among numerous and various compositions of her own are a Mass in E Flat, The Frozen Heart (an operetta, with the libretto from Hans Andersen), The June Song, and The Milk Maid. Miss Carmichael has also brought a fine judgment to the editing of old English songs.

Caron, SIR JOSEPH, K.C.M.G.—born 1843 in Quebec, where his father was Lieut.-Governor of the Province, an office which he himself subsequently held; educated at Laval and McGill Universities; called to the Canadian Bar 1865; entered Dominion Parliament 1873; Privy Councillor of Canada 1880; Minister of Militia and Defence 1880-1889; knighted 1885; Canadian Postmaster-General 1892-96; married, (1867) ALICE, daughter of the Hon. François RABY.

Carr, RIGHT REV. MGR JAMES—Protonotary Apostolic, V.G. and Canon of Liverpool, Chief Diocesan Inspector of Schools, Rector of the Church of Our Lady of Compassion, Formby, from 1895; Chairman of the Liverpool Branch of the Catholic Truth Society; President of the Catholic Reformatory Association, Liverpool; Chairman of Committee Birkdale Farm Reformatory School; President of St Edward's College, Everton, 1885-95.

Carroll, Hon. Henry George, Judge of the Superior Court of Quebec—born 1865, son of M. B. Carroll; educated at St Ann's College, Quebec, and at Laval University (LL.B.); admitted to the Bar 1889; represented Kamouraska, his native town, in three Dominion Parliaments (1891, 1897 and 1900); succeeded that fine Catholic and fine lawyer, the Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, as Solicitor-General 1902; sent to the Superior Court as Justice two years later. Mr Carroll, who is President of Le Soleil Publishing Company, and a Director of the Quebec and Lake Huron Railway, married, (1891) AMAZÉLIE BOULANGER.

Carroll, JOHN—art master and examiner in drawing. Author of Freehand Drawing of Ornament, Practical Geometry for Art Students, Pattern Drawing, and The Principles and Practice of Perspective (Elementary and Advanced).

Carroll, Major John William Vincent, late Norfolk Regiment, Magistrate for Co. Kildare—born 1869, son of Frederick Maxwell Carroll, of Moone Abbey, Co. Kildare, and Mary, daughter of George Fitzgerald, of Elm Park, Co. Dublin; educated under the Right Rev. Lord Petre at Woburn Park, and at the Oratory School; entered the Army 1890; employed with the West African Field Force 1896-1901, where he acquired a name for successful dealing with native risings, being several times mentioned in despatches, and twice wounded; served at Benin 1897, and engaged in the Niger Territory 1897-98; Major 1903.

Carter, MgR JAMES—born in Sussex 1837; received into the Church 1852; Professor at St Mary's, Woolhampton, under Dr Crookall; ordained at St Edmund's, Ware, 1868; priest at Midhurst from 1877; Hon. Chamberlain to Pius IX and Private Chamberlain to Leo XIII and Pius X.

Carus, Alderman Alexander, K.S.G.

Carvill, Patrick George Hamilton, J.P. for Down and Armagh—born 1836, son of Francis Carvill, of Rosstrevor, Co. Down; called to the Bar at Middle Temple 1888; Nationalist M.P. for Newry 1892-1906; appointed member of the Court of Referees in the House of Commons 1906.

Cary, Colonel Lucius Falkland Brancaleone, late Rifle Brigade, Lord of the Manors of Tor Abbey and St Marychurch, Devon—born 1839, younger son of Henry George Cary, of Tor Abbey, and Emily, daughter of Robert Shedden, of Brooklands, Hants.; having entered the Navy, he saw service as a Midshipman with the Black Sea Fleet during the Crimean War; subsequently entered the Rifle Brigade, served as a Captain in the Ashantee Expedition of 1874, and as a Major in Burma 1886-88; became Colonel 1889, retiring in the same year; married first (1868) Bertha, daughter of Captain Winslow Phillips; secondly (1878) Louisa, daughter of Major G. Rowley.

Cary-Elwes, Valentine Dudley Henry, F.S.A., F.G.H.S.—born 1832, eldest son of Charles Cary-Elwes, of Great Billing, by his first wife Elinor, eldest daughter of Rear-Admiral Rye, of Culworth. As a Cornet in the 12th Lancers he served in the Kaffir War of 1851-53. He was received into the Church with his family in 1874. He is D.L. for Lincolnshire and J.P. for Lincolnshire, Northampton and Leicestershire, and the patron of two Anglican livings. He married, first (1856) Henrietta, daughter of Charles Lane, of Badgemore; and secondly (1865) ALICE GERALDINE (she died 1907), daughter of the Rev. the Hon. Henry Ward, Rector of Killinchy, Co. Down.

Cary-Elwes, Gervase Henry, J.P. and D.L. for Lincolnshire and J.P. for Northamptonshire—born 1866, eldest son of Valentine Dudley Henry Cary-Elwes, of Great Billing, educated at the Oratory School and Christ Church, Oxford; married (1889) Lady Winefride Feilding, daughter of the eighth Earl of Denbigh. After four years in the Diplomatic Service, Mr Gervase Cary-Elwes turned to public uses his great gifts as a musician. His beautiful voice is familiar to all London's concert-goers, especially as an interpreter of Brahms and Elgar, and he has come to be regarded—to quote the words of a critic—as "one whose efforts distinctly and decidedly advance the art of music." It has appropriately fallen to a Catholic singer to realize the ideal interpretation of "Gerontius" in the joint masterpiece of Elgar and Newman.

Cary-Elwes, Captain Windsor, late Scots Guards—born 1839, only surviving son of George Cary-Elwes, Fellow of All Souls, Oxford, who married his first cousin, Arabeila, daughter of Thomas Heneage; convert to the Church; married, 1862, Augusta, daughter of the Hon. William Towry Law.

Casault, SIR LOUIS EDELMAR N., late Chief Justice of the Superior Court of Quebec—born 1822, son of Major Louis Casault, of St Thomas's, Quebec; educated at Quebec Seminary; called to the Bar of Lower Canada 1847; became Q.C. twenty years later; Member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly 1854-58, and of the Dominion House of Commons 1867-70; Judge of the Superior Court of Quebec 1870; was Chief Justice of the same Court 1894-1904; knighted 1894; married (1870) Elmire, daughter of the Hon. John Pangman, Seignior of Lachenaie, Quebec.

Case, Captain Henry Ashton, J.P. for Gloucestershire, late 12th Lancers—born 1851, second son of John Ashton Case, of Thingwell Hall, Lancashire, and Caroline, daughter of Henry Walker, of Blythe; educated at Eton; married, first (1878) Mary, daughter of Col. W. Southey, Madras Staff Corps; secondly in Canada (1891) Alice Marston Southey.

Casey, Hon. James Joseph, C.M.G.—born 1831, son of James Casey, of Tromroe, Co. Author of a pamphlet entitled, Why I became a Catholic.

Chapman, Dom John H., O.S.B.—born 1865, son of the Ven. F. R. Chapman, Canon of Ely; educated by private tutors and at Christ Church, Oxford (M.A.); in Anglican Orders; received into the Church; professed O.S.B., at Maredsous, 1893; ordained 1895; Prior of Erdington 1901; contributor to Revue Bénédictine, Dublin Review, Journal of Theological Studies, etc. Author of Bishop Gore and the Catholic Claims (1905), and The First Eight General Councils and Infallibility. Dom Chapman's critical studies have been well rewarded. Harnack has accepted his conclusions as to the interpolation in St Cyprian's De Unitate, and he has made himself the great authority on the Condemnation of Pope Honorius, and other subjects requiring for their elucidation not merely research, but also some measure of divination. As an intervener with sweet reasonableness in a Tablet controversy. Dom Chapman seemed to one onlooker to be fulfilling the law of the poets, and realizing for us the lines of Keats:

> Yet did I never breathe the pure serene Till I heard Chapman speak out clear and bold.

Chevalier, Albert—was born in 1861, of mingled Italian, Welsh, and French extraction. He appeared in public when eight years old, and not even attendance at St Charles's College, North Kensington (Cardinal Manning's own foundation, who hated the stage) destroyed his ambition for the boards. He was for many years an actor before the music-hall claimed him as the popular impersonator of the "coster." He is the hero of 1001 Queen's Hall regitals, and since leaving the music-hall stage has been in great request as a private entertainer.

Chevallier-Tayler, A.—an early disciple and master of the Newlyn School of Painting. His first Academy success was "The Last Blessing"—a priest standing by a deathbed in a Cornish fisherman's cottage. It was shown during the last May of Cardinal Manning's life, and his own last blessing of admiration was given to it. Paris crowned that canvas a year later; and, in the midst of his great success, the artist's reception into the Church showed how much sincerity and sense of renunciation he had brought to its delineation. A commission from the Fine Art Society took him, shortly afterwards, to Boulogne to paint the Blessing of the Boats. His portrait of the Countess of Annesley won for him honour in another department; but he remains best known by the painting of those interiors, with exquisite cross-lights and reflections, that were the note of the Newlyn painters. After leaving Cornwall and settling in London, Mr Chevallier-Tayler only exchanged old lights for new in his Academy picture of 1900 of a group of girl First Communicants at the Altar, and again in a High Mass subject contributed to the Academy of 1898, the accessories being easily recognized by those familiar with the Brompton Oratory. This picture, which was bought by the Walker Gallery of Liverpool, was equalled in 1907 by the presentment of a newly received Child of Mary kneeling in the Lady Chapel of St James's Church, Spanish Place, a work of devout feeling and fine technique. A fresco painting by this artist forms one of the famous panels of the Royal Exchange. Mr Chevallier-Tayler, who is a member of the Royal Society of British Artists and of the Society of Oil Painters, married (in 1895) Mrs Cotes, daughter of the late eminent surgeon, Mr Allingham, of Grosvenor Street.

The late Sir Charles Clifford, who was created a Baronet in 1887, was Speaker of the New Zealand House of Representatives 1853-60, and one of the railway pioneers of the Colony. As a mark of his fidelity to old ties, it may be mentioned that Sir George Clifford has called his residence at Canterbury, New Zealand, "Stonyhurst." He has been thrice married—first to Mary, daughter of Sir John Lawson, Bart.; secondly to Miss Janet Burnett, of Nelson, New Zealand; and in 1891 to Helena, daughter of the Rev. J. Dennis.

Clifford, CHARLES WILLIAM, J.P. for Shropshire—born 1854, third son of Sir Charles Clifford, 1st Baronet; married (1892) SICELE AGNES, daughter of Sir H. DE TRAFFORD, 2nd Baronet.

Clifford, Hugh, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary of Ceylon, and a brilliant bookman—was born in London 1866, the eldest son of a distinguished soldier, the Hon. Sir Henry Clifford, V.C., who married Josephine, daughter of J. Anstice, His school days were passed at Woburn under Lord Petre, and at the age of twenty he entered the Malay States Civil Service, becoming our Resident at Pahang nine years later. In 1900 he resigned the Governorship of North Borneo. owing to his disapproval of the Chartered Company's policy, and he returned to his old post at Pahang, having been created C.M.G. for his services. A four years' tenure of the Colonial Secretaryship of Trinidad preceded his present appointment in 1907. He married MINNA, daughter of Gilbert A'BECKETT (she died 1907). Among the books with which Mr Clifford has delighted the public in his unofficial moments are In Court and Kampong, Studies in Brown Humanity, A Corner of Asia, Bush-Whacking, and A Free Lance of To-Day. He is one of our chief authorities on the Malay language, and is joint compiler of a Malay Dictionary with Sir Frank Swettenham.

Clifford, Captain Henry Frederick, Suffolk Regiment—born 1867, second son of General the Hon. Sir Henry Hugh Clifford, remembered as one of the earliest wearers of the Victoria Cross; educated by the Right Rev. Lord Petre at Woburn School; entered Army 1887; Captain 1897; A.D.C. to Genl. Sir W. F. Butler at the Cape and at Devonport; served in late South African War.

Clifton, BISHOP OF (RIGHT REV. GEORGE AMBROSE BURTON) -born 1852: educated at Ratcliffe College, whence he matriculated at London University, and where he later became Professor of Classics; spent some time at Domodossola, the historic house of the Institute of Charity in Northern Italy, alive with memories of the great Rosmini. Here the future Bishop composed Italian verse that elicited from Tommaseo, the Florentine man-of-letters, the compliment that he could not himself have written his native verse with an equal skill. In 1887 he composed a Jubilee Ode, the Latinity of which delighted Cardinal Newman, while in 1901 he offered to Leo XIII in private audience a poem on St Mary Magdalene, which convinced the Holy Father that Latin hexameters could still be written in the "gelid North," wintered though it be from "sunning song." After a stay at Ratcliffe College, which he left for Ushaw to become a secular priest, he passed to the English College, Rome, where he took his Doctor's degree, Returning after ordination, he was in turn assistant-priest at St Mary's Cathedral, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and at St Bede's. South Shields, where he continued his labours as Rector for ten years. He was consecrated in 1902, the Bishop of a See in which even the eminence of his two predecessors. Dr Clifford and Dr Brownlow, suffered no diminution. Like them, Bishop Burton has a remarkable store of antiquarian and historical learning, and adds a special skill in the deciphering of old Roman inscriptions. His honour, courage and learning as a controversialist were well displayed in the letter he wrote to the Bristol press, when an Anglican Bishop attacked the Pastoral of the Catholic Bishops that based polemical claims for St Peter on the number of old English dedications of churches to him; and in lighter literary mood he is seen as the arbiter elegantiarum in his introduction to the reprint of Bishop de Bury's Love of Books.

Crawford. FRANCIS MARION-was born in Tuscany of American parentage in 1854. He was educated in America and at Trinity College, Cambridge, completing his studies, after an interval of travel, at the Roman University. He spent four years in the East as a journalist, and edited The Indian Herald at Allahabad 1879-80. Two years later he published his first novel, Mr Isaacs. More than thirty novels have since come from his pen, and include such favourites in two hemispheres as A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, A Roman Singer, Sant' Ilario, The Witch of Prague, Viâ Crucis, Casa Braccio, Marietta, a Maid of Venice: The Heart of Rome, and Whosoever shall Offend. In Ave Roma Immortalis he is the reviver of old historical memories for modern pilgrims. Mr Crawford, who was received into the Catholic Church in 1894, has lectured in Brooklyn and elsewhere on his favourite subject of "Pope Leo XIII in the Vatican." Of the intricacies of the politics and life of Rome, that most cosmopolitan of cities, Mr Crawford (by profession an observer of men and an analyser of motive) knows more, perhaps, than any other living American. Writing in 1897 to his distinguished fellow man of letters, Professor Maurice F. Egan, he refers to certain criticisms made by those who object to the introduction of "bad Catholics" in two of his novels. Mr Crawford said: "The stories in both books are literally true. . . . In Casa Braccio I meant to show the effect of crime in successive generations. . . I need not say that what hurt me most was the accusation that I had turned against the Catholic Church, than which nothing could be more impossible for a man so profoundly convinced as I am."

Crawford, MRS VIRGINIA MARY—daughter of Thomas Eustace Smith, M.P., of Gosforth Park, Newcastle-on-Tyne; as Poor Law Guardian for St Marylebone, she has been a most active member of the Catholic Guardians Association, and an untiring worker in the cause of Poor Law reform; in the interests of the Catholic Emigration Society, she has personally visited the Canadian settlements of exiled, but hardly exiled, English and Irish children. Mrs Crawford, who is an accomplished journalist and a contributor of literary articles to The Fortnightly and other reviews, has written on social and economic subjects in The Economic Journal, and is the author of Philanthropy and Wage-Paying (1901). A little book on Fra Angelico (1900) and a volume of essays, Studies in Foreign Literature, by no means complete the list of her literary activities.

Darnell, Major William Nicholas, late York and Lancaster Regiment—born 1845 at Bamburgh, where his father, the Rev. Nicholas Darnell, M.A., was a Vicar whose "High" practices gained him a more than local fame. His mother's father was the well-known and well-endowed Archdeacon Thorp. Educated at Winchester, he entered the Army, from which he retired as Major in 1883, then becoming an official of the Local Government Service, as Governor of Chelmsford Military Prison, and subsequently as Inspector of Prisons. He served on the Military Prison Committee of 1899. Major Darnell is a convert to the Church (as was also his uncle, Father Nicholas Darnell), and he married (in 1871) Jean, daughter of Alexander Smith, C.E.

Daunt, Achilles Thomas, J.P. for Co. Cork—born 1849, only son of William Joseph O'Neill Daunt, of Kilcascan Castle, Co. Cork, who was M.P. for Mallow 1832-33; married (1877) Anna, daughter of Bartholomew Corballis, and niece of John R. Corballis, Q.C., of Rosemount, Co. Dublin.

Davey, RICHARD—one of the many Catholics who fill conspicuous places in the literary life of London, where he is known as a journalist of unusually varied gifts, a musical and dramatic critic, and a specialist in French and Italian politics and literature. Descended from a Norfolk family, and on his mother's side a Boyle, he was born in 1848, was educated abroad, and had a literary apprenticeship in New York. Settling later in London, he became a contributor to The Morning Post, Saturday Review and The Times, which he at one time represented in Constantinople. The persecution in France has shown Mr Davey a skilful exponent of the Church's case in the Fortnightly, National, Saturday, and other reviews. In his off-moments an artist, who has exhibited at Burlington House and the New Gallery, he is also author of novels and works of history, and of plays, one of which, Inheritance, produced in America in 1893, had a run of 1,500 nights. In 1907 he married Miss DEN-MAN, a granddaughter of the Lord Chief Justice of that name.

Davidson, Colonel William Leslie, C.B., late Royal Horse Artillery, J.P. for Kincardine—born 1850, son of Davies, Canon Henry B.—born 1831; ordained 1856; served at Oscott, Wolverhampton and Brewood; retired 1905.

Davies-Cooke, Lieut. Aubrey G.K., 10th Hussars—born 1873, only son of late Major James Robert Davies-Cooke, R.A., who was a convert to the Church, and who married Clara Louisa, only child of John Webb; educated at the Oratory School, Edgbaston, Birmingham; and entered Army in 1900.

d'Avigliano, Duchess (Lady Emily Pelham Clinton)—born 1863, second daughter of the 6th Duke of Newcastle, by Henrietta, daughter of H. T. Hope, of Deepdene; married (1882) Prince Alphonso Doria Pamphili, Duke d'Avigliano.

Davis, Val., artist—born 1854; educated at St Francis Xavier's College, Liverpool; studied art under his father, William Davis, and under Ford Madox Brown; first exhibited at the Academy in 1875; his work has also been welcomed by the New and Glasgow International Galleries, and at Munich. He is a member of the Royal Society of British Artists, and a governing member of the Langham Society.

Davis, Lucien, artist—born at Liverpool 1860, son of an artist; received early education (with his brother, Mr Val Davis, also a distinguished painter) at St Francis Xavier's, Liverpool; gained (in 1877) a studentship at the Royal Academy, and has since constantly contributed to the exhibitions at Burlington House. Mr Davis, who is a member of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water-colours, has worked in black-and-white for the Illustrated London News and other papers, and one of his water-colour drawings received the honour of purchase by Queen Victoria.

Dawson, Rev. Thomas, O.M.I.—born 1850; educated by the Brothers of St Patrick, Tullow, Co. Carlow, and by the Oblates of Mary Imm. at Sicklinghall, Yorks, and Autun, France; entered Novitiate at Stillorgan, Dublin, 1867; ordained 1873; served missions at Sicklinghall, Liverpool, Rock Ferry, Inchicore, Kilburn, Colwyn Bay, Holyhead. Father Dawson edited for three years The Missionary Record O.M.I., and, fine critic and writer as he is, he has made many other editors happy by his contributions to their pages.

Day, RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN CHARLES, late Judge of the High Court of Justice (King's Bench Division)-born 1826. son of Captain John Day, 49th Regiment, of Englishbatch, Somerset, and his wife Emily, daughter of J. C. Deasy, Captain Henry—born in Dublin 1866, only surviving son of the Right Hon. Richard Deasy, Lord Justice of Appeal in Ireland; joined 16th Lancers 1888, retiring in 1897; he began his explorations in Western Tibet in 1896, and gained the Geographical Society's gold medal in 1900 for three years' survey work, which included the mapping of a region eleven thousand square miles in area, and the altitudinizing of some three hundred mountain peaks. A book has made record of his travels in Tibet and Chinese Turkestan. Captain Deasy has latterly become familiar to the public as a motor-car expert and record-breaker, one of his feats being a twenty-one hours' journey from London to Glasgow in a Rochet-Sneider car. He married (in 1901) Dolores, youngest daughter of Colonel J. F. Hickie, of Slevoyre, Co. Tipperary.

de Bless, Alfred Herewyt—born 1866; educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge (M.A. and LL.M.); Barrister-at-Law of Inner Temple; served in the Diplomatic Service; married (1895) MAUD ELINOR, only daughter of V. Cary-Elwes, D.L., of Billing and Brigg.

Like his famous father, Mr Edwin de Lisle is interested in all theological and liturgical questions. He has published critical studies of the Royal Declaration and a Comparison between the History of the Church and the Prophecies of the Apocalypse, and was joint author and editor of the Life and Letters of his father.

Dell, ROBERT EDWARD, journalist, keen master of polemics and "candid friend"—born 1865, son of the Rev. Robert Dell, Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and Vicar of South Baddesley, Hants.; educated at University College, Oxford (B.A.); received into the Church 1897; editor of Weekly Register 1899-1900, and New Era 1900; later, held in turn the editorships of The Connoisseur and The Burlington Magazine; and is now a picture-dealer in Paris.

de Mattos, ALEXANDER TEIXEIRA—born in Holland 1865; educated at Beaumont and under Monsignor Capel, matriculating at London University; was dramatic critic to The Sun, London correspondent of various Dutch papers, and held for a year the editorship of The Candid Friend; was secretary of the Independent Theatre, and has translated and edited many books and plays from Flemish, French and Dutch originals; married (1900) Lily, daughter of William Armit Lees, and widow of Mr William Wilde.

de Mattos, Rev. Richard—born 1877; educated at Wimbledon College and St Andrews University; ordained by Bishop Brindle at Nottingham 1904; Assistant-priest at Lincoln. Father de Mattos, who is a convert to the Church, is a descendant of the Stevensons, of light-house building fame, his great-grandfather having built the Bell Lighthouse on the Inchcape Rock, associated in English poetry with the charity of a Benedictine Abbot. He has, moreover, an illustrious kinship with Robert Louis Stevenson, whose letter to Mr Hyde put the lovers of Father Damien and English literature under a deep debt. To Mrs Katherine de Mattos—the mother of Father de Mattos—"R.L.S." (her first cousin) wrote the dedication of Jekyll and Hyde.

Dempster, Major Thomas Carroll, late 28th (North Glo'ster) Regiment—son of Thomas Dempster, of Prior Park, Clonmel, Tipperary; married 1880 Alice, third daughter of Richard Walmesley, of Pilgrim's Hall, Essex.

de Murrieta, Cristobal—born 1838, third son of Don Cristobal de Murrieta y del Mello, of Santurce, Spain, who married Carmen del Campo y Urrutia, of Madrid. With his brothers he founded the London banking-house of de Murrieta, whose collapse, after a career of resplendent prosperity, is still a memory in the City and a regret to a larger circle than is touched by most of the catastrophes of commerce. The de Murrietas (who have been "Señores" of Biscaya from time immemorial, and whose tombs are to be seen in Burgos Cathedral) became prominent in London as munificent entertainers, King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales, being a frequent week-end visitor at Wadhurst Park, their Sussex country-house. The friendship between their family and the King was the occasion of his first attendance at the Brompton Oratory, when he was present in de Murrieta, Francis—son of Mariano de Murrieta; educated under Lord Petre at Woburn; is a keen sportsman, who is also a lover of literature and the arts.

De Navarro, Mrs (Miss Mary Anderson)-born in California 1850, of German and English descent; educated by the Ursulines at Louisville, U.S.A., who helped to confirm in her the seriousness and graciousness of character she did not leave behind her at the stage-door. Her first appearance in London was made in 1883, her chief successes being as Juliet, and as the Galatea of W. S. Gilbert's Pygmalion. A little later, in the dual rôles of Hermione and Perdita she achieved her greatest triumph. She left the English stage in 1888, in the height of her popularity, and in the following year married Mr Antonio DE NAVARRO, and then forsook altogether (to use her own phrase) the "rush and excitement of public life"; nor have the most flattering offers tempted her away from the quietude of the Court Farm, near to the old-world Worcestershire village of Broadway. Her beautiful voice has, however, been heard once or twice for the benefit of Father Bernard Vaughan's East-end charities. Mrs De Navarro is the author of a book of reminiscences, published in 1896, in which she has much to say about the men and women of her acquaintance in England and America-Longfellow, Tennyson, Aubrey de Vere, Newman and Manning among the rest.

Denbigh, EARL OF (RUDOLPH ROBERT BASIL FEILDING, C.V.O., Count of the Holy Roman Empire)-born at Downing, Holywell, 1859, son of 8th Earl and his wife, Mary, daughter of Robert Berkeley, of Spetchley; educated at Oscott; joined Royal Artillery 1878, and served as a Captain in the Egyptian campaign of 1882, writing home letters so graphic in their frankness that they found their way into The Tablet. He was A.D.C. to Lord Londonderry during his Vice-royalty of Ireland 1887-89, and contested Rugby as a Conservative 1889. He served on the London County Council 1896-98, and went as Special Envoy to Rome at Pope Leo's Jubilee 1902. Lord Denbigh, who attended Queen Victoria and King Edward successively as a Lord-in-Waiting during eight years, married in 1884 CECILIA, daughter of the 8th Lord Clifford of Chudleigh. He received from Leo XIII the Grand Cross of the Order of Christ, and has devoted himself to the furtherance of many good works, following the example of his father, of whom Cardinal Manning said: "Narrowly as I have watched the Earl's course for thirty-five years. I have never detected the slightest swerving from the path of duty." The Earl thus praised joined the Church in 1850, together with his first wife—an event of which the existence of a Capuchin church and monastery at Pantasaph is one of the memorials. It is not only his name and honours that were inherited by the present Earl from his admirable father. He, too, has been an unswerving duty-doer; he, too, has been a "Catholic first and an Englishman afterwards" in the fit sense of the phrase; and, in addition to such activities as those implied by his command of the Honourable Artillery Company and his presidency of the Catholic Association, he has been the persistent pioneer of what may eventually prove to be a profitable home-industry—the growing of beet for sugar-making on English soil.

Dennehy, MAJOR-GENERAL SIR THOMAS, K.C.I.E.—born 1829, son of J. Dennehy, of Brooke Lodge, Co. Cork; joined Indian Army and served in the Sonthal Campaign of 1855, and in the Indian Mutiny; Political Agent at Dholepore 1879-85; retired as Colonel Bengal Staff Corps 1885; Extra Groom-in-Waiting to the Princess of Wales in 1888, to Queen Victoria 1888-1901, and to King Edward VII from 1901; knighted 1896.

Dennehy, WILLIAM—born at Newtown, Cashel; editor of The Irish Catholic and of the Dublin Daily Independent, and author of a work of brilliant polemics, entitled The Story of the Union told by its Plotters. As a Governor of the Royal Dublin Hospital for Incurables, Mr Dennehy has put into practice that interest in social amelioration which it has been one of the glories of contemporary journalism to arouse in the public mind.

de Paravicini, Baroness (wife of Baron de Paravicini, Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford), is a convert to the Church and the author of a standard Life of St Edmund of Abingdon (1898).

De Piro, Marquis de (Giuseppe Lorenzo VI), Knight of Malta, C.M.G., Chamberlain to the Holy Father—born Malta 1858, only son of Colonel the Marquis de Piro, C.M.G., commanding Malta Fencible Artillery, who married the Marchesa Adelaide Testaferrata; educated at Stonyhurst and Malta University; was Hon. Sec. of the Committee of Privileges of the Maltese Nobility, and is Lieut.-Col. commanding 1st Batt. Royal Malta Regiment; married (1891) Giorgina, daughter of Carmelo Galea, of Malta, Apostolic Syndic of the Vittoriosa Capuchins. The De Piro Marquisate was created in 1742 by Philip V of Spain.

Depiro-D'Amico, CAPTAIN IGINO, Liverpool Regiment—born 1874 in Malta; Lieut. 1898, and Captain 1902; served in the South African War; married (1901) the Marchesi Mary Nicolina, sister of the Marquis of Gnien is-Sultan, of Malta.

de Poix, Edmond Marie Tyrel, J.P. for Norfolk and Suffolk—born 1846, son of Jean Baptiste Tyrel de Poix, of Argyle Road, Kensington; married (first) Jessie, daughter of General Alexander Smith, M.D., C.B.; and (secondly) Eugenie, daughter of Charles D. Pemberton, of Cleveland Terrace, W.

Dering, Mrs—Rebecca Dulcibella, only daughter of Abraham Edward Orpen; married (first) 1867 Marmion Edward Ferrers, J.P., D.L., of Baddesley-Clinton, and secondly (1885) Edward Heneage Dering, who wrote The Lady of Raven's Combe and other works, and was a convert to the Church.

d'Erlanger, BARONESS RAPHAEL—MARIE CAROLA FRAN-CISKA, daughter of Sir Rowland BLENNERHASSETT, 4th Bart.; widow of Baron Raphael d'Erlanger, who died 1907; is on Executive Committee and Council of Catholic College for Women at Cambridge (1907).

de Ruvigny and Raineval, MARQUIS (MELVILLE AMADEUS HENRY DOUGLAS DE RUVIGNY, Knight of the Order of Charles III of Spain)—born in London 1868, son of the 8th Marquis—a French creation of 1651—and his wife. Margaret Melville, daughter of George Moodie, of Cocklaw, N.B.: succeeded his father as 9th Marquis and the head of an ancient Huguenot family in 1883; he is also a French Baron, Viscount and Count. The Marquis, who held for four years the Presidency of the Legitimist League, is the compiler of the Legitimist Kalendar, and the author of a number of genealogical works, notably The Blood Royal of Britain, and The Plantagenet Roll (the first volumes of a series which, when complete, will name and show the Royal descents of all who have legitimately in their veins the blood of the Plantagenet Kings), and histories of the peerages conferred by James II (for which he consulted the Stuart papers at Windsor Castle), and of several Scots families. He was received into the Church by Father Maturin in 1902. The Marquis married in 1893 Miss Rose GAMINARA, of Tumaco.

Despard, MRS CHARLOTTE—born 1844, daughter of Captain French, R.N., of Ripple Vale, Kent. General Sir John French has thus the honour of being her brother. Mrs Despard has been devoted to public, philanthropic, and social work for a decade of years, serving on the Clapham and Wandsworth and the Lambeth Boards of Guardians.

In furtherance of her desire to benefit the poor—among whom she dwells at Nine Elms-by the improvement of social conditions—a consummation she considers only to be gained by the removal of illogical sex disqualification imposed on women as voters—Mrs Despard has been one of the leaders of the so-called "Suffragette" agitation, and took her ashes on Ash Wednesday, 1907, by heading a procession of women to the House of Commons to present a petition to the Prime Minister, an act which led to her arrest and a fortnight's imprisonment. Belonging to a religion which teaches that salvation came into the world by a woman, and believing that Catholic dogma fails of its mission if it is not vitalized in daily life, Mrs Despard adds principle to expediency in her advocacy of votes for women; and it is perhaps for this reason, no less than for her appealing personality, that she is accorded the loudest-indeed the lovingest—greetings at the meetings at which she appears.

Dublin. Archbishop of (Most Rev. William Walsh, D.D.). -was born in Dublin 1841, and was educated at St Laurence O'Toole's Seminary, Dublin, at the Catholic University and at Maynooth. Here he became a Professor after ordination, and, in 1880, succeeded Dr Russell as President. Having been inducted in the Dublin Chapter in 1879, he acted as Vicar Capitular of the Diocese in 1885, being consecrated in that year as successor to Cardinal McCabe in the Primacy of Ireland. His Grace, who has taken a very active part in the public life of Ireland, has sat on many Government Boards and Commissions, especially those dealing with education. He was consulted in the framing of the Land Acts—especially those of 1881-82; and has been the life-long friend of the Nationalist Movement, from which his predecessors, Cardinals McCabe and Cullen, held aloof, As a writer of wide range, he has contributed largely and effectively to the discussion of questions affecting his Catholic countrymen. He was a pioneer in arousing the public conscience to the shortcomings of Irish University Education—a question on which his views were first given to the public in book form in 1890.

Duckett, Canon Richard, D.D., Member of Northampton Chapter—educated at Douai—one of the founders of the Douai Society; Rector of St John's, Norwich, opened in 1894 through the munificence of the Duke of Norfolk, and one of the largest churches erected in England since the Reformation.

Duffy, WILLIAM, M.P.—born 1865; has represented South Galway as a Nationalist since 1900. He is an active Celtic Language revivalist of many years' standing, and was one of the original members of the United Irish League Executive.

Duggan, E. P.—Member of Catholic Education Council, J.P. for Bradford, Member of Secondary Education Council until dissolution.

Dundas, LADY CHARLOTTE—fourth daughter of the Hon. Charles Dundas, sometime M.P. for Richmond, Yorks., and Lord Lieut. of Orkney and Zetland, by his wife Margaret, daughter of James Talbot, of Maryville, Co. Wexford; and sister of 1st Marquis of Zetland.

Dundas, LADY ALICE—youngest daughter of the Hon. Charles Dundas, M.P., and sister of 1st Marquis of Zetland. Dunedin (New Zealand), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. MICHAEL VERDON)—consecrated 1896.

Dunford, Valentine, K.S.G.—Hon. Sec. of the Catholic Association, which he has helped to make a power for good both on the social and the public side of its organization. In addition to his Knighthood of St Gregory, Mr Dunford is the holder of the Cross "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" conferred on him by Leo XIII on the occasion of the Association's "Jubilee" Pilgrimage to Rome in 1901, which owed much to his powers of organization. With Mr Dunford as Secretary, and Lord Denbigh and Father Bannin as its President and Chairman, the Catholic Association has grown in popularity and usefulness.

Dunkeld, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. ANGUS MACFARLANE, D.D.)—born at Lochaber, Inverness-shire, 1843; had a Roman training and was ordained 1868. His priestly career was mainly spent in the West of Scotland, where he enjoyed a varied missionary experience of over thirty years, becoming a Canon of Glasgow in 1890 and V.G. nine years later, He also held the rectorship of the Diocesan Seminary. In 1901 he succeeded Archbishop James Smith in the See of Dunkeld on His Grace's translation to St Andrews and Edinburgh, and was consecrated at Dundee.

Dunlop, Archibald Claude, K.S.G., J.P., M.A.—born 1859, son of George Dunlop, for many years Chairman of the Southampton Conservative Association; educated at Harrow and Magdalen College, Oxford (M.A.); received into the Church 1879; first local President of the Society of St Vincent de Paul; J.P. for Southampton from 1893—the first Catholic so serving in Southampton since the Reformation; Member of the Catholic Education Council, and Vice-President of the Portsmouth Diocesan Voluntary Schools Association; late President of the Southampton Chamber of Commerce; created Knight of St Gregory by Pius X 1904.

Dunn, Archibald J., Architect, J.P. for Co. Durham—born 1832, son of Mathias Dunn, of Wylam-on-Tyne; educated at Stonyhurst; formed with the late J. Dunn the architectural partnership of Dunn and Hansom, whose buildings are to be found up and down the country. The monastery and college extensions at Downside, the buildings of modern Stonyhurst, St Dominic's, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the admired church at Cambridge built for Mrs Lyne-Stephens, are but few of many similarly noteworthy architectural landmarks. In spite of all the work done at home,

Mr Dunn was able to wander at will abroad, and the fruits of his travel are given in his Notes and Sketches of an Architect, illustrated by facsimiles of his own drawings (1886), and in Mexico and her Resources, a pamphlet (1889). He married in (1862) SARA, daughter of Hugh Clayton Armstrong, of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Dunn, Mrs Archibald—Sara H., daughter of Hugh Clayton Armstrong of Newcastle-on-Tyne, in which city Mrs Dunn did devoted services to the poor after her conversion to the Church and her marriage with the eminent architect, Her first book, The World's Highway (1894), was a record of travel undertaken with her husband along the track of many travellers and in the wake of many ships. It was followed in 1898 by Sunny Memories of an Indian Winter (of which a second edition appeared in 1900), and, finally, by The Land of the Rosary (1904), a series of admirable studies made in the Holy Land, whither she travelled as one of a private party of pilgrims which included Bishop Chadwick of Hexham and Newcastle.

Dunn, Archibald, jun.—born 1864, son of Archibald Dunn, educated at Stonyhurst; formerly practised as an architect. Author of Handbook to Bridge, the earliest published exposition of the game (1900), and The Way of Cain (a volume in "The Sportsman's Library of Fiction").

Dunn, Christopher, J.P.—born in Co. Cork; educated at Clongowes; President of the Cork Chamber of Commerce and Shipping; Vice-President of the Clongowes Union; Ex-President of the Cork Literary and Scientific Association; elected a Governor of the Munster Agricultural Institute 1901; Vice-Chairman of Machinery Section at the Cork Exhibition 1902; Ex-High Sheriff of Cork; author of Machinery and the Masses.

Dunn, RIGHT REV. EDMUND, Prefect-Apostolic of Labuan and North Borneo.

Dunn, Canon Joseph—born 1852; educated at Ushaw (whence he matriculated at London University), and at Rome; ordained 1875, and gave the first ten years of priestly life to North Shields and to Newcastle Cathedral. Having succeeded to the charge of St Michael's, Newcastle-on-Tyne, in 1885, he steered the mission through the periods of infancy into the possession of its vigorous life, carrying through, in 1891, the building of its present church.

Dunn, WILLIAM—second son of George Dunn, of Bath House, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and 79 Harley Street, W.; married (1893) Jane, younger daughter of Edward Lead-BITTER, of The Spital, Hexham.

Dunn, MGR THOMAS—born 1870, third son of George Dunn, of Bath House, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and subsequently 79 Harley Street; educated at Beaumont (1880-87), St Thomas's Seminary, Hammersmith (1887-90), and Rome (1890-94); matriculated at London Univ. 1887; ordained by Cardinal Vaughan 1893. As a member of Cardinal Vaughan's personal staff (1894-1903), he did much work in connexion with Westminster Cathedral. Without withdrawing from the service of the Cardinal, he undertook, in 1897; the chaplaincy of the Visitation Convent at Harrow. This he resigned in 1905; and as his connexion with the Archiepiscopal Curia had practically ceased on Cardinal Vaughan's death, he accepted charge of the mission at Staines in 1906. He became a Cameriere Segreto in 1895, and Canon of Westminster in 1902.

Dunn, SIR WILLIAM HENRY, Sheriff of the City of London—son of John Quinn Dunn, of I John Street, Pall Mall; elected Sheriff 1906; representative of Bishopsgate Ward in the Court of Common Council; knighted 1907.

Dunne, Captain John J.—born in Queen's County 1837; educated at Clongowes and abroad; entered Army and served during the New Zealand Wars of the 'Sixties; a lover of outdoor sport and athletic exercises all his life, excelling as a Master of Fox Hounds, a racquet-player, a boxer and a shot. He married (1859) Isabel George-Bynon, and is the father of "George Egerton."

Dunne, COLONEL WALTER ALPHONSUS, C.B., late Army Service Corps—born in Dublin 1853; educated at Queen's University; joined the old Army Control Department 1873; saw service in the Kaffir and Zulu Wars; was mentioned in despatches and nearly obtained the Victoria Cross as one of the Rorke's Drift heroes 1879; mentioned in despatches of the Boer War of 1881; took part in the Tel-el-Kebir Campaign and Suakim Expedition; D.A.A.G. of Southern District 1892-95, and A.A.G. of the N.E. District, at York. 1897-99; A.A.G. in Quartermaster-General's Department 1900-05; Director of Supplies and Transport at Gibraltar 1905; married (1885) WINIFRED, daughter of John BIRD, C.M.G., of Natal. Outside his profession, Colonel Dunne has been active in various public undertakings. While stationed at York he made an ideal President of the York Catholic Association, and in London he has been among the supporters of the Catholic Soldiers' Club in Buckingham Palace Road.

Dunne, Colonel William, C.B., late Army Service Corpsborn 1855, son of Jeremiah Dunne, J.P., of Aghavoe House, Queen's Co.; educated at Carlow Lay College; joined the late Army Control Department 1875; served in Bechuanaland 1884-85; was in charge of the Reserve Supply Depot at Woolwich Dockyard during the South African War—a service recognized by the award of a C.B. in 1902. He retired in 1903.

Dwane, Canon Michael—educated at Oscott; appointed first priest at Lynford, Norfolk, 1882; member of Northampton Chapter.

Dwyer, RIGHT REV. PATRICK V.—Bishop Coadjutor for Maitland, New South Wales; consecrated 1897.

Dziewicki, MICHAEL HENRY, Man of Letters—by birth a Pole, but educated in England; spent eight years with the Jesuits at Pau—two as a novice, three as a student of philosophy, and three as a teacher in their colleges; contributor to The Quarterly Review, The Outlook, Nineteenth Century, Blackwood, and other periodicals. Mr Dziewicki, whose mastery of English is complete, has translated from the French that fascinating autobiography of a Carmelite Nun known as The Little Flower of Jesus, and he is the author of a novel, Entombed in Flesh.

Earle, Mrs (Ethel Coxon)—author of Monsieur Love and Within Bounds.

Eastwick, Mrs Egerton—Mary E., youngest daughter of Captain E. Bunbury Nott, R.N.; married (1894) Robert William Egerton Eastwick, sometime Sheriff of Singapore, and member of a family distinguished by its association with British rule in the East. Mrs Eastwick, who is a convert to the Church, is the author of Beyond These Voices, and other stories of talent, dealing sincerely and gravely with life's problems.

Eaton, Hubert Francis Joseph, J.P. for Rutland and Northamptonshire—born 1864, first son of Charles Ormston Eaton, J.P., of Tolethorpe Hall, Stamford; educated at the Oratory School and Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A.); was High Sheriff of Rutlandshire for 1906; married (1894) Evelyn Mary, daughter of George A. Campbell, of Brackley, Northampton.

Eaton, REV. ROBERT ORMSTON, Headmaster of St Philip's Grammar School Birmingham, and Secretary of the Conference of Catholic Colleges—born 1866, second son of Charles Ormston Eaton, J.P., of Tolethorpe Hall; educated at the Oratory School, Birmingham; B.A. London Univ.; ordained 1891; member of the Birmingham Oratory.

Author of A Hundred Readings for the Sick—The Yoke of Christ—Night Thoughts for the Sick—A Book of Oratorios and several contributions to the biographical series of the Catholic Truth Society.

Eck, DR VINCENT F., K.S.G. (1901), Private Chamberlain to Leo XIII 1901.

Eden, COLONEL WILLIAM THOMAS, late Indian Army—born 1838; Major Bombay Staff Corps 1878; retired as Colonel 1882; convert to the Church.

Edmonstoune-Cranstoun, Charles Joseph, J.P. and D.L. for Lanarkshire—born 1877, eldest son of Charles Edmonstoune-Cranstoun, of Corehouse, who married Edith Mary, daughter of Charles E. Jerningham, of Painswick, Gloucestershire; educated at the Oratory School and Christ Church, Oxford (B.A.)

Edwardes, George—the well-known impressario of musical comedy and theatrical manager. A marriage in his family was noted in The Tablet (April, 1907) in the following terms: "Engagements occasionally make strange disarrangements of family creeds. Lord Chancellor Cairns was an Evangelical Churchman of the most approved Exeter Hall pattern; but now the marriage of one of his grandsons (Mr Arthur Sherbrooke) is to be celebrated in St James's Church, Spanish Place, the bride being Dorothy, daughter of Mr George Edwardes."

Egan, Rev. J. Erkenwald, O.S.B., Prior-Administrator of St Augustine's Abbey, Ramsgate—born at Bedford 1856; educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate, and St Ambrose's, Rome; ordained priest in Benedictine Order (Cassinese Congregation) 1883; Rector of St Augustine's College since 1887; Member of Ramsgate Education Committee; Poor Law Guardian; President of Thanet Athletic League; Vice-President of Football, Cricket and Angling Societies.

Egan, Dr Maurice Francis, American Minister to Denmark from 1907, known to English readers as a man of letters—was born at Philadelphia in 1852, and graduated at La Salle College and Georgetown University. After devoting several years to Catholic and secular journalism, he was in 1888 appointed Professor of English Literature at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, and seven years later he went to occupy the same chair in the Catholic University of America at Washington. His published works of fiction, poetry and literary criticism, include Songs and Sonnets,—A Garden of Roses—Preludes—The Life Around Us—Lectures on English Literature—Studies in Literature—A Marriage of Reason and That Lover of Mine, besides several popular books for boys. His work, whether in prose or verse, is marked by an unfailing grace of feeling and diction. He has "the striding heart" and the "light and sweetness" that do but add to his power in polemics.

Egerton, John Marjoribanks, Private Chamberlain to the Holy Father—born 1858, eldest son of Philip Henry Egerton by Mary, daughter of Sir William Marjoribanks, and Bart; educated at Cheltenham College, at Keble College, Oxford (M.A. 1884) and at Ely Theo. College; sometime in Anglican Orders and Rector of Rode; received into the Church 1894; added name of Marjoribanks; married (1899) MAUD GERALDINE MARY, daughter of William Chambers, of Dover.

Egerton, REGINALD A., C.B.—born 1850, son of Major-General Caledon Richard Egerton; entered General Post Office 1868; served as second Private Secretary to Mr Henry Cecil Raikes, Postmaster-General (1886-1891); Surveyor at the G.P.O. 1892-97; appointed Secretary to the General Post Office in Ireland 1897. Mr Egerton, who was received into the Church in 1878, was created C.B. in 1904 in recognition of his efficient services to the Post Office. He married (in 1877) MARGARET, daughter of the Hon. John BAKER, of Adelaide.

Egerton, LIEUT. WILFRID ALLAN, R.N.—born 1881, son of Reginald Egerton, C.B., educated at the Oratory School; became Midshipman 1897; served at the Cape during the South African War.

Egerton, Ruth—daughter of Philip Henry Egerton, I.C.S.: received into the Church at Florence 1896; translator of Some Detects in Popular Devotions, a pastoral by Bishop Bonomelli, of Cremona, who addressed to her a letter in the course of which he said: "I do not imagine that serious. intelligent English Protestants cannot distinguish between the divine, unalterable element in the Church and that which is human and frail in practice; nor that they do not perceive that an institution depending upon and existing among men is destined, by the very nature of things, to acquire with the course of time certain excrescences, which, though not affecting its actual substance, alter and occasionally disfigure its aspects. This cannot escape the notice of the English Protestants who travel in Catholic countries. But it is also right that they should know that we also see and condemn exaggerations, abuses, littlenesses and superstitions; and if need be, know how to face unpopularity by speaking out freely and with severity." Miss Egerton has contributed to The Catholic World and other periodicals.

Egger, Father Joseph, S.J.—has devoted his pen to such practical works as Consolations of the Sick Room—The Devout Guide for Catholics in Service—a manual most helpful to the large class of women servants who can invoke St Zita as one of themselves.

Elgar, SIR EDWARD—was born at Broadheath, Worcestershire, the son of W. H. Elgar, organist. Settled near Worcester as a Professor, he became, in that city, organist and choir-master at St George's Catholic Church, and was there received into the Church. He subsequently composed and taught music at Malvern. His Caractacus and Sea Pictures were performed at the Leeds and Norwich Festivals respectively of 1898 and 1899; and his Dream of Gerontius was produced at the Birmingham Festival of 1900. This masterpiece, hailed immediately as the finest oratorio written by an English pen, after having been performed in Düsseldorf and America, was heard in London for the first time at Westminster Cathedral in 1903, under the batôn of the composer. A second oratorio, The Apostles, was produced at Birmingham during the same year, and in 1904 a unique compliment was paid to the composer by the Elgar Festival at the Royal Opera—the first occasion on which an English composer has been honoured with a festival of his own works during his lifetime. Sir Edward, who was knighted in 1904, is a Mus. Doc. of Cambridge, Oxford, Durham, and Yale.

Ellis, Guy—born 1856, son of Alfred Ellis, of The Brand, Leicestershire; educated at Uppingham School; admitted a Solicitor; has given much zealous and trained service to the Association for the Propagation of the Faith; held commissions in Leicestershire Rifles and 3rd Middlesex Art. Vol.; married EDITH, daughter of Captain W. PEARCE-SERCCOLD, 66th Regiment.

Elphin, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. JOHN CLANCY, D.D.)—born 1856, a native of Co. Sligo; educated at the Marist School at Sligo, at Summer Hill College, and at Maynooth; Professor at the Sligo Seminary 1883-87, and at Maynooth 1887-95; consecrated Bishop of Elphin 1895 in succession to Dr Gilhooly. The Diocese covers a large portion of Roscommon, Sligo and Galway.

Emery, Very Rev. Aloysius, O.C.—Provincial of the Anglo-Irish Province of the Rosminian Fathers of Charity from 1906.

Emery, FATHER JOSEPH, O.M.I., D.D., Rector of the University of Ottawa—born in the Province of Quebec 1855; educated at St Joseph's College (now the University of Ottawa); ordained priest of the Cong. of O.M.I. 1881; missionary in Western Canada 1881-84; laboured in the United States from 1884 to 1901, when he was appointed Rector of the Ottawa University, which is under the direction of the Oblate Fathers. In 1903, the third year of his rectorship, the University was almost completely destroyed by fire, and had to deplore the loss of its library of thirty thousand volumes. The replenishing of those shelves is a task to which Father Emery has set his determined hand.

Emly, LORD (GASTON WILLIAM MONSELL, D.L. for Limerick)-born 1858, son of the 1st Baron, P.C., and his second wife, Berthe, daughter of Comte de Montigny, of Boulainvilliers: educated at Stonyhurst: appointed Gentleman Usher to Earl Spencer, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 1881, and succeeded his father in the peerage 1894 (created 1874. U.K.) Lord Emly began a new chapter in the family politics by representing Labour and Nationalist interests as a County Councillor for one of the divisions of Limerick, where his property lies. He married (1881) Frances DE LA POER, daughter of Count DE LA POER, of Gurteen. Since the loss of their only son, there is no heir to the Barony, Lord Emly's father (a convert to the Church and a close friend of Newman) was a peer of the creation of Mr Gladstone, in whose Government he was Postmaster General. That was before Mr Gladstone's conversion to Home Rule, a policy that had no sympathy from the late Lord Emly. His son is sometimes described as the only native Nationalist peer; and in 1899 he was deprived of the Commission of the Peace for certain rhetorical expressions, which brought some of the approved rhetoric of Ulster in reply. He is the owner of the Chateau de Drouilly, Montoire, France.

Emmaus, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. the Hon. ALGERNON C. STANLEY)-born 1843, fourth son of 2nd Lord Stanley of Alderley: educated at Harrow, Rugby, and Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A.); formerly Anglican incumbent of Holy Cross Church, N.W.; having become a Catholic, he studied in Rome, where he was ordained; nominated Dom. Prel, to Leo XIII and Protonotary Apostolic; attached to St James's, Spanish Place, 1883-93, subsequently settling in Rome for a further ten years. After his consecration there he returned to London for a year as Bishop-Auxiliary to Cardinal Vaughan; but since 1904 he has again been resident in the Eternal City. The Bishop is a nephew of Dean Stanley, the famous Broad Churchman, to whom Disraeli wittily remarked "No dogmas, no Deans"; and of Miss Mary Stanley, a convert to the Catholic Church, who devoted her life to the love and service of the poor. Of the Bishop's brothers, the late Lord Stanley became a Mohammedan and the present peer is the great opponent of Catholic education. The Bishop is, moreover, the uncle of Earl Russell, whose quarrel with Christian marriage-laws is well known. The talents of the Stanleys are conspicuous, and the vagaries from which various members of the family have not been saved by their wits, lend a further interest to the recurrence of one of their number to the ancient ways of orthodoxy. During his former residence in Rome Mgr Stanley acted now and again as "Vatican correspondent" of The Times.

Encombe, VISCOUNT (JOHN SCOTT)—born 1899, only son of John, Viscount Encombe (a convert to the Church in 1897) and the Hon. Mary Fraser, daughter of the fifteenth Lord Lovat; grandson and heir of the Earl of Eldon and lineal descendant of the famous Lord Chancellor, whom it is interesting in this connexion to recall as the most stubborn opponent of Emancipation.

Encombe, VISCOUNTESS—HON. MARY LAURA FRASER, daughter of 15th Baron Lovat; born 1869; married (1898) Viscount Encombe, who died 1900.

Engledow, Charles J., J.P., a convert to the Church—born 1860, son of the Rev. W. H. Engledow; educated at Cambridge; formerly A.D.C. to the Governor of the Windward Islands and a Captain in the Barbados Militia; High Sheriff of Co. Carlow for 1893; represented North Kildare as a Home Ruler 1895-1900, and subsequently settled down to country life, with large interests in agriculture, horsebreeding and sport. Mr Engledow married (in 1883) Jeanie, daughter of William Hepburn, J.P., of Clonard House, Belfast.

English, MgR EDGAR, D.D.—educated at Prior Park; Rector of Fairford since 1896.

Erdington, Abbot of (Right Rev. Dom Ansgar Höckel-Mann, O.S.B.)—born in Germany 1862; ordained 1886; consecrated in 1900 first Abbot of Erdington, where the Benedictine community settled in 1876 from Beuron, from which they had been driven by the Kulturkampf. Erdington was erected into an Abbey by Leo XIII in 1896.

Errington, Lady—Mary, only daughter of Baron de Talleyrand; married (1841) Sir John Stanley, 12th Bart. (who took the name of Errington 1876), on whose death, in 1893, the Baronetcy (creation: Stanley, of Hooton, in Cheshire, 1661) became extinct.

Errington, SIR GEORGE, Bart.—born at Rockfield, Co. Dublin, 1839, eldest son of Michael Errington, of Clintz, Yorkshire, and The Casino, Dublin, by Rosanna, daughter of Ambrose More O'Ferrall, of Balyna; nephew of Archbishop George Errington, who died in 1885; educated at Ushaw and the Catholic University, Dublin; represented Co. Longford in Parliament as a Home Ruler 1874-85; was sent to Rome by Mr Gladstone in the early 'eighties on "a mission that was not a mission "to inform the Vatican on the subject of the Nationalist movement in Ireland; created a Baronet 1885; High Sheriff of Tipperary for 1888, and of Wexford for 1901; married (1892) Frances, daughter of H. R. De Ricci, and widow of Captain John Shuldham, of Moigh, Co. Longford. The family represented by Sir George is a branch of the Northumberland Erringtons, and was long settled near Richmond, in Yorkshire.

Errington, WILLIAM VALENTINE, J.P. and D.L. for Northumberland—born 1865, only surviving son of John Errington, of High Warden, and his third wife Gertrude, youngest daughter of Thomas Riddell, of Felton Park; married (1886) ADELAIDE, daughter of Sir James Duke, 1st Bart. Mr Errington's ancestor, Nicholas Errington, who was seated at Errington, Northumberland, in 1570, was the common ancestor of the Erringtons of Beaufront and the Erringtons of Walwick Grange.

Erskine, Hon. Stuart R., Gaelic and English man of letters—born 1869, second son of 5th Baron Erskine; received into the Church 1904; married first (1891) Muriel, daughter of Major-General G. Irving-Graham, and secondly (1902) Maria Guadalupe Zaara, only daughter of Joseph Heaven, of the Forest of Birse, Aberdeen, and of the Marchesa de Braceras. Mr Erskine is one of the most devoted of Gaelic revivalists, and has compiled an excellent Catholic prayer-book for Scottish Gaels under the title Lochran an Anma.

Esmonde, Sir Thomas Grattan, Bart., M.P., Private Chamberlain to the Holy Father, Chief Whip of the Irish Parliamentary Party—born at Pau 1862, eldest son of 10th Baronet (created 1628) by Louisa, daughter of Henry Grattan, of Tinnehinch, Co. Wicklow, and granddaughter of the Right Hon. Henry Grattan; educated at Oscott; succeeded his father 1876; held commission in Waterford Artillery Militia for five years; High Sheriff of Co. Waterford for 1887; J.P. for Co. Wexford and Chairman of the County Council; Director of the National Bank; sits for N. Wexford, having previously represented S. Dublin Co. (1885-92) and W. Kerry (1892-1900). Sir Thomas, who has now had nearly the longest unbroken Parliamentary career of any man of his years in the House of Commons, presented Leo XIII, on behalf of the Irish Parliamentary Party, with an address of congratulation on his Silver Jubilee in 1902. He married (in 1891) ALICE, daughter of Patrick DONOVAN, of Frogmore, Tralee.

Esmonde, Major Laurence Grattan—born 1863, second son of Sir John Esmonde, 10th Bart.; educated at Oscott; called to the Bar at King's Inns, Dublin, 1890; holds a Major's commission in the Waterford Artillery Militia, Euan-Smith, Colonel Sir Charles Bean, K.C.B., C.S.I.—born 1842; entered Indian Army 1859; served in the Abyssinian and Afghan Wars; became Colonel 1885, retired 1889, and was knighted 1890; Consul-General at Zanzibar 1890; H.M. Envoy and Minister at Tangier 1891-93, and President at Bogota 1898-99. Sir Charles, who is a pioneer in the commercial development of wireless telegraphy, is a convert to the Church, as is also his wife, Edith, daughter of General F. Alexander. To him it was that (as Lady Dufferin relates in her Viceregal Life) a Hindoo began a highly complimentary letter "Honoured Enormity."

Euan-Smith, Lady—Edith, daughter of General F. Alexander; married (1877) Colonel Sir Charles Bean Euan-Smith; received into the Church 1898. Composer of A Benediction Service as Sung at Farm Street Church—Hymns by Father Faber and Others (set to music)—Mass Hymns by Father Thomas Seed, S.J. (set to music).

Eugénie. THE EMPRESS (Eugénie Marie de Guzman, Countess-Duchess of Téba)—born 1826, daughter of Count de Montijos, of Spain, and Donna Maria Manuela Kirkpatrick, of the Closeburn family; married (1853) Charles Louis Napoleon BUONAPARTE, Emperor of the French, the splendour of whose court her own beauty enhanced, and whose exile at Camden House, Chislehurst, she devotedly shared. Few chapters of Queen Victoria's history are more attractive than that which records the affectionate friendship she offered to the ex-Empress of the French, who, in her turn, gave to England her only son, slain in Zululand under conditions too painful to call for repetition. Her Majesty purchased, in 1881, the Farnborough Hill estate, becoming the munificent founder of Farnborough Church and Abbey, where a community of Benedictines from Solesmes are in charge. The Empress is the godmother of Queen Victoria Eugénie of Spain, in whose upbringing she has taken an affectionate sympathy that has met with abundant reward. It is interesting to note that the Empress—whose rule as a Queen of Sorrows over English sympathies is undisputed—has made a confession about the cost of her dresses at the Tuileries. Only four times did this lady, on whose extravagance her enemies have dwelt, expend more than £40 upon a gown.

Evans, Rev. Herbert Myddleton-late Anglican Vicar of St Michael's, Shoreditch; having been received into the Church, he studied at the Beda College, and was ordained at San Silvestro, Rome, by Archbishop Seton of Heliopolis, 1904. Author of a pamphlet, Why I left St Michael's, published in 1903, and also, in July of that year, of a letter to The Times on the occasion of the Bishop of London's public allusion to the "unauthorized services" which had been conducted at St Michael's, Shoreditch. "Having now changed my religious obedience," wrote Father Evans "I am most unwilling to interfere in the affairs of the Anglican Church, Still I would ask you, in fairness to myself, to give publicity to the fact that again and again I offered to give up every practice to which the Bishop objected, if only he on his side would publicly pronounce that the doctrines in question—for instance, those of the Real Presence, the Invocation of Saints, etc., were part of the faith of the Church of England. I added that if His Lordship were to condemn publicly these doctrines. I would at once resign my benefice. With me it was doctrine throughout. and not practice, that was in question." Father Evans has been in charge of the Melior Street Mission, Bermondsey, since 1907.

Evans, Walter Henry, J.P. for Warwickshire and County Alderman—born 1855, only son of James Evans, of Aston Manor, Warwickshire; married (1880) SARAH ANNE, daughter of H. Barnes, of Poole, Dorset.

Evanturel, Hon. Alfred, Speaker of the Ontario House of Assembly—born at Quebec 1849, son of Hon. F. Evanturel, Canadian Minister of Agriculture; educated at Quebec Seminary and Laval (LL.D.); called to the Bar; sat for Prescott County in the Provincial Parliament for eighteen years; twice elected Speaker of the Ontario Legislature; was Hon. Commissioner for the Dominion at the Paris Exposition of 1900.

Mr Fairfax-Cholmeley, when he left Oxford, engaged in "settlement" work, and was the occasion of an often-quoted saying indicative of some oldfashioned feeling in face of new manners: "Oh, he's not exactly apostatised, but he's gone to live in the East End!" In 1904 he joined a committee pledged to Social Reform. which included Messrs L. T. Hobhouse, C. F. Masterman. and J. A. Hobson. Like Mr Wilfrid Blunt and other Catholic landowners, Mr Fairfax-Cholmeley has done pioneer work in Rural Housing Reform, and proved by his experiments at Brandsby that a labourer's cottage can be erected for £150, and let at a rental of £6 or £7 a year.

Fairlie, James Ogilvie Reginald, Chamberlain to the Holy Father, J.P. for Fifeshire—born 1848, third son of John Ogilvie Fairlie, J.P., D.L., of Coodham, Ayrshire; educated at Christ Church, Oxford (B.A.); received into the Church 1876; nominated Private Chamberlain to Leo XIII 1878; married (1880) Mary, daughter of John Buchanan, of Dowanhill.

Fawkes, Rev. Alfred—born at Edinburgh 1850; educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford (B.A.); sometime Anglican curate at St Bartholomew's, Brighton; joined the Church 1876; ordained in 1881, and spent ten years in the London Oratory, where he had his first fame among Catholics as a preacher. In The Sacred Heart and other Sermons (1894), we have a little book which revealed to a larger audience than that accessible to him in the pulpit a thinker with a note of his own in the statement of religious truths.

As a general writer, Father Fawkes has earned high appreciation at the hands of outside editors, including those of The Edinburgh Review and other leading periodicals.

Fegen, Rear-Admiral Frederick Fogarty, R.N., M.V.O., J.P. for Co. Tipperary—born 1855, son of Captain Frederick J. Fegen, R.H., C.B. (a convert to the Church), who married Mary, daughter and heiress of Magrath Fogarty, of Ballinlonty, Co. Tipperary; educated at Oscott; entered Navy 1870; served with the Naval Brigade in the Nile Expedition of 1884-85, and in Burma in 1885; specially promoted for gallantry in 1887, when he engaged an Arab lave dhow off the coast of Zanzibar with a pinnace's crew, and captured it after hand-to-hand fighting; Captain 1895, and Rear-Admiral ten years later; married (1888) at the London Oratory, Catherine, daughter of Jordan Crewse.

Ferns, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. James Browne, D.D.)—born 1842, son of Nicholas Browne, of Mayglass, Co. Wexford; educated at St Peter's College, Wexford, and at Maynooth; his priestly career was passed as Curate and Parish Priest in the Diocese of Ferns, of which he was consecrated Bishop in 1884, succeeding Dr Warren. The Diocese covers almost the whole of Wexford and part of Wicklow.

Ferrers, Henry Ferrers—born 1848, eldest son of Captain Boydell Croxon, of Erway, Shropshire, who married Constance, daughter of Edward Ferrers, of Baddesley-Clinton; on the death of his uncle Marmion E. Ferrers, J.P., D.L., of Baddesley-Clinton, in 1884, he took the name of Ferrers; married (1879) Beatrice, eldest daughter of the Hon. Arthur Petre, of Coptfold Hall. Baddesley-Clinton is one of the oldest specimens of the fortified manor-house to be found in England, and contains that secret everybody is now proud to publish—a priest's hiding-place.

Ffrench, LORD (CHARLES AUSTIN FFRENCH, Bart.)—born 1868, son of 5th Baron Ffrench (created 1798, Ireland) by Catherine, daughter of John O'Shaughnessy, of Birch Grove, Galway. Having been educated at Clongowes Wood Coilege and Trinity College, Dublin, he was called to the Bar, and succeeded his father in the peerage in 1893. He married in the previous year MARY, daughter of Matthew CORBALLY, of Rathbeale Hall, Swords, Co. Dublin. The Barony was created in favour of a lady because of George III's reluctance to break a long-established rule against granting a title to a Catholic; and as Lady Ffrench was, nominally at least, a Protestant, the King conferred a Barony upon her in recognition of her son's services, to which the son should succeed.

ffrench, Miss Kathleen Emily Alexandra—born 1865, only child of Robert Percy ffrench, of Monival Castle.

Fitzgerald, Percy, most prolific of all living writers—was born in 1834, the son of Thomas Fitzgerald, M.P., of Fane Valley, Co. Louth, by Maria, daughter of John Dillon, of Mount Dillon. From Stonyhurst he went to Trinity College, Dublin, graduating as M.A., and in 1855 he was called to the Irish Bar. He worked in old days as a "special" at Rome and in Holland for his friend Charles Dickens, and represented The Daily News at Hamburg. Ever since his School Days at Saxonhurst (a book of bright boyish adventure), Mr Fitzgerald has displayed an amazing faculty of book-production. As he has publicly "accused himself" of over two hundred volumes, including novels, books of travel, memoirs, books of devotion, biographies and essays, the list may well be held too long for insertion here. His first novel, Never Forgotten, appeared in 1865, and his "Lives" include popular memoirs of Charles Lamb, David Garrick. the Kembles, George IV and William IV. In his Fifty Years of Catholic Life and Progress (1901), Mr Fitzgerald, like Madame Belloc in her Flowing Tide, frankly proclaims himself an optimist as to the Church's progress in England. He is President of the Dickens Fellowship, and has lectured at the Royal Institution. He married (1859) the Hon. Dorcas L. Foster-Skeffington (who died 1876), daughter of 10th Viscount Massareene, Catholics, in particular, owe a debt of gratitude to Mr Percy Fitzgerald for the delightful "Jewel" series, including Jewels of the Mass, Death Jewels and Eucharistic Jewels.

The old mansion, pulled down in 1861, contained many priests' hiding-places. John Hornyold, Vicar Apostolic of the Midlands 1752-78, was a member of the family.

Gandolfi, Marquis (Ralph Vincent Gandolfi Hornyold)—born 1881, 2nd son of the first and brother of the present Duke Gandolfi; served as Lieut. in the 5th Batt. Worcestershire Regiment; was created Marquis Gandolfi in Italy by brief of Leo XIII in 1899, with remainder to his male issue.

Gandolfi, Duchess—Maria Teresa Luisa, daughter of Marshal Cabrera, Count de Morella and Marquis de Ter of Spain; widow of 1st Duke Gandolfi; Lady Grand Cross of Royal Order of Teresa of Bavaria.

Gandy, MGR CHARLES E.—priest at Chideock Manor and chaplain to Mr Humphrey Weld when High Sheriff of Dorset 1907; named in that year Private Chamberlain to Pius X.

Gannon, JOHN PATRICK, M.R.I.A., J.P. for Co. Kildare-born 1856, eldest son of Nicholas John Gannon, of Laragh, Co. Kildare; educated at Clongowes; on the Council of the Society for Preserving the Irish Language.

Gardner, Edmund Garratt, author—born 1869, eldest son of John Gardner of the Stock Exchange, and grandson of Samuel Garratt, the well-known Evangelical; educated at Beaumont and Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge (M.A.), Mr Gardner is one of the best-known living authorities, outside Italy, on Dante and other poets of that nation. His work has received the Apostolic Blessing of Leo XIII and Pius X. He has been much engaged in research in Italian archives, but is now abandoning history to devote himself to the study of mysticism. A writer of fine scholar-ship and literary quality, he wears his learning lightly in his delightful handbooks to cities of Italy. He is author also of Dante's Ten Heavens—A Dante Primer—The Story of Florence—Dante and Giovanni del Virgilio (with the Rev. P. H. Wicksteed)—Desiderio (a novel of the Renaissance)—Dukes and Poets in Ferrara—The King of Court Poets—and Saint Catherine of Siena.

Garnett, Herbert, J.P. for Norfolk—born 1843, fourth son of Robert Garnett, J.P., of Moor Hall, Sutton Coldfield, by his wife, Ellen, daughter of Robert Peel Willock, of Manchester;married (1880) his cousin Julia, daughter of Charles Garnett, of the Manor House, Ashley-de-la-Zouche, formerly of Bonehill House, Staffs.

Garnett, Captain Henry Percy, late 32nd Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry—born 1853, sixth son of Robert Garnett, J.P., of Moor Hall, Sutton Coldfield; convert; brother of Father Edmund Peel Garnett, B.A., of the Oratory; married at the London Oratory (1881) Mary Beatrice, daughter of Joseph Richardson.

Garnett, Lieut. Herbert Neville, R.N.—born 1875, third son of Colonel Frederick Willock Garnett, of Easton Lodge, Norfolk, and Chateau l'Echappe, Dinan; educated for the Navy; attained rank of Lieutenant 1896; married (1900)Miss ETHEL MILDRED HOOKE, of Norton Hall, Worcestershire.

Garratt, William, M.A., K.C.S.G., Chamberlain of the Holy House of Loretto—second son of William Garratt, of St John's, Fulham; formerly engaged in Anglican missionary work in India; received into the Church 1884; married at Rome (1895) Maria Francesca, daughter of Signor Mariano Bucci, of Manziana. His work on Loretto, the New Nazareth—devotional rather than critical—was in part the occasion of his receiving the decoration of K.C.S.G. from Leo XIII in 1898. He is the author also of The History of the Holy Name.

Garvin, James Louis, journalist—was born in Newcastleon-Tyne of an English father and an Irish mother. He began his journalistic career on the Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, and was a leader-writer on the Newcastle Daily Chronicle (then under the proprietorship of Mr Joseph Cowen) from 1894 to 1899. In the latter year he joined the staff of the London Daily Telegraph, representing that paper at the Delhi Durbar in 1902, and on other great occasions. Since 1896 Mr Garvin has constantly influenced opinion by articles in The Fortnightly and other reviews, generally under the pseudonym of "Calchas." His Telegraph articles on fiscal reform were republished with the imprimatur of Mr Chamberlain, who ranked the popular attribution of them to himself as among his greatest honours; and in his early fiscal campaigning he had in Mr Garvin an ever-present helper. He held the editorship of The Outlook 1905-06. Polemics have deprived the world of creative and critical literature of a rare votary in Mr J. L. Garvin.

Gasquet, Right Rev. Francis Aidan, D.D., O.S.B. (Abbot President of the English Benedictines), historian—was born in London 1846, son of Raymond Gasquet, M.D. He was educated at Downside, which he later ruled as Prior (1878-85), having been ordained in 1874. In 1896 he was appointed a member of Leo XIII's Commission on Anglican Orders, and in the following year he was the recipient of a Brief from that Pontiff (dated 17 March, 1897). As a writer Abbot Gasquet has won a generally conceded supremacy as the authority on Pre-Reformation Monasticism in England; and among the works which have gained him his preeminence as an historian are: Monastic Lite in England. Henry VIII and the English Monasteries, The Eve of the Reformation, The Old English Bible, A Sketch of Monastic Constitutional History, The Last Abbot of Glastonbury and Edward VI and the Book of Common Prayer (in collaboration with Mr Edmund Bishop). He is known also as the editor of Montalembert's Monks of the West, Lord Acton's Letters, and other works; and quite recently he has been appointed President of the Commission formed to examine the text of the Vulgate Bible and to collect material for amending it.

Gatard, Dom Augustine, O.S.B.—Member of the Pontifical Commission on Gregorian Music appointed by Pius X (1904); exponent of the Solesmes method of the Gregorian chant, on which he is lecturer in the Southwark Diocesan Seminary.

Gately, Stephen, J.P. for Birmingham, Solicitor—Poor Law Guardian for Birmingham; Diocesan Treasurer Assoc. for the Propagation of the Faith.

Gates, FATHER SEBASTIAN B., O.P.—received into the Church at an early age; joined the English Province O.P.; designer of decorations in the church of St Dominic, Newcastle-on-Tyne; exhibitor at the Royal Academy and other galleries; a connoisseur of music, brasswork, and Brussels point-lace.

Gatty, Charles Tindall, F.S.A.—son of Rev. Alfred Gatty, D.D., Vicar of Ecclesfield, by Margaret, daughter of the Rev. Dr Scott; educated at the Charterhouse; convert to the Church; Curator of the Liverpool Museum for twelve years; Private Secretary to John, Lord Bute, for two years; edited in 1891 a paper started by Lord Wolverton at Yeovil; Home Rule candidate for West Dorset 1892; appointed second secretary to Mr T. E. Ellis, Chief Ministerial Whip, 1894; Supervisor of the Irish Art Companions, founded in Dublin 1903; co-Editor of Arundel Hymns.

Gavan-Duffy. Hon. John-born in Dublin 1844, eldest son of Sir Charles Gavan-Duffy, Speaker of the Victorian Legislative Assembly; educated at Stonyhurst and Melbourne University; called to the Australian Bar; entered the Victoria House of Assembly 1874; Minister of Lands and Agriculture 1880; Postmaster-General in two Victorian Governments; Attorney-General 1892; Senior Victorian representative elected to the Federal Council of Australasia 1893; represented Victoria in the chief Australian Postal Conferences, and of Australasia at the Universal Postal Congress at Washington 1897; married Miss MAR-GARET CALLAN. A jest made by Mr John Gavan-Duffy was quoted in the Press at the visit of Mr Deakin (who served an apprenticeship with the pen) and the other Premiers to London in 1907. "My dear Syme," Mr Duffy had said to the proprietor of The Melbourne Age, " you ought to have something more than a Deakin on your staff-you ought to have a Bishop." "Why?" asked the astonished proprietor, "Oh, because your statements stand in need of confirmation."

Gavan-Duffy, Charles, C.M.G., Clerk of the Australian House of Representatives—born in Co. Dublin 1855, third son of Sir Charles Gavan-Duffy; educated at Stonyhurst and Melbourne University; Private Secretary to the Premier of Victoria 1871-72; Assistant Secretary to the Federal Convention at Melbourne 1898, and Assistant Clerk of the Melbourne Senate 1901; married Ella, daughter of Hon. Alan McLean, of Victoria.

Gavin, FATHER MICHAEL, S.J.—born in Limerick 1843; educated at Castleknock, near Dublin, and Stonyhurst; entered Novitiate S.J. at Sant' Andrea, Rome, 1864; ordained 1877; taught Dogmatic Theology at St Beuno's 1878-81; author of The Sacrifice of the Mass and The Decay of Faith; Director (since 1882) of the Farm Street Sodality, which has 260 members, the witness of an untiring zeal.

Geraldtown (Western Australia), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. WILLIAM KELLY)—consecrated 1898.

Gerard, Lord (Frederic John Gerard, Bart.)—born 1883, son of the 2nd Baron (created 1876, U.K.), and his wife Mary, daughter of Henry Milner, of West Retford; educated at Ratcliffe College: holds a commission in the Reval Horse Guards, having previously served with the Lancashire Hussars Imperial Yeomanry, a regiment originally drawn from the Lancashire estates of the family, of which his father and grandfather were both Lieutenant-Colonels commanding; succeeded his father 1902; married (1906) his first cousin May, daughter of the late Sir Martin Gosselin, K.C.V.O., Minister at Lisbon, of Blakesware, Herts (who married the Hon. Katherine Gerard). Lord Gerard is the premier Catholic Baronet, and one of the premier Baronets of England, his patent of creation bearing date of the first day of the institution of the Order. The family, which has lived through stormy days in its religious history, supplied two names to the English martyrology-Father Miles Gerard and Father Edmund Arrowsmith, whose hand, a revered and famous local relic, is still preserved at Garswood, the family seat in Lancashire.

Gerard, Captain Frederic, Magistrate for Warwickshire and Worcestershire—born 1839, eldest son of Frederic Sewallis Gerard, J.P., D.L., of Aspull House, Lancashire, and his wife Ann, daughter of Rev. Thomas Wilkinson, Vicar of Kirkhallam; formerly Captain 23rd Regiment; married (1869) Catharine, youngest daughter of Charles Porter, of The Mythe, Tewkesbury.

Gerard, Father John, S.J.—born 1849, eldest son of Colonel Archibald Gerard, J.P., D.L., of Rochsoles, N.B., and brother of the late General Sir Montague Gerard. Father Gerard has given an account of his parents' spiritual progress to Catholicism in Miss J. M. Stone's Memoir of Eleanor Leslie. Educated at Stonyhurst, where, later, he was Prefect of Studies (1879-93); Provincial English Province S.J. 1897-1900; twice held the editorship of The Month, to which he himself has been the most industrious and valued of contributors; Fellow of the Linnean Society. As a controversial champion, Father Gerard has wielded a forcible and a candid pen. To his fairness, indeed, Mr Andrew Lang, a good specimen himself of men of letters in this particular, has publicly testified. Author of Stonyhurst College: a Centenary Record—What was the Gunbowder Plot?—A Course of Religion for Catholic Youth—The Old Riddle and its Newest Answer, and a vast number of slighter, but always salient, contributions to current religious and scientific discussions.

Gerard, Dorothea (Madame Longard)—daughter of Colonel Archibald Gerard, of Rochsoles, and wife of Field-Marshal Julius Longard de Longgarde, of the Austrian Imperial Service; collaborated in early novels with her sister Emily, who died in 1905. The first volume to give her an independent fame was Lady Baby, published in 1888, and followed by A Queen of Curds and Cream, Orthodox, The Rich Miss Riddell, An Arranged Marriage, Angela's Lover, A Spotless Reputation, Things that have Happened, The Eternal Woman, The Three Essentials, The Improbable Idol, The Compromise, and other favourites. Madame Longard's novels have been praised for careful writing, and for philosophic insight, and sane reflection, on contemporary life and manners.

Gerard-Dicconson, Hon. Robert Joseph—born 1857, second son of 1st Lord Gerard; was Captain 3rd Batt. Royal LancasterRegiment 1882-88; married (1888) Eleanor daughter of W. Murray, of Rosemount, Ross-shire, and granddaughter of Meyrick Bankes, of Winstanley Hall, Wigan. The name of Dicconson (which he assumed in 1896) has been associated for nearly three centuries with Wrightington Hall, near Wigan. The family became extinct in 1812, and the property and name, after passing through the families of Eccleston, Scarisbrick and Clifton, came to the present owner, Mr Gerard-Dicconson, by right of his mother, née Harriet Clifton.

Gernon, COLONEL HENRY CHESTER, J.P. for Co. Meath—born 1847, son of James Gernon, of Athcarne Castle, Co. Meath; educated privately; commanded 5th Batt. Royal Dublin Fusiliers during the South African War; married (1871) ALICE, daughter of Lieut.-Col. A. F. BRAHAM.

Gerrard, Major John Joseph, R.A.M.C.—born 1867; educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate, and for medicine (M.B.); entered Army 1889; served in the N.W. Indian Frontier Expedition of 1897, when he was mentioned in despatches and promoted Surgeon-Major, and in the late South African War; married (1898) Mabel, daughter of Colonel H. M. Repton.

Gerrard, Rev. Thomas J.—born in Lancashire 1871; destined for the law until his reception into the Church, at the age of twenty, turned his thoughts towards the priesthood and sent him to Oscott, He was ordained for Westminster.

and his duty as Chaplain at New Hall Convent leaves him free time for sterling contributions to The Dublin Review, The Homiletic Monthly, The New York Review, The American Catholic Quarterly, The Month and The Catholic World. A close student of St Thomas, Father Gerrard is not inimical to the progressive movement in Christian apologetics, and while sensitive to "the new and moving spirit" of moderns like Newman and Tyrrell, has added from his own research and intuition a word here and a word there to the new statement which the new learning demands.

Geudens, Right Rev. Peter Francis Henry, Titular Lord Abbot of Barlings—born 1841; completed humanities at Herenthals, Belgium; entered novitiate of the Norbertine Abbey of Tongerloo; ordained 1866 by Archbishop de Mérode; successively Professor of Philosophy, Master of Novices, and Sub-Prior at Tongerloo; founded first Post-Reformation English house of his order at Crowle, Lincolnshire; founded Corpus Christi Priory, Miles Platting, 1889; blessed Titular Abbot of Barlings by Lord Abbot Heylen (since Bishop of Namur) 1898; Director of the Archconfraternity of the Mass of Reparation for Great Britain and Ireland. Author of A Life of St Norbert—A Sketch of the Norbertine Order in Great Britain and Ireland—and other writings.

Ghosh, Sarath Kumar—son of Punchanon Ghosh (Ghosha) third in descent from the last Hindu ruler of Ghoshpara. India. (The Ghoshas were a scion of the ancient Hindu dynasty of Kanouj and founded Ghoshpara after the fall of Kanouj in the thirteenth century; but Ghoshpara itself ceased to be of importance since becoming a British possession.) Sarath Kumar Ghosh's early education in India was a combination of the East and the West, of the Hindu and the Catholic, for he had as tutors a Brahmin pundit and a French Jesuit, by whom he was received into the Church. He finished his education in Europe under private tutors from Oxford, Cambridge and Heidelberg, and was called to the English Bar (1897). Besides mathematical treatises now used as text-books in India, he has written a novel 1,001 Indian Nights. He is also well-known as a lecturer in this country, and was a member of the last International Congress of Bimetallism (London, 1898) and a delegate to the first International Congress of Mathematics (Paris, 1900).

Gibbons, His Eminence James, Cardinal-Archbishop of Baltimore—was born in 1834, at Baltimore, of Irish parentage. Educated first in Ireland, and later, for the priesthood, at St Charles's College, Ellicott City, and St Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, he was ordained in 1861.

Five years later he was Assistant-Chancellor to the Second Plenary Council of Baltimore; and within seven years of ordination he was consecrated Bishop as first Vicar Apostolic of North Carolina. He was appointed to the See of Richmond in 1872, and went as Coadjutor to Baltimore in 1877, succeeding as ninth Archbishop in the same year. The Third National Council of Baltimore was held under his presidency in 1884, and in 1886 he was raised to the Cardinalate—the second American Cardinal. His Eminence, whose wearing of the Red has done nothing to diminish his pride in Republican institutions, is the first Cardinal of his country to take part in the election of a Pope, assisting in 1903 at the conclave which elected Pius X. As the author of The Faith of Our Fathers, Our Christian Heritage and The Ambassador of Christ, he has had the rare pleasure of knowing that his writings have gone forth in a multitude of editions.

Gibbs, Philip, one of the many Catholics holding by right of talent a conspicuous place in London journalism—born 1877, son of Henry Gibbs, of the Board of Education; served an apprenticeship on The Daily Mail and other organs before assuming the literary editorship of The Tribune; married (1898) Agnes Mary, daughter of the Rev. W. Rowland. Author of Founders of the Empire, The Romance of Empire, Knowledge is Power, Facts and Ideas and Men and Women of the French Revolution.

Gibbs, MRS PHILIP—AGNES, daughter of the Rev. W. Rowland, Rector of Middle Chinnock; educated abroad. Author of translations from the French, German and Italian, including Lapponi's Hypnotism and Spiritism and Baudrillart's Catholicism and the Renaissance.

Gibney, James, J.P. for Co. Meath—born 1848, son of Thomas Gibney, of Beltrasna, Co. Meath; educated at the National School of his native town; sat for North Meath as Nationalist M.P. 1893-1900; married first (1881) BRIDGET HENNESSY, and secondly (1897) CATHERINE O'BRIEN.

Gibraltar, Vicar Apostolic of (Right Rev. Guido Remigio Barbieri, O.S.B.)—consecrated titular Bishop of Theodosiopolis and Vicar-Apostolic of Gibraltar 1901.

Gibson, Jasper—born 1865, at Battle Hill, Hexham, son of Richard Gibson, of St Wilfrid's, Hexham, by Jane Mary, his wife, daughter of J. Sparrow, J.P., of Puddington Hall, Cheshire; educated at the Oratory School and under Lord Petre at Woburn Park; LL.B. (Lond., with honours) 1895; admitted a Solicitor 1896; Clerk to the Tyne Salmon Conservancy; Lieut.-Colonel 1st Vol. Batt. Northumberland Fusiliers from 1903; V.D.; married at the London Oratory (1895) Annie Wilhelmina, daughter of Cuthbert Kendall, M.R.C.S., of Hexham. Mr Gibson is the member of a family long connected with Hexham, and one that supplied many eminent names to the history of penal days.

Gibson, Colonel Wilfrid, V.D., commanding 1st Vol. Batt. Northumberland Fusiliers from 1901—born at Salford 1849, son of Charles Gibson, Solicitor, Town Clerk of Salford; educated at Ushaw; Treasurer of St Cuthbert's Society; Member of Catholic Education Council; Vice-President of the Hexham and Newcastle Voluntary Schools Association; married (1874) ANN MARGARET, third daughter of James Dees, J.P., of Whitehaven, Cumberland, and Riverdale, Northumberland.

Gibson, Hon. William, M.A., J.P. for Surrey—born 1868, eldest son of 1st Baron Ashbourne, sometime Lord Chancellor of Ireland; educated at Harrow, at Trinity College, Dublin, and at Merton College, Oxford; received into the Church while at Oxford; founder of the Roger Bacon Society 1898; Vice-President of the Irish Literary Society; married (1896) Marianne, daughter of Roger de Monbrison, a member of an eminent French Protestant family, who was received into the Catholic Church shortly after her marriage. Mr Gibson is one of the strongest supporters of the Gaelic movement, and a reviver of the wearing of the Irish Kilt. He is known also as the author of The Abbé de Lammenais and the Liberal Catholic Movement in France (1896), and as a contributor to The Dublin and other reviews.

Gibson, Hon. VIOLET—daughter of 1st Lord Ashbourne; a convert (like her brother) to the Church. Contributor to Franciscan Annals.

Gilbert, J.W., B.A.—Secretary and Manager of the Providence Row Night Refuge, and nephew of its founder, Monsignor Daniel Gilbert. This Refuge, on the borders of Whitechapel, does a work among the London Poor which all social workers have recognized and admired. In its beginnings, it had the warm interest of Adelaide Anne Procter, whom Mgr Gilbert received into the Church, and who published her Chaplet of Verses for its benefit. Mr Gilbert's qualifications for the work he inherited have been proved by the institution's unabated success in the relief of a great mass of London's misery.

Gilbert, Lady (Rosa Mulholland)—born at Belfast, daughter of Joseph Stevenson Mulholland, M.D., and sister of Lady Russell of Killowen and of the well-known story-writer, Miss Clara Mulholland; married (in 1891) Sir

John T. GILBERT, historian and archivist, and Vice-President of the Royal Irish Academy, who died in 1898. In all the many novels and tales that have come from Lady Gilbert's pen, she has accustomed her readers to merry wit, delicate and deep pathos, honest love, noble suffering and high ambition; and, withal, much literary skill and charm as can best recommend her high-mindedness to all classes of readers. Her place among the Catholic poets of her generation will be secured by the generations that follow. Hers is a muse that could hardly be better described than in the words of Milton—it is indeed a "Pensive Nun, devout and pure, Sober, steadfast and demure." In literature, as in life, it has been the happy lot of Lady Gilbert to share the vision of her own "St Barbara":

The tranquil Saints from their eternal places Look out and show thee their enraptured faces.

Her books include The Wild Birds of Killeevy, Marcella Grace, The Late Miss Hollingford, Banshee Castle, Gianetta, Vagrant Verses, The Walking Trees, Nanno, Cynthia's Bonnet Shop and The Squire's Granddaughters.

Gildea, CANON WILLIAM L., Knight Commander of the Order of Isabel la Católica—born in Hampshire; educated at St Charles's College, London, St Edmund's College, St Thomas's Seminary, and Propaganda; ordained 1882; Vice-Rector of St Thomas's Seminary 1882-93; appointed to St James's, Spanish Place, 1893, and succeeded Mgr Barry in full charge 1900; Senior Chaplain to the Spanish Embassy; Canon of Westminster 1900. Author of articles in The Dublin Review, Chambers's Encyclopædia, American Quarterly Review and The Tablet. Contributed an introduction to the English version of Father Hammerstein's Foundations of Faith (1897), and is commonly cited as an illustration of the possible union and maintenance of high scholarship, with minute and unwearying devotion to all details of parochial duty.

Giles, RIGHT REV. WILLIAM, D.D., titular Bishop of Philadelphia—Rector of the English (founded 1579) and Beda (founded 1898) Colleges, Rome, since their administration under one head from 1903. A convert to the Church while young, he was one of the first Catholics to get his M.A. degree at London University; studied for the priesthood at St Edmund's, Ware, and at the English College, Rome, of which he became Vice-Rector in succession to Mgr O'Callaghan, a post he retained for twenty-four years; named Dom. Prel. by Leo XIII; consecrated Bishop 1904.

Gilhooly, James. M.P.-born 1845, son of J. Gilhooly, of the Irish Coastguard service; President of the Bantry National League, and the Bantry Branch of the United Irish League; has represented West Cork in the Nationalist interest since 1885; married (1882) MARY COLLINS.

Gilliat-Smith, Ernest—received into the Church 1883; resident in Bruges. Author of Bruges in the "Medieval Town Series" (1901).

Gill, MICHAEL J., Chairman and Managing Director of the publishing firm of M. H. Gill and Son, Ltd—born 1871; educated at Clongowes and University College, Dublin; B.A. of the Royal University of Ireland 1893; served as Secretary and Treasurer of the National Literary Society 1893-97, and Treasurer of the Catholic Graduates' Association; interested in all national and industrial movements, and is the author of a pamphlet, Public Libraries for Ireland, besides occasional contributions to periodicals.

Gillow, CHARLES RICHARD—born 1870, eldest son of Richard Gillow, J.P., Colonel 1st Westmorland Rifle Volunteers, by his wife, Agnes, daughter of Charles Riddell; grandson of Richard Thomas Gillow, J.P., of Leighton Hall, Westmorland; educated at Ushaw; married (1906) HELEN, daughter of George Storey, of Harlow Grange, Harrogate.

Gillow, Canon Henry-born 1839, son of Joseph Gillow, of Preston and Ribby, Lancashire; educated at Ushaw; after ordination, in 1868, he remained a Professor at the College till 1891; served the mission of Sacriston; Rector of Monkwearmouth 1897-1900; Rector of Blackhill, Durham, from 1900; member of Hexham and Newcastle Chapter. Canon Gillow is collateral representative of his pre-Reformation namesake, the Rev. Henry Gillow, Sub-Dean of York in 1477 and Rector of Houghton-le-Spring, Durham, Another priest of the name, Sir Henry Gillow, having fled from persecution in Lancashire, died in 1561 at Kirkham, where the present Rector of the mission is the Rev. Francis John Gillow, of the Leighton branch, In modern times the family has given the Rev. John Gillow, D.D., who died President of Ushaw in 1828, and the present Archbishop of Ooxaca, in Mexico, the Right Rev. Eulogio Gregorio Gillow, D.D. Canon Gillow is the author of an historical work on Ushaw College.

Gillow, JOSEPH, historical and archæological writer—born in 1850, son of Joseph Gillow, J.P., of Preston and Ribby; educated at Sedgley Park School and at Ushaw, a college long and intimately associated with the name of his family. It was in 1885 that this "Plutarch of the English faithful" (as Father Bridgett called him) brought out the first volume of his great Literary and Bibliographical Dictionary of the English Catholics, completing his fifth and final volume in 1902, a work which entailed a labour and conferred a boon which succeeding generations will more and more gratefully recognize. Mr Gillow's other publications include The Tyldesley Diary—The Haydock Papers—St Thomas's Priory, the Story of a Staffordshire Mission—Lancashire Recusants and A Catalogue of Martyrs in Englande for Profession of the Catholique Faith since the yeare of Our Lord 1535. He is Hon. Recorder of the Catholic Record Society and member of its Council; and in 1888 he gave evidence before the Archbishop's House Commission on the Cause of the English Martyrs. He married Ella, only daughter and heiress of John McKenna, of The Woodlands, Dunham Massey, Cheshire.

Ginnell, LAURENCE, M.P.—born 1854, son of Laurence Ginnell, of Devlin, Westmeath; called to the Bar at Middle Temple 1893, and at King's Inns, Dublin, 1906; one of the founders of the Irish Literary Society of London; elected M.P. for North Westmeath 1906; married (1902) ALICE, daughter of James King, J.P., of Kilbride, Westmeath. Author of The Brehon Laws and The Doubtful Grant of Ireland (personally presented to Leo XIII by the author in 1899).

Girouard, Hon. DÉSIRÉ—born in the Province of Quebec 1836, son of Jerémie Girouard by Hippolite Picard; descendant of Antoine Girouard, Secretary to the French Governor of Montreal in 1720; D.C.L. of McGill Univ. and LL.D. of Ottawa; called to the Quebec Bar 1860; Q.C. 1876; Member of Dominion House of Commons 1878-95; Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada 1895; thrice married—in 1862 to Mathilde, daughter of John Pratt; in 1865 to Essie, daughter of Dr Joseph Cranwill, of Ballynamoney, Ireland, and in 1881 to Edith, daughter of Dr John Beatty. Author of Girouard on Bills and Notes, and other works.

Girouard, Lieut.-Colonel Sir Edduard Percy Cranwill, R.E., K.C.M.G., D.S.O., Commissioner in Northern Nigeria—was born at Montreal 1867, son of the Hon. Désiré Girouard, Justice of the Supreme Canadian Court, by an Irish mother. After a military education at the Royal College at Kingston, he was gazetted, at the age of twenty, to a commission in the Royal Engineers, and henceforth his career has been almost romantic in the rapidity of its unfolding. Having been Railway Traffic Manager at Woolwich Arsenal from 1890-95, he won fame as Director of Railways during the Dongola and Khartoum Expeditions of 1896-98; and, after the conquest of the Soudan (to which his services appreciably contributed), he was appointed President of the Egyptian Railway Board. He was again Director of Railways under his old chief, Lord Kitchener, during the South African War, and was knighted at the age of thirty-three, having gained the reputation of the "finest military engineer in the Empire." After a staff appointment at Chester in 1907 came the Commissionership and Command-in-Chief of the Protectorate of Northern Nigeria, in succession to Sir F. Lugard. Sir Percy married (in 1903) MARY GWENDOLEN, daughter of the eminent South African statesman and publicist. Sir Richard SOLOMON.

Glancey, Canon Michael F., Member of the Catholic Education Council—born 1854; educated at Oscott; ordained 1877; Diocesan Inspector 1888-97; Diocesan Chancellor from 1897; member of Chapter 1905; Rector at Solihull from 1900. The able Chairman of the Education Committee of the old Birmingham School Board, and an experienced and successful manager of Voluntary Schools, Canon Glancey is known far beyond local borders as an expert writer on the current problems of elementary and secondary education, as the compiler of Characteristics from the Writings of Archbishop Ullathorne, and translator of a popular English version of Knecht's Commentary on Scripture, and as co-translator with Mgr Schobel of Dr Paul Schanz's Christian Apology. He is also Editor of The Birmingham Calendar and Directory.

Glasgow, Archbishop of (Most Rev. John A. Epsom, and Buckland; has made one or two valuable contributions to periodical literature. At Freshwater he was the neighbour and friend of Tennyson, an association concerning which Mr Granville Ward related the following anecdote at the Douai Society's Banquet in 1897. The poet once said to the priest, "Father Peter, you have never told me where you were brought up? "" Why, by the Benedictines of Douai," was the answer. "That is just like you wretched Papists," said the Poet in his most brusque manner, "you are afraid that English soil will do away with your bigotry. You send your people abroad when they are young to get their minds undenationalized and indoctrinated with foreign ideas." The reply of the Douai-bred priest was. "Lord Tennyson, if there is one spot in Europe which is profoundly, enthusiastically, and extravagantly loval and patriotic, that spot is the English College at Douai."

Head, James, J.P. for Inverness-shire—born 1851, fourth son of Captain Sir Francis Somerville Head, 2nd Bart.; formerly Captain Middlesex Yeomanry and 3rd Batt. the Buffs, and, during later years, an authority on Finance. Healy, Thomas Joseph—born 1854, eldest son of Maurice Healy of Bantry; admitted a Solicitor (Ireland) 1888; represented North Wexford in Parliament as Nationalist 1892-1900; married (1879) KATHLEEN, daughter of M. F. Shine of Dungarvan.

Healy, TIMOTHY M., M.P., K.C.—born 1855, son of Maurice Healy of Bantry; called to the Irish Bar 1885, and received the compliment of a "special call" to the English Bar at Gray's Inn 1903: first entered Parliament in 1880 for Wexford, and has since (sitting successively for Monaghan Co., North Monaghan, North Longford and North Louth), devoted himself to a Parliamentary career of singular complexity, strenuousness and aloofness. He took silk in 1899, and was elected Bencher of King's Inns, Dublin, 1905. He married (1882) ERINA, daughter of T. D. SULLI-VAN, M.P., to whom his country was indebted for a number of stirring ballads, Mr "Tim" Healy is a master of persiflage as well as of more serviceable arts; and he has not always reserved it for those who are alien to him in race. religion and general aim. As a lawyer, no less than as a parliamentary speaker, he has scored his triumphs, and his knowledge is on a par with his wit. Speaking in 1906 on Mr Birrell's Education Bill, he said: "Mr Speaker, I give little for your education. I cannot spell myself; I cannot parse an English sentence. I cannot do the rule of three. I am supposed to know a little law, but I think that is a mistake. But one thing I have got—a belief in the Christ to come; and I believe that if the children put into practice the teaching which they have received from the priest in the Catholic school, they will reap a rich reward."

Healy, Maurice—born 1859, son of Maurice Healy, of Bantry, and younger brother of Mr Tim Healy, M.P.; admitted a Solicitor 1882; represented Cork City as Nationalist M.P. 1885-1900; married (1887) ANNIE, daughter of A. M. SULLIVAN, M.P.

Hemy, Charles Napier, A.R.A.—born 1841 at Newcastleon-Tyne, son of Henri Hemy, a musician of note and convert to the Church: educated at the Newcastle Grammar School and at Ushaw. Having tried a religious vocation with the Dominicans at Lyons, he returned at the age of twenty-two to "the world." His first Academy picture was hung two years later; and after a further period of study in Antwerp, he settled in London, Since 1882, however, Falmouth has been the home of this strenuous painter and lover of the ship, the sea and the sailor. In 1898 his "Pilchards" at Burlington House was bought by the Chantry Bequest—a compliment repeated in the case of another of his pictures in 1904. At the time of his election in 1898, Mr Hemy was the only Catholic in the Academy, among either Members or Associates, a solitariness since remedied. Mr Hemy married (in 1880) Amy, daughter of W. G. FREEMAN, a convert from the ranks of the Anglican clergy, and, in later years, identified with the working of Cornish serpentine.

Henderson, ISAAC AUSTIN—born 1850 at Brooklyn, U.S.A., son of Isaac Henderson, the associate of William Cullen Bryant in the direction of the New York Evening Post, the foremost literary American newspaper of the time. On leaving school, he was for ten years connected with the publishing of the same journal. Since 1882 he has made Europe his home, passing much time in Rome, where in 1897 he joined the Catholic Church, as did also his wife, note Marion Temple Brown, a grand-niece of the well-known Quakeress Lucretia Mott. Mr Henderson's many successful novels and plays include The Prelate, Agatha Page, The Silent Battle and The Mummy and the Humming Bird, the last being produced by Sir Charles Wyndham on the London stage.

Lord Herries, a polished and persuasive speaker, who has the respectful ear of the House of Lords, especially on Catholic interests, descends from the 5th Earl of Nithsdale and 9th Baron Herries, who forfeited his honours by attainder after the Jacobite rising of 1715, escaping with his life by the devotion of his Countess. By the marriage in 1758 of Lady Winefride Maxwell (the granddaughter and heiress of the Jacobite Earl) with William Haggerston Constable, of Everingham, the line was preserved, and the Barony was revived in 1858, as (unlike the earldom) it passed in the female line, and will again do so, Lord Herries's heir being his elder daughter, Gwendolen, Duchess of Norfolk. Among the family relies at Terregles is the portrait of Lady Nithsdale, the heroine of her husband's romantic escape from the Tower. Lord Herries is the owner of some of the most historic houses in Scotland, including Carlaverock Castle and Terregles; and also, in Yorkshire, of Everingham, a name that Disraeli further familiarized in Lothair.

Hibbert, Captain William G., R.E.—born 1869; served in Chitral Relief Expedition 1895; Captain 1902.

Hickey, EMILY—born at Macmine Castle, Co. Wexford, daughter of Canon Hickey and granddaughter of "Martin Doyle." Her first book of poems, A Sculptor, published in 1881, secured her at once a position, and has been followed by five or six other volumes, one of which was withdrawn by Miss Hickey on her reception into the Church in 1901, but again went into circulation when her scruples were dispelled by competent advice. Miss Hickey has also done excellent work in prose, as readers of her story Lois, which appeared in The Month during 1906-07, are aware. She is responsible for a first-rate edition of Browning's Strafford, and she is co-founder with Dr Furnivall of the Browning Society.

Hickie, Daniel Aloysius, D.S.O.—served with distinction during the South African War as Lieut. in the New Zealand contingent 1900-02.

Hickie, Lieut.-Colonel James Francis, late 7th Foot, J.P. for Tipperary—born 1833, son of William Hickie, J.P., D.L. of Kileton, Co. Kerry; entered Army 1853; served with distinction in the Crimea, where he was severely wounded; Lieut.-Colonel 1869; married (1862) Lucia, daughter of Don Pablo Larios y Herreros de Tejeda.

Kerry; educated at Stonyhurst; retired 1906 with rank of Colonel; married (1887) at St Mary's, Axminster, Constance Mary, youngest daughter of Henry Knight, Lord of the Manor of Axminster, Devon.

Hicks, E. Seymour, actor and dramatic author—born in Jersey 1871, son of Major E. Hicks, 42nd Highlanders; educated at Prior Park and at Victoria College, Jersey; joined the stage at sixteen; for five years was the principal comedian with the Gaiety Company; subsequently achieved with his wife, Miss Ellaline Terriss, at the Vaudeville, and later at the Aldwych Theatre, such popular triumphs as Bluebell in Fairyland—Quality Street—The Catch of the Season—The Beauty of Bath—and other plays, of many of which he is author or part author.

Hicks, Mrs Seymour (Ellaline Terriss)—daughter of William Terriss, born on a sheep farm in the Falkland Islands, but was brought to London when six months old, and to London playgoers' delight she has been among them ever since. She began her professional career at the Haymarket in Calmour's Cupid's Messenger, at the age of sixteen, after playing in the private theatricals organized by Lady Freake. Since her marriage with Mr Edward Seymour Hicks, she has played with her husband's company, at the Vaudeville, and now at the Aldwych Theatre. She was received into the Church in 1903.

Hicks, COMMENDATORE JAMES J., K.S.G.—is a "founder" of Westminster Cathedral; had his Knighthood of St Gregory from Leo XIII, and presented to Pius X a set of the most modern astronomical instruments for the use of the Patriarchal Seminary at Venice 1906.

Higgins, Dom Gilbert, C.R.L.—born in 1849 in Cornwall; educated at Penzance, Yvetot, and at the English College, Bruges; ordained 1873, and gave his earlier years of priestly life to the West of England. Of late years, with London for his headquarters, he has displayed unresting activities as preacher, lecturer, and contributor to the press. Dom Gilbert Higgins is one of those workers whose zeal is contagious, and has not shrunk even from the task of promoting a love of reading among Catholics by means of a Guild devoted to that end.

Higgins, HENRY VINCENT, C.V.O.—born 1855, eldest son of Matthew James Higgins (" Jacob Omnium "), a distinguished writer and convert to the Church, who married Emily, daughter of Sir Henry Tichborne, 8th Baronet; educated at the Oratory School and at Merton College. Oxford; served 1875-82 as a Subaltern in the Life Guards: admitted a Solicitor 1897; became a Director of the Carlton and the Ritz Hotels; but has taken his largest part in the social life of London, and is a highly successful organizer of the Royal Opera, Mr Higgins, the inheritor of many fine qualities from his father-whose towering stature gave colour to the stateliness with which Du Maurier invested some of his men of fashion-married first Lady HILDA FINCH-HATTON, daughter of 11th Earl of WINCHILSEA; and secondly Mary, daughter of Hon, George PARSONS, of Columbus, U.S.A.

Hinkson, Mrs (Katharine Tynan)—was born in 1861, the daughter of Andrew Tynan, of Clondalkin, Co. Dublin, She was educated at the Dominican Convent, Drogheda, and began early to write poetry, printing in Merry England the "Louise de la Vallière" which gave the name to her first book, published in 1885. Henceforth her place was secured. Shamrocks, Cuckoo Songs, The Land of Mists and Mountain, Miracle Plays and The Wind in the Trees followed, and the Collected Poems were published in 1901. Her first prose work, to the writing of which she brought a fidelity all her own, A Nun, her Friends, and her Order (a life of Mother M. Xaveria Fallon) appeared in 1892; and, only second to her fame as a poet, is that won for her as a writer of fiction. The Handsome Brandons, The Dear Irish Girl, A Daughter of the Fields, A Girl of Galway, A Union of Hearts, Judy's Lovers. The Luck of the Fairtaxes and A Favourite of Fortune, are a few of the books which have delighted boys and girls and their seniors. In some of these works, hardly less than in her verse, she has captured more than any other living writer a pure and distinctive Irish note, and in this sense she may rank as the greatest living "nationalist." Her Rhymed Life of St Patrick completes her claim to be the Poet Laureate of Ireland, Mrs Hinkson, whose contributions to newspapers and magazines are easily recognizable by their charm, married (in 1893) Mr Henry A. Hinkson, barrister-at-law, an authority on copyright, and the creator of several valuable ones on his own account.

Hinsley, REV. ARTHUR, D.D. (Gregorian Univ.), Diploma of Phil. Hobson, Very Rev. George F., Provost of Plymouth from 1906—appointed to Exeter 1871, where his penultimate predecessor was the antiquary, the Rev. George Oliver, D.D., and where he had for "a new curate" in the 'seventies of the last century the now famous Canon Sheehan. Perhaps it was due to that former association that Canon Hobson—a typical Englishman—in 1892 wrote to the local press a letter in favour of Home Rule, a letter which was said at the time to have brought the prancing horses of Lord Clifford into Exeter on the polling day bedecked demonstratively in "true blue." The Canon was elected Chairman of the Exeter Board of Guardians in 1904.

Hoey, Mrs Cashel—Francis Sarah, daughter of C. B. Johnston; born near Dublin 1830; began in 1853 the journalistic career continued with so much success even till now in the Press of England, Ireland, America, Canada and Australia; a convert to the Church; married (1846) A. M. Stewart, and secondly (1858) John Cashel Hoey, C.M.G., sub-editor of The Dublin Review during a portion of Dr Ward's editorship. Mrs Cashel Hoey is known to general readers as the author of A House of Cards—Falsely True—Out of Court—All or Nothing—The Lover's Creed—Buried in the Deep, and other novels; and to Catholics in particular by What Might Have Been.

Essex Regiment—born 1863, son of Walter Hussey-Walsh, of Cranagh and Mulhussey; educated at the Oratory School; entered Cheshire Regiment 1883; Captain 1891; Adjutant 1st V.B. Essex Regiment 1895-99; Major 4th Batt. Essex Regiment 1903; employed with South African Constabulary since 1901; married (1892) Mary, dau. of Rev. E.R. EVERED.

Huyshe, Wentworth—born 1847, fourth son of General Alfred Huyshe, C.B., R.H.A., and Julia, daughter of Rev. George Hagar; a convert to the Church; war-correspondent in the Soudanese campaigns of 1884-86, including the action of McNeill's Zareba; married (1870) Hester, widow of John Hart. Translator from the Latin of St Adamnan of The Life of St Columba; an expert in the literature of mediævalism, and one of the makers of the modern Press.

Hyderabad (India), BISHOP OF (RIGHT REV. PETER ANDREW VIGANO)—consecrated 1897.

Hylton, Lady—Anne, daughter of Henry Lambert, of Carnagh, Co. Wexford; married secondly (1879, as widow of 3rd Earl of Dunraven) and Baron Hylton, who died 1899.

Hymers, Canon Edward B., Member of Birmingham Chapter from 1904—born 1856; educated Sedgley Park, Douai, and Olton Seminary; ordained 1879; Rector of SS. Peter and Paul, Wolverhampton, 1898-1903; President of St Wilfrid's College, Oakamoor, from 1903.

Iles, CANON DANIEL—born 1855, son of A. Iles, of Reevey, Fairford; educated at Prior Park and at Louvain Univ. (Licentiate); ordained 1881; at St George's, Taunton, 1894-1902, succeeding as Rector 1899; Professor of Theology at Prior Park 1885-94; Professor at Oscott from 1902; member of the Birmingham Chapter.

Ingram, Captain John O'D., Gloucester Regiment (Adjutant)—born 1870; educated for the Army at Mottingham House, Eltham, under the Rev. Baron von Orsbach; Captain 1900; served in the last South African War.

Tierney, late Commissary General of Ordnance—born 1836; took part in New Zealand War 1861-65, and in operations in Japan 1864; retired 1893; member for many years of the Woolwich Board of Guardians; Hon. Treasurer of the Southwark Diocesan Schools Association and of the South London Catholic League.

Innes-Browne, Bernard—Director of the Vaughan Homes, Lower Edmonton, founded in 1906 for Catholic boys on the "family lines" initiated by Mr Norman Potter.

Innes-Browne, MRS—JESSIE ELIZABETH, daughter of W Stickney, of Ridgmont, Holderness; educated at St Clare's Abbey; married Martin Innes-Browne. Author of Three Daughters of the United Kingdom—Honour without Renown—A Garland of Everlasting Flowers and Told Round the Nursery Fire.

Ireland, Most Rev. John, Archbishop of St Paul, U.S.A. born in Ireland 1838, and emigrated to the United States in boyhood. He studied for the priesthood in France, and was ordained in 1861. A man marked out by his talents from the beginning, he passed through some of the most arduous campaigning of the Civil War as Chaplain to the 5th Minnesota Regiment. After a term of duty as Rector of the Cathedral, St Paul, he was consecrated in 1875 Bishop-Coadjutor of that Diocese, and succeeded as Archbishop in 1888. In 1880 he secured the further development of the Hierarchy in the North West by the erection of the new suffragan Sees of Sioux Falls, St Cloud, Winona, Duluth and Jamestown. A man of large views and an all-round lover of such freedom as American citizenship carries, the Archbishop stands in the United States for all the causes and ideals that elevate a nation. As an advocate of total abstinence, His Grace ranks as the Manning of America. Whether a Cardinal's hat should be asked for him by the United States Government was a question which Mr and Mrs Bellamy Storer decided in the affirmative; and the removal of the Minister and his wife from Vienna resulted from negotiations which President Roosevelt had, in the opinion of the Storers, approved, but which he himself repudiated. The Archbishop has from time to time lamented the lack of initiative in the Catholic laity in Europe; and his early training in France has given him a special insight into such controversies as arose when French formalism made its attack on the new phases of what was dubbed "Americanism" in apparent ignorance of the existence of an idealistic school of Catholic thought in all ages and among all peoples.

Irons. Geneviève—daughter of Prebendary Irons, for thirty years Rector of the Anglican Church that adjoins the London Oratory. He was the attached friend of the Rev. F. D. Maurice, and twice entered the lists of controversy with Newman, the founder of the neighbouring rival. It was an affair of only a few yards outwardly when members of his congregation began to enter the other door-taking with them a lasting regard for Mr Irons himself—even the women whom he had once quite incontinently accused of being, as a sex, greedy at table! As he himself was the son of a Nonconformist minister, his daughter's forward step to Rome may be said to have but continued legitimately to the end the pilgrimage he had begun. Miss Geneviève Irons, whose contributions were formerly made welcome by Anglican editors and publishers, has, as a Catholic, published a little volume of short stories for children. Only a Doll.

Irwin, Colonel Richard, J.P., late Commanding 5th Batt. Connaught Rangers—born 1832, eldest son of Richard Irwin, of Rathmoyle, Co. Roscommon; High Sheriff of Co. Roscommon 1864; married (1866) Cecilia, daughter of Philip O'Reilly, D.L., of Coolamber.

Irwin, ARTHUR JOHN, B.A., Deputy-Director of Royal Survey of Siam—born 1868, eldest son of Colonel Richard Irwin, J.P., of Rathmoyle, Co. Roscommon; married (1896) JOSEPHINE, daughter of Hugh Gerald BYRNE.

Jackman, Rev. ARTHUR, D.D.—born at Shoreham 1878; educated at Wonersh and Rome; ordained 1902; Assistant-Secretary in Southwark to Bishop Bourne who, when he came as Archbishop to Westminster, brought Dr Jackman to Archbishop's House as Private Secretary—a capacity in which he has won universal good will, though anything but the wily functionary of the sort which we encounter in the pages of the modern romance. The lucky possessor of that simplicity of intellect" (to use Rossetti's praising phrase) which comes from a supreme singleness of purpose, and possessed by a native loyalty too self-evident to need assertive phrases, Dr Jackman has qualities as a Secretary which would be understated by the word tact—a word of sophistication which must have shared with "edification" the suspicion of that master of the open and the unscheming-Father Faber.

Jackson, Miss Frances—Author of From Hearth to Cloister in the Reign of Charles II, "a narrative of Sir John and Lady Warner's so-much-wondered-at resolutions to leave the Anglican Church and to enter the Religious Life."

Jackson, Captain Sir Henry Moore, K.C.M.G.,—born 1849, son of Bishop Jackson, of Antigua; after an English public-school education he joined the Royal Artillery, retiring as Captain 1885; Private Secretary to Sir H. Irving during his Governorship of Trinidad 1874-76, and to Governor Sir John Glover in Newfoundland during the three succeeding years; Commissioner of Turks Islands 1885-90; Colonial Secretary for the Bahamas 1890-94, and of Gibraltar 1894-1901; Governor of Leeward Islands 1901-02, and of Fiji 1902-04; Governor of Trinidad and Tobago from 1904. Sir Henry, who is a convert to the Church, married (1881) Emily, daughter of Sir Edward D'Alton Shea, President of the Newfoundland Legislative Council. He was knighted in 1899.

Jaffna (Ceylon), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. HENRY JOULAIN, O.M.I.)—consecrated 1893. In 1834 Gregory XVI erected Ceylon into an independent Vicariate; and eleven years later Propaganda divided the Island into two Vicariates, Colombo in the South and Jaffna in the North. In 1857 the Vicariate of Jaffna (since a See) was assigned to the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, by whom it has since been administered.

Jaimé of Bourbon, Don, Prince of the Asturias, Major in the Grodno Hussars of the Russian Army-born 1870. eldest son of Don Carlos, Duke of Madrid, who married the Princess Margaret of Bourbon-Parma, and has maintained, even to the point of the sword, his claim to the throne of Spain. Don Jaimé was educated by the English Jesuits at Beaumont College; and served with distinction with the International Force in the Chinese campaign of 1900; also with his regiment during the Russo-Japanese War. He was the bearer, in March, 1904, of a letter from Pius X to the Tsar. Don Jaime's father had among Catholics in England at least one adherent willing to make large sacrifices for his cause, and his son's training in this country may well have raised expectations of further sympathy here—expectations doomed to final extinction when a popular English Princess became Queen of Spain.

Jamaica, Vicar-Apostolic of (Right Rev. John J. Collins, S.J.)—born in Kentucky 1857 of Irish extraction; entered the Jesuit novitiate in America 1876; member of the Mission Band, American Province S.J., 1902; President of St John's College, Fordham, 1904-07; consecrated Titular Bishop of Antipolis and V.A. of Jamaica in succession to Bishop Gordon 1907.

James, Major John Edgcumbe, R.F.A.—born in London 1870, son of Henry James; educated at Marlborough; received into the Church 1895; Captain 1900, and Major 1906; served in the last South African War; married (1892) ESTHER MARIE, daughter of J. J. MEAGHER, of Castries, St Lucia.

Jarrett, Colonel Henry Sullivan, C.I.E.—born 1839; second son of Thomas Jarrett, of Speldhurst, Kent; educated at Prior Park; gazetted Ensign Bengal Army 1856; served during Indian Mutiny (present at the outbreak at Mooltan 1858) and on the N.W. Indian Frontier 1860-63, Assistant Secretary of the Legislative Department Government of India 1875-94; went on unemployed Supernumerary List 1896; married (1874) Agnes, daughter of Francis Beaufort, Bengal Civil Service. Author of History of the Caliphs—The Institutes of the Emperor Abbar and an elegant translation of Heine's Songs into English Verse.

Jarvis, Rev. Stephen Eyre, O.C., Superior of the Fathers of Charity at St Etheldreda's, Ely Place, Holborn, of which ancient and beautiful church, restored to Catholic worship by Father Lockhart, he has written a brief history. Once on a time, when Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, was driving at Wadhurst with Madame de Murrieta, a building came into view, and was pointed out as the Novitiate of the Fathers of Charity. "But are they charitable?" asked the King, who might get an answer even more decisive than the lady's if we were to visit this London house of the Institute, and see the people whom they daily serve and succour. The old request of Father Lockhart to Cardinal Manning was to be given a district that offered the hardest work among the poorest people; and that programme is still the one which recommends itself to Father Jarvis and his fellows.

Jenner, MRS—daughter of the late Dr Frederick Lee (formerly Anglican Vicar of All Saints', Lambeth, a friend of Ambrose de Lisle, and a promoter of the Reunion of Christendom); married Mr Herbert Jenner, of the British Museum, a wearer of "The White Rose," and the son of the Anglican Bishop of the name. Mrs Jenner, who published several excellent stories in former years, has lately produced an exhaustive volume on Christ in Art.

Jerningham, SIR HUBERT E. H., K.C.M.G., J.P. and D.L. for Northumberland—born 1842, elder son of Charles W. E. Jerningham, Barrister-at-Law, of Painswick, Gloucester, and Emma, daughter of Evan Wynn Roberts, of Grove House, Roehampton; educated at the University of Paris; entered Diplomatic Service 1866, and retired 1879, having spent most of his official life in Paris; M.P. (Liberal) for Berwick-on-Tweed 1881-85; Colonial Secretary of Honduras 1887-89, and of Mauritius 1889-92; knighted 1893;

Governor of Mauritius 1893-97, and of Trinidad 1897-1900; married (1874) ANNIE, daughter of Edward Liddell, of Benton Park, Northumberland. Sir Hubert, one of the too few remaining bearers of an ancient name, to which he has added new honours, is the author of Life in a French Château—Reminiscences of an Attaché (a work concerning such various characters as Montalembert, Lacordaire, Victor Hugo and the younger Dumas)—To and From Constantinople—Diane de Breteuille—Monsieur Paulot—History of Norham Castle—From West to East: Notes by the Way.

Jerningham, CHARLES EDWARD WYNNE—born 1854, son of Charles William Edward Jerningham, of Painswick, and younger brother of Sir Hubert Jerningham; educated at Beaumont, and at Stonyhurst, where he was for some time Senior Philosopher; collector of old English glass; known to readers as "Marmaduke" of Truth; has composed waltzes and songs, and, on a more serious path, established with Sir Reginald Beauchamp the, Self-Help Emigration Society."

As a result of difficulties and conflicts, he resigned this rectorship in 1897, and resided in Rome for three years, serving as Consultor of Propaganda and Canon of St John Lateran. On his return to America in 1900 he was installed Archbishop of his present See, an appointment hailed with deep satisfaction by the Catholics of America. His reputation as a preacher, lecturer and scholar extends beyond the limits of his own flock; and a leading publicist of America has called him "one of the sweetest and best of men, as well as the most zealous and devoted of Churchmen." One of the Archbishop's happiest memories is that of his talks with Cardinal Manning, of whose lofty and enlightened ideals he is the undaunted sharer.

Kenny, The Right Hon. William, P.C., Judge of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, Ireland—born 1846, son of Edward Kenny, solicitor, of Ennis; educated at Trinity College, Dublin (M.A.); called to Irish Bar 1868; Q.C. 1885; Bencher of King's Inns 1890; helped to establish Liberal Union of Ireland in 1886, and in 1887 he helped to organize the Dublin visit of Lord Hartington and Mr Goschen; Unionist M.P. for Stephen's Green 1892-97, winning and keeping the seat in three contests; Solicitor-General for Ireland 1902; raised to the Bench 1897; created P.C. of Ireland 1902; married (1873) Mary, daughter of David Coffey, Master in Chancery.

Kenny, WILLIAM J., Consul-General for the Philippine Islands—born 1859, son of Patrick Kenny, of Kingsmeadow House, Waterford; educated at the Christian Brothers' School, Waterford, and Blackrock College, and in Germany; Student Interpreter in Japan 1880; Japanese Interpreter to H.M. Court until 1895; Vice-Consul at Tokio 1896; called to the Bar at Gray's Inn 1896; Acting Consul General at Honolulu 1897-99; Consul General at Manila 1903.

Kent, Mrs Charles - Ann, eldest daughter of Murdo Young, of Ross, N.B. (author of Wallace: a Tragedy); born in London 1824; educated under Miss Lewis, author of Woman's Mission; received into the Church 1851; married (1853) Charles Kent, journalist, man-of-letters, and editor of The Weekly Register from 1874 to 1881. Author of Evelyn Stuart-Maud Hamilton-The Gilberts of Ashton and other novels of vogue in their day. In more recent years Mrs Kent has written short stories and essays for The Manchester Guardian, The Queen, The Daily News and The Catholic World. Her literary activity has extended over sixty years, from Evelyn Stuart in 1846 to articles from her pen in 1906. Evelyn Stuart dealt with the Free Trade Movement and Anti-corn Law agitation, and the young girl, its author, was also writing articles for her father's paper, The Sun, the first paper to support Free Trade, Cobden, it is interesting to recall to-day, objected to one of her articles, because it favoured small holdings.

Kent, EDWARD, Musical Composer and Song-writer—second surviving son of Charles Kent; educated at St Charles's College, Bayswater; has published over sixty songs and musical sketches, including such favourites as "The Burglar's Serenade," "Harmony Hall," and, in a more serious vein, composed the incidental music for Maskelyne's version of The Coming Race (1903), a work written by his father's old friend, Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton, from whom Mr Kent takes his name.

Kent, REV. WILLIAM HENRY, O.S.C.—born 1857, eldest son of Charles Kent, and great-grandson of Captain William Kent, R.N., discoverer of Kent's Islands. On his father's side he is a great-nephew of Bishop Baggs; and a great-great-nephew of Esmonde Kyan, one of the Wexford leaders executed in '98; and a kinsman (through the marriage of his grandmother's cousin, Maria Talbot, with the "good Earl of Shrewsbury") of that uncanonized saint, Gwendolen, Princess Borghese. From his parents Father Kent has inherited a literary talent turned to excellent account. Receiving his early education at St Charles's College, he began to contribute to The Weekly Register (then edited by his father) in 1875. A year later he joined the Oblates of St Charles, and was ordained by Cardinal Manning in 1881. Between 1882-98 he was engaged in teaching theology, and since 1899 has been occupied with parish work. His contributions to The Dublin Review (begun in 1889), to The Tablet, The Ave Maria, Blackwood, and The American Quarterly and Ecclesiastical Reviews, have shown him an expert in Biblical and Talmudic studies, Oriental languages, mediæval and modern philosophy and comparative philology. He has made many translations of hymns, etc., from the Syriac, Armenian and Coptic; and adds to his linguistic accomplishments a knowledge of Gaelic. Father Kent, thinker as well as writer (two capacities not always united), was entrusted in 1906 by the surviving executors of Cardinal Manning with the production of a new biography which should redress the balance of the old, a task to which Father Kent brings not merely the filial tenderness of a spiritual son, but an open understanding, a heart as warm as the intellect is keen, a dream of social regeneration, and an ultimate realization of the all but lapsed maxims of the Gospel with the daily life of men.

Kent, MARIANNE, Novelist—elder daughter of Charles Kent. Author of Philip Mordaunt's Ward (1888), and short stories in The Strand Magazine, Catholic World and Chambers' Journal.

Kent, James M., K.C.—born in Newfoundland 1874; educated at Tullabeg and Clongowes Colleges; B.A. of the Royal University of Ireland 1890; returning home to Newfoundland, he was admitted a Solicitor in 1893, and was called to the Bar in 1894. In 1900 he was elected a Bencher of the Law Society of Newfoundland; in 1904 took silk, and a seat in the Newfoundland Parliament.

Kenworthy-Browne, WILLIAM, M.A., LL.D.—Chamberlain to the Holy Father; convert to the Church; resident in Florence.

Kenyon, JOHN GEORGE, K.S.G. (Mil. Div. 1st Class), J.P. for Norfolk, Private Chamberlain to the Pope, and helper of every good cause—was born 1843, only son of the Hon. Edward Kenyon, of Maesfen, Cheshire, and his first wife Caroline, daughter of Lord George Beresford, G.C.H.; educated at Harrow and Christ Church, Oxford (B.A., 1867); received into the Church 1870; joined the Pontifical Zouaves in the same year, and resisted the taking of Rome by Victor Emmanuel: Joint Hon. Secretary to the British Home Rule Association 1887-88; succeeded to the Gillingham property on the death of his aunt, Mrs Elizabeth Eden, 1889; built the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Succour, Gillingham, 1898, and represented the Diocese of Northampton on the Secondary Education Council. Mr Kenyon, who married (1871) MARY D'ARCY, daughter of Lord Henry F. KERR (the member of a family eminent for its converts to the Church) has used his pen as well as his sword in the service of the Church, his admirable letters, declaring war on modern compromises and shams of all sorts having been a welcome feature of Catholic journalism in the brave days that are gone.

Keogh, Surgeon-General Sir Alfred, K.C.B., M.D. LL.D., (Royal University of Ireland) Hon. Physician to the King, Director-General of the Army Medical Service—born 1857, son of Henry Keogh, B.L., R.M., of Roscommon; educated for Medicine at Queen's College, Galway; Herbert Prizeman and Martin Gold Medallist at Army Medical School; entered Army 1880; Major Roy. Army Med. Corps 1892, and Lieut.-Col. 1900; served in South Africa 1899-1901, being latterly Principal Medical Officer of No. 2 Hospital, Pretoria; specially promoted and created C.B. for his services 1900; Deputy Director-General A.M.S. 1902-04, and Director-General 1905; knighted 1906; is a Knight of Grace of the Hospital of St John of Jerusalem; married first Elizabeth, daughter of D. Bettany, of Caius College, Cambridge, and married (secondly) Mr Coulson Kernahan, the well-known author. Mrs Coulson Kernahan, who is a convert to the Church, is the author of Trewinnott of Guy's—The House of Rimmon—Frank Redland, Recruit, and other novels.

Kerr, General Lord Ralph Drury, C.B., Colonel of the 10th Hussars—born 1837, second surviving son of 7th Marquis of Lothian, and heir-presumptive of the present peer. Received into the Church at the age of sixteen, following the example of his mother; entered the 10th Hussars 1857; served in the Afghan War of 1878-9, in command of his regiment, and was awarded the Companionship of the Bath; Inspecting Officer of Auxiliary Cavalry 1883-88; became Major-General 1890; commanded at the Curragh 1891-96; retired 1898; married (1878) Lady Ann Fitzalan Howard, daughter of 14th Duke of Norfolk.

Kerr, Philip Henry—born 1882, eldest son of General Lord Ralph Kerr by Lady Anne Fitzalan-Howard, daughter of 14th Duke of Norfolk; educated at the Oratory School and New College, Oxford (1st cl. Modern History 1904); holds Government appointment in South Africa.

Kerr, Admiral of the Fleet LORD WALTER, G.C.B .- born in 1830, a younger son of the 7th Marquis of Lothian. He was twelve years old when his mother was received into the Church, his own reception taking place three years later, when he was a "middy." The young sailor had not long to wait for his first taste of active service, for, on the outbreak of the Crimean War, he accompanied the Baltic Fleet. During the Indian Mutiny he served with Peel's Naval Brigade, taking part in the Relief of Lucknow, He became Captain in 1872, Rear-Admiral in 1889, and Vice-Admiral in 1805, and was knighted in the following year. After being second in command of the Mediterranean Squadron, he commanded the Channel Fleet, and was successively Junior and Second Lord of the Admiralty, before reaching, in 1899, the highest post of naval administration by his appointment as First Sea Lord. On retiring in 1904, the King notified his promotion as Admiral of the Fleet "in recognition of the great value to the Navy and to the nation of his fifty years' of naval service." Lord Walter married (in 1873) Lady AMABEL COWPER, daughter of the 6th Earl Cowper, a convert to the Church in 1872 whose literary and other labours will be long remembered, and who died in 1905. Lord Walter is President of the Nottingham Diocesan Schools Association and a member of the Catholic Education Council.

Kerr, Rev. RALPH FRANCIS, of the London Oratory—born 1874, eldest son of Admiral Lord Walter and Lady Amabel Kerr; educated at the Oratory School and Christ Church, Oxford (B.A. 1897).

Kerr, LIEUT. ANDREW WILLIAM, R.N.—born 1877, second son of Admiral of the Fleet Lord Walter Kerr, G.C.B., by his wife, Lady Amabel, daughter of Earl Cowper; educated at the Oratory School; entered Navy 1890; Lieutenant 1898.

Kerr, FATHER WILLIAM HOBART, S.J.—born 1836, son of Lord Henry Kerr, of Huntlyburn, N.B., by his wife, the only daughter of Sir Alexander Hope, G.C.B., M.P.; received into the Church in 1852, and was in Madras Civil Service before he joined the Society.

Kerr, Captain Henry Francis Hobart, late 3rd Cameronians—born 1878, eldest son of Major Francis E. Kerr, Rifle Brigade, of Huntlyburn, N.B., and his wife Mary Frances, daughter of Robert Monteith, of Carstairs, N.B.

Kerry, Bishop of (Right Rev. John Mangan)—born 1842 in Co. Kerry, son of J. Mangan. After a distinguished course at Maynooth, he served in Liverpool, and was successively Parish Priest of Glengariffe, Sneem and Kenmare, Archdeacon of Aghadoe, and V G. of Cork; consecrated Bishop of Kerry 1904.

Kershaw, MISS FRANCES J.—Author of Our Mother (a record of spiritual vicissitudes very personal in its making)—Mrs Markham's Nieces—Fun and Frolic (a series of plays), and The Children of the Crib, a singularly beautiful series of appeals to the personal love and service of our Saviour.

Kettle, Thomas Michael, M.P. for N. Tyrone since 1906—born 1880, son of A. Kettle, of Artane, Co. Dublin; educated at Clongowes, at University College, Stephen's Green, and Royal University of Ireland (B.A. and honours in Mental and Moral Science 1902); called to the Bar at King's Inns, Dublin, 1906 (Victoria Prizeman). Mr Kettle's interest in Catholic journalism led to his editing The Nationalist, an organ of "Progressive Catholicism." Though young as a Parliamentary recruit, he has been named one of the most brilliant of the juniors of his party, and is sometimes cited as an example of the success achieved by the Jesuits and other Catholic educationalists in Ireland even under existing circumstances.

Kiely, Canon Walter—Member of Plymouth Chapter since 1899, and for many years in charge of the mission at Portland.

Kilbride, Denis, M.P.—born 1848, son of Thomas Kilbride, of Luggacurren, Queen's County; educated at Clongowes; represented S. Kerry as Nationalist 1887-95, N. Galway 1895-1900, and South Kildare from 1903.

Kildare and Leighlin, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. PATRICK FOLEY, D.D.), Commissioner of National Education in Ireland since 1901—born 1858, son of Patrick Foley, of Mensal Lodge, Co. Carlow; educated at Carlow College (Solus Theological and Scripture Prizeman 1881); B.A. of London; ordained 1881; Professor of Philosophy and Scripture at Carlow College 1885-92; President of Carlow College 1892-96; consecrated 1896 as Coadjutor of Kildare and Leighlin, and succeeded as Bishop 1897. The Bishop, speaking as the only Catholic clerical representative on the Board of Primary Education, was almost the first to raise against Mr Birrell's Irish Bill of 1907 the protest that was finally passed by the Convention.

Kilkelly, Surgeon-Lieut.-Colonel Charles Randolph, C.M.G., M.V.O., Governor of Osborne House (Convalescent Home for Officers), Isle of Wight—born 1861, son of Surgeon-Gen. C. E. Kilkelly, J.P., of Drimcong, Co. Galway; educated at Downside and Trinity College, Dublin, where he graduated as M.B. and B.Ch.; having been gazetted to the R.A.M.C., served for a time in India on the personal staff of the Duke of Connaught; his service in the Khartoum Expedition of 1898 brought him mention in despatches, and his meritorious management, first of the Portland, and later of the Pretoria Imperial Yeomanry Hospitals during the South African War gained him a C.M.G.; married (1893) FLORENCE, daughter of the Hon. Henry William Petre. He is a J.P. for Hants.

Killala, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. JOHN CONMY, D.D.)—consecrated 1892 Bishop-Coadjutor to Bishop Conway, whose successor he was in the See of Killala 1893.

Killanin, LORD (MARTIN HENRY FITZPATRICK MORRIS, Bart., J.P., D.L.)—born 1867, eldest son of Lord Morris and Killanin, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, by Anna, dau. of the Hon, H. G. Hughes, Baron of the Court of Exchequer of Ireland; educated at Trinity College, Dublin (B.A.); was his father's Circuit Registrar and Private Secretary 1885-89; called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn 1892; sat in the House of Commons as a Unionist for the Borough of Galway 1900-1901, succeeding in that year as 2nd Baron Killanin (created 1900, U.K.). Lord Killanin, who is by no means a politician of cut and dried conventions, early gave proof of his originality and distinction as thinker and writer in his Life's Greatest Possibility; while in 1897 appeared Transatlantic Traits, the result of travels in America companioned by the Hon. William Peel. He was appointed in 1904 a member of Lord Lytton's Chantry Bequest Committee, whose excellent decisions have been practically flouted by the Incompetents who persevere in the infliction of mostly inferior pictures on the Nation.

Kilmore, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. Andrew Boylan, C.SS.R.)—a native of the Diocese, and was in turn a Professor in St Patrick's College, Cavan, and Bursar of Maynooth College; joined the Redemptorist Order 1887, and has since shared in their labours in Ireland, England and Scotland, being for eight years at St Mary's, Clapham; consecrated Bishop of Kilmore 1907.

King, Austin Michael—born 1876, second son of Austin Joseph King, K.S.G., J.P., F.S.A., of Bath, and his wife Marie, daughter of Henry le Brasseur, of Wilryck; educated at Stonyhurst; admitted a Solicitor. and became a partner in the firm of Stone, King and Co., which his father's high ability had already raised to a position of more than local reputation; Member of Catholic Education Council; Member of Bath Education Committee; Hon. Sec. of Clifton Catholic Rescue Society (founded 1904), and of the Dioc. Schools Association; married (1901) GERALDINE, second daughter of Andrew Nugent COMYN, J.P., of Ballinderry, Ballinasloe, Co. Galway.

King, Lady Clare—youngest daughter of Earl of Gains-Borough; married (1907) at Exton Park, Charles M. King, Coldstream Guards.

King, Mrs Hamilton-daughter of Admiral W. A. Baillie Hamilton: received into the Church in 1800 by Cardinal Manning, with whom she became acquainted by his mediation in the Dock Strike. Profoundly interested in the welfare of the world, Mrs Hamilton King, in such poems as The Disciples and Aspromonte, gave voice to an enthusiasm of humanity which carried so generous a reader as Cardinal Manning far beyond the consideration of this or that detail in the facts chosen for illustration. It is said that the poet was willing that her new allegiance should involve alterations in some of her published verses, but the Cardinal's decision was " Not a line." Mrs Hamilton King (who is the widow of the publisher, Mr H. S. King), is also the author of A Book of Dreams, Ballads of the North, The Prophecy of Westminster, The Foreshadowing of a Saint, and The Hours of the Passion—poems of spirituality, saints and martyrs among poems, that this generation has not seen surpassed.

King, THOMAS GEORGE, K.S.G.—born in London 1865, son of William Shand King; educated at City of London College; an accountant; Hon. Sec. of Catholic Guardians Association and of Southwark Rescue Society; married (1888) Miss JOHNSTON, sister of Mgr Johnston, of Brighton.

Kirby, EDMUND, F.R.I.B.A., F.S.I.—educated at the Royal Academy Schools, London; member of the firm of E. Kirby and Sons, Liverpool; on Council of Royal Institute of British Architects; President of Liverpool Architectural Society; Member of Catholic Education Council; Vice-President of Shrewsbury Dioc. Schools Association; Vice-Chairman of the Shrewsbury Protection Society; President of the Birkenhead Catholic Association; married Rose, daughter of B. Dodsworth, of Burton Croft, York. Mr Kirby's many buildings include St Werburgh's Church, Chester; Our Lady's, Stockport; Our Lady and St Joseph's, Seacombe; St Laurence's, Birkenhead; Holy Name, Birkenhead; also Churches at Llandudno, New Brighton, Market Drayton, Farnworth, etc.; Walton Municipal Schools (largest in England); Birkdale and Farnworth Reformatory Schools; Colleges at Notre Dame. Liverpool, and Holt Hill, Birkenhead; Pantasaph Convent and Orphanage; and Banks in various parts of the country, Kirk, Rev. Francis Johnston, O.S.C.—a convert from the ranks of the Anglican clergy; received by Cardinal Manning at Farm Street in 1854. Father Kirk then went to the English College, Rome, whence, after ordination, he was recalled by Dr Manning to Bayswater to join the Borromean Community, to which he is still attached. He has written some Reminiscences of an Oblate of St Charles; and also a very delightful little book, Some Notable Conversions, which tells the tale of his own conversion, and that of the Ram and Cliffe families, with whom, in his Anglican days, he was intimately associated in Ireland.

Kirsopp, James Joseph, J.P. for Northumberland—born 1852, son of James Kirsopp, of The Spital, Northumberland, by Elizabeth, daughter of George Thomas Dunn; educated at Stonyhurst; late Captain Northumberland Artillery.

Kirwan, Miss Flora-born 1865, daughter of John Forbes Stratford Kirwan, of Movne, Co. Galway, by his wife Lady Victoria Hastings, daughter of 2nd Marquis of Hastings, and Barbara, Baroness Grey de Ruthyn, Miss Kirwan, the child of confessors (converts in modern phrase), and the inheritor also of the blood of a martyr, being a descendant of Blessed Margaret Pole, has given her life to social work among the poor of London, lightening for others that slow involuntary martyrdom inflicted by modern conditions of life on large classes of men and women. Miss Kirwan's Dining Rooms for Business Girls are admitted models, and the millions of meals they have dispensed will have salutary effects, not only on the present, but also on future generations. The St Edward's Club for Girls is one other among the various institutions by which Miss Kirwan has carried on her conspicuous, if unavowed and unadvertised, apostolate as a friend to all in need.

Knight, Major Henry, late R.A., Lord of the Manor of Axminster—born 1849, eldest son of Henry Knight, of Cloakham, Devon, and Terrace Lodge, Axminster, by Mary, daughter of Amos Barnes, of Tillworth House; educated at Stonyhurst; entered Royal Artillery 1869; served in the Egyptian Campaign of 1882; Major 1885; retired 1894.

sometime Sub-Prior of Downside Abbey; Chaplain at Stanbrook Abbey 1900-1907; now at Beccles.

Knill, Sir John, Bart., Sheriff and Alderman of the City of London, a Lieutenant of the City and J.P. for the County of London—born 1856, son of Sir Stuart Knill, 1st Bart., Lord Mayor of London in 1893, and Mary, daughter of C. R. Parker; educated at Beaumont and in Austria; entered the Corporation as a Common Councillor 1893; succeeded his father as 2nd Baronet 1898; elected Sheriff 1903; late Master of the Plumbers' Company; married (1882) Edith, daughter of John Hardman Powell. Sir John Knill will, in the ordinary course of events, be Lord Mayor in 1910-11, repeating the service of his father.

Knowles, Richard Brinsley Sheridan—son of R. B. Knowles (Barrister-at-Law, journalist and convert to the Church in 1849); educated at Ratcliffe College, Leicestershire; entered Civil Service; contributor to magazines and periodicals; author of Glencoonoge, a novel of Irish life. Mr Knowles can boast of a literary ancestry of several generations, for his grandfather was James Sheridan Knowles, the dramatist, author of The Hunchback; while his great-great-grandmother was Hester Knowles, née Sheridan, aunt of the author of The School for Scandal.

Kolbë, Rev. Frederick C., D.D., Editor of The South African Catholic Magazine—born 1852, son of a Minister of the Dutch Reformed Church; spent early years in South Africa and won a scholarship which enabled him to study at London University, where he obtained First Class Honours in Mathematics, Jurisprudence and Roman Law. Having been received into the Church, he entered the English College, Rome, 1877, gaining the Gold Medal for an essay on Miracles, and was ordained for the English mission; instead, however, he returned to work among his own people in South Africa in 1882, lamented by Cardinal Manning; in Cape Town this devoted son and his father for some years occupied the same district, the one as a Priest, the other as a Protestant Clergyman of the Rhenish Missionary Society. While editor of The Catholic Magazine, Dr. Kolbë has re-issued in book form some of his papers on ecclesiastical, literary and artistic subjects; also some of his verses. Long a leading figure on South African platforms, Dr Kolbë, first and last a friend of the Boer, was once a chief speaker at Afrikander Congresses, held amid fierce political conditions now happily ended. A more recent appearance under entirely pacific circumstances was at the installation of the Prince of Wales as Chancellor of Capetown University in 1902, Dr Kolbë, as one of the leading Capetown educationalists being selected to move the appointment of a Vice-Chancellor. Sir William Butler, in From Naboth's Vineyard, pays his tribute to Dr Kolbë as "one of South Africa's greatest sons." He is the author of The Art of Life, Minnie Caldwell (a book of stories for girls), and other works, while his reputation as a botanist and geologist stands among the highest in South Africa.

Konody, PAUL G., art critic of The Daily Mail and The Observer—born at Buda Pesth 1872; a Londoner since 1889; Editor of The Artist 1900-02; late Master of the Junior Art Worker's Guild; married (1899) ISABEL, daughter of J. N. PYKE-NOTT, of Bydown. Author of The Art of Walter Crane—Velasquez, his Life and Work—Filippino Lippi.

Krishnagur (India), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. S. TAVEGGIA)—consecrated 1906.

Kumbaconum (India), Bishop of (Right Rev. Hugh M. Bottero)—consecrated 1899.

Kuypers, Dom Arthur Benedict, O.S.B.—son of late Charles Kuypers, of Belsize Park Gardens, N.W.; educated at Downside, where he afterwards became a professor; formerly on the staff of Benet House, Cambridge. Editor of The Book of Cerne (1902).

Kyle, Canon John J., Member of Aberdeen Chapter; Priest at Presholme, Enzie, Banffshire.

Kylie, EDWARD J., B.A.—born in Canada; educated at University of Toronto and at Balliol College, Oxford (Honours in Modern History 1903). Returning to Canada, Mr Kylie has joined the teaching staff of the University of Toronto as Lecturer in History, and has made himself a specialist on the life and times of St Boniface.

Kynnaird, Viscount (Charles Bandini, Duca di Mandragone)—born at Rome 1862, eldest surviving son of the 9th Earl of Newburgh; educated under English tutors; married (1885) Donna Maria, daughter of Prince di Trabia e di Butera.

Labouchere, Mrs Henry—Henrietta, daughter of S. Hodson; a popular actress when, in 1866, she married the Right Hon. Henry Labouchere, editor of Truth, and now of His Majesty's Privy Council.

Lacombe, Father Albert, O.M.I., Indian Missionary—born in Montreal 1827, and kept in 1899 his sacerdotal golden jubilee in the North West Territory, where he was the pioneer missionary in the "Great Lone Land" in days before the Hudson Bay Territory formed part of the Dominion of Canada. The name of the Diocese of St Albert and that of the district of Alberta are, in fact, derived from this intrepid Oblate's Christian name. In 1885 Père Lacombe (known among the Indians as "The Great Chief of Prayer") was sent by the Dominion Government on several diplomatic missions to the Blackfeet and the Stony Indians, also to the métis and Indian tribes of the Athabasca and the Peace Rivers. He is a proficient in Indian philology and the author of a Cree grammar and dictionary.

Lacoste, Hon. Sir Alexandre, Privy Councillor and Senator of Canada, and Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Quebec—born 1842, son of a Canadian Senator and descendant of an old family of Languedoc settlers; educated at Laval University (LL.D.); took silk in 1880; Legislative Councillor of Quebec 1882; Canadian Senator 1884; Speaker 1891; knighted 1892; married (1866) Marie Louise, daughter of Léon Globensky, of Montreal.

Lafont, FATHER EUGENE, S.J., C.I.E., Knight of the Belgian Order of Leopold—born 1837 in Belgium; entered the Belgian Province S.J. 1854; went to Calcutta 1865; Rector of St Xavier's College there 1871; founder of the College Observatory; Fellow of Calcutta University 1874; created C.I.E. (1880) for his services to Higher Education. Father Lafont is also Vice-President of the Indian Society for the Cultivation of Science, an Associate Member of the Asiatic Society, Officier of the French Academy, and M.I.E.E.

Lathrop, Rose Hawthorne (commonly called Mother Mary Alphonsa, of the Dominican Community of the Third Order, Cherry Street, New York)—born in Massachusetts, 1851, daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, a novelist dear to England as to America; married (1871) George Parsons Lathrop, a Unitarian, who with his wife, became a Catholic in 1894. Of late years Mrs Lathrop has devoted herself to schemes for the betterment of the New York poor, particularly the cancer-stricken, for whom she has founded and directs St Rose's Free Cancer Hospital, New York, with a country house in Woodchester County. Author of Along the Shore (poems), Memories of Hawthorne (written with her husband) and A Story of Courage.

Laurier, RIGHT HON. SIR WILFRID-was born in the Province of Ouebec 1841, of French Canadian parents, From Assumption College he passed to McGill University, where he graduated, and, after practising some few years at the Bar, entered the Quebec Parliament in 1871, having, while still in his 'twenties, married Miss Zoë LAFONTAINE, of Montreal. As head of Inland Revenue in the Mackenzie Ministry in 1877, Laurier showed qualities which led to his election as leader of the Liberal Party in the Dominion in 1891, by which time he was—what he still is—member for Ouebec East in the Federal House of Commons, When he accepted the Premiership in 1896, he was the first French Canadian to take office—a triumph at once for his race and for the political system under which the fittest man in Canada, though French by blood and Catholic by religion, succeeded Sir Charles Tupper as ruler of the country. The Laurier Administrations of 1896, 1900 and 1904, are associated not only with material success for Canada and his own personal display of high powers of statesmanship, but have been marked also by an interchange of popular feeling and affection between England and the Dominion new to history. At Queen Victoria's Jubilee, London gave its loudest cheer for Sir Wilfrid, a popular triumph he has repeated during successive visits to London for the Conferences, where his voice has been the moderate, the wise, and, in great measure, the controlling one. A perfect bilinguist, he has won fame as an orator in English as well as in French, though perhaps his most memorable saying was that in which he summed up the position of French Canadians under British rule: "En effet, nous Canadiens français, si nous sommes une race conquise, nous avons aussi fait une conquête—la conquête de la liberté."

Lavalle, Canon Michael—born Co. Mayo; educated at Blairs College, at St Sulpice, Paris, and at the Scots College, Rome; ordained 1887; M.R. of St John's, Perth, from 1902; member of Dunkeld Chapter.

Leaver, Mrs E.Castle ("Jean Delaire") Author of Around a Distant Star and A Dream of Fame.

Lechmere, Joscelyne—born 1871; his father was the late Sir Edmund Lechmere, M.P., of The Rhydd, Worcestershire; and his mother the translator into English of the beautiful liturgy of the Greek Church; married (1907) LILY, daughter of John Cassavetti, of Myr Hall, Torquay. The Lechmere family, which has held lands at Hanley in Worcestershire, since William I, maintained a chaplaincy at Fownhope, their Worcestershire seat, early in the 17th century. At least two of its members became priests at that period, of whom one, Dr Edmund Lechmere, died at Douai College about 1640, leaving works which "have merited," says Dodd, "a preference to all our controversial writers for acuteness and just reasoning." Mr Joscelyne Lechmere, who has returned with alacrity to the old faith, also possesses an effective pen.

Leclezio, Hon. Sir Eugene—born 1832, eldest son of E. Leclezio, of Mauritius; called to the Bar at Middle Temple 1858; Judge of Mauritius 1882; Chief Justice of Mauritius 1883-98; Knighted 1887; retired 1898; married Camille, daughter of Captain J. Accarry.

fessor 1866-78; matriculated at London Univ.; ordained 1867; entered Chaplains' Department of the Army 1878; stationed in Malta and Bermuda; took part in Ashanti Expedition 1895-96; was Senior Catholic Chaplain to the Forces in the South African War, 1900-02, being mentioned in despatches and decorated for his services; retired list 1903.

Leicester, Hubert Aloysius, Alderman and J.P. for Worcester—born 1855, son of William Leicester, of Worcester; educated near Worcester; Chartered Accountant; Mayor of Worcester 1904-05; President of Worcester Chamber of Commerce 1900; author of pamphlets on social, financial, and musical subjects; married Agnes, daughter of Martin Grafton, of Coughton, Warwickshire.

Leigh, HENRY VINCENT—born 1867, son of William Leigh, J.P., D.L., of Woodchester Park, Gloucestershire, who married Caroline, daughter of Sir John Cotterell, Bart., of Garnons, Herefordshire. (Mr William Leigh, who was a Scholar at Brasenose College, Oxford, purchased Woodchester Park from Lord Ducie in 1846, and, as a thank-offering for his conversion, built the neighbouring Dominican Church and Priory.) Mr Henry Leigh was educated at Oscott, and succeeded his brother in 1907.

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe, Postmaster-General of Canada -born 1866; educated at Laval University, where he was Professor of Law 1897; called to the Bar 1891; K.C. 1898; entered Dominion Parliament 1896, where he at present sits for two Counties, Gaspé and Nicolet; represented Canada before the Privy Council in London 1904; Solicitor-General of Canada 1904-06; married BERTHE, daughter of Sir Louis Jetté, K.C.M.G. M. Lemieux, in a lecture before the Society of Arts in 1905, pointed out that the French-Canadian element is by no means confined to the Province of Quebec, but is in a majority in many outside counties. returning members to the local legislatures, and is in some cases strong enough to secure places on the Executive. Their numbers exceeded a million and a half at the census of 1901, forming about 30 per cent of the Dominion population, with 80 per cent of their people concentrated in the Province of Quebec. The Quebec Act of 1774, officially recognizing their rights as Catholics, is their Magna Charta. M. Lemieux dwelt on the fact that it was not the furtraders or soldiers who were the makers of Canada, but the habitants, or peasant farmers.

Lennon, Right Rev. Mgr James (retired)—donor of the new chapel at Blairs College; in recognition of which great benefaction to the Church in Scotland he received a gold medal from Leo XIII in 1901. President of the Ushaw College 1887-90, and appointed to St Anne's-on-Sea 1890.

Lilly, WILLIAM SAMUEL, Man of Letters-born 1840, educated at Peterhouse, Cambridge (Hon, Fellow, M.A., and LL.M.): Barrister-at-Law: Under-Secretary of the Government of Madras 1860; received into the Church; Secretary of the Catholic Union of Great Britain since 1873; J.P. for Middlesex and London; married (1907) ANNA MARIE, daughter of Monsieur Felix EMERY. Both by his volumes and by his "Apostolate of the Reviews," Mr Lilly has made the outside public aware of himself as an authoritative Catholic writer, with a wide range of reading, a ripe intelligence, and a style in controversy that is trenchant without being truculent—" peremptory" is the word applied to it a little complainingly by Dr Barry. His review articles have mostly done a double service, being republished in such works as Ancient Religion and Modern Thought, Chapters in European History, A Century of Revolution. The Great Enigma, Renaissance Types, and Christianity and Modern Civilization. For a more limited class he is the author also (with Mr Justice Wallis) of a Manual of the Law as it Specially affects Catholics. "Mr Lilly can be amusing and satirical," says Dr Barry in an estimate of this author, his friend; "his tone is that of a man of the world; yet, by a singular combination of qualities, rare among Englishmen, he unites with this worldly wisdom a deference to the ideals, religious and even ascetic. which are held up to an unbelieving generation by the Catholic Church."

Limerick, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. EDWARD THOMAS O'DWYER, D.D.)—born 1842, only son of John Keatinge O'Dwyer; consecrated Bishop of the diocese 1886, in succession to Dr Butler. As a publicist on occasion, as a controversialist on the Education question, and as a writer of letters not always pastoral, the Bishop holds an authority by no means confined to his own countrymen.

Liverpool, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. THOMAS WHITESIDE)—born at Lancaster 1857, son of Robert Whiteside; educated at St Edward's College, Liverpool, at Ushaw, and at the English College, Rome; after ordination in 1885, in St John Lateran, he became Professor at St Joseph's College, Upholland, and subsequently its highly successful Vice-President and its President; Canon of Liverpool 1893. In 1894, at the early age of 37, he was consecrated ruler of the largest diocese in England.

Llandaff, Viscount (Right Hon, Henry Matthews, P.C.) -was born in 1826, in Ceylon, where his father, Henry Matthews, was Puisne Judge, his mother being a Blount of Orleton, After studies made with brilliant success at Paris and London Universities, he was called to the Bar in 1850, taking silk and becoming a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn eighteen years later, M.P. for Dungaryan (Conservative) 1868-74: Home Secretary 1886-92, during which time he sat for East Birmingham, and was, at least at the outset, in close touch with Lord Randolph Churchill; in 1895 created Viscount Llandaff, a title suggested by his descent from the Welsh family of Mathew, of whom a branch formerly held the Irish Earldom of Landaff. In 1897 he was Chairman of the Royal Commission on the Water Supply of the Metropolis. In the Upper Chamber Lord Llandaff (though a great sufferer from ill-health) has been a vigilant defender of Catholic interests, attempting to amend the Royal Declaration at Coronations, as well as Mr Birrell's abortive Education Bill. Lord Llandaff is a Member of the Senate of the University of London, and a "founder" of Westminster Cathedral, Lord Llandaff's great wealth of wit equalled his great wealth in fees during his career at the Bar; he was ever the best talker at Bar messes when he took the Oxford circuit, and some of his personal memories of Irish electoral humours he wrote down, at the instance of Mr Wilfrid Ward, for The Dublin Review in 1906.

Locke, Lieut.-Colonel WILLIAM HUME NORMAN, late E. Yorks Regiment—born 1846; Lieut-Col. 1886, retired.

Loder, Dowager Lady—Maria Georgiana, daughter of Hans Busk, and granddaughter of Sir Wadsworth Busk; married (1847) Sir Robert Loder, 1st Baronet, M.P., who died 1888. Lady Loder, who was received into the Church in London in 1897, has contributed to Roads to Rome a brief record of the signposts by which she was guided. She is a "founder" of Westminster Cathedral.

Loewenstein-Wertheim, PRINCESS LUDWIG OF—LADY ANNE daughter of 4th Earl of Mexborough—born 1866; married (1897) Prince Ludwig Karl zu Loewenstein-Wertheim, of Castle Litznitz, Frankfort-on-the-Oder.

Loftus, JOHN EDWARD BLAKE, J.P. for Co. Kilkenny—born 1876, second son of John Murphy, J.P., of Mount Loftus, Co. Kilkenny, and Richfield, Co. Wexford, by Belinda, daughter of Pierse Creagh, J.P., of Mount Elva, and Bryan's Castle, Co. Clare; educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate, and the Oratory School, Edgbaston; assumed name of Loftus under will of Sir Francis Loftus, Bart.; is Captain 16th Vol. Batt. Rifle Brigade (London Irish); married (1903) PAULINE MAY, only daughter of August Lichtenstadt, of 19 Seymour Street, W.

Logue, H. E. MICHAEL, Cardinal Archbishop of Armagh born in County Donegal in 1840, the year in which his present Cathedral at Armagh was begun. Before he was vet a priest he filled the chairs of Theology and Belles Lettres in the Irish College, Paris, where he was ordained 1866. Returning to his native diocese of Raphoe in 1874, he was consecrated its Bishop five years later, and for his flock in famine times, he in one year collected close on £30,000. The parish priests of Armagh chose him as Coadjutor to their Primate in 1887, and he became, a year later, Archbishop, and Primate of Ireland: his elevation to the Cardinalate in 1893 was a dignity never before attained in the line of 108 Primates from St Patrick, Like his English compeer Cardinal Vaughan, who received the Red Hat in the same year, and who had the Irish Cardinal at his side at the laying of the foundation stone of Westminster Cathedral, he has laboured strenuously for his own cathedral, the memorable consecration of which took place in the presence of the Papal Legate in July, 1904.

Longueville, Thomas—born 1844, eldest surviving son of Thomas Longueville, of Pen-y-llan, Shropshire, and Anne, daughter of Charles Thomas Jones; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; received into the Church 1877. It was as the creator of the "Prig" series that Mr Longueville first showed himself master of a witty and caustic pen, a pen turned also, with equal advantage to readers, in the direction of serious biography, and a tale of the Recusants, which is one of the most convincing of its kind. Mr Longueville was a regular contributor for twenty years to The Saturday Review, when that paper belonged to the Beresford-Hopes, He is a Magistrate for Shropshire, and married (1868) Marry, only daughter of Alexander Robertson, of Balgownie Lodge, Aberdeenshire. Author of The Life of a Prig, The Prig in Search of a Religion, The Prigment, The Churgress, The Platitudes of a Pessimist, Pryings among Private Papers, A Romance of the Recusants, The Life of a Conspirator, A Life of Archbishop Laud, Riches or Ruin, The Life of Sir Kenelm Digby, Benvenuto Cellini, his Times and Contemporaries, and other works.

Loudoun, Countess of—Hon. Alice, third daughter of 1st Lord Howard of Glossop; married (1880) the Earl of Loudoun, who has not followed his father the late Lord Donington, nor his sister the late Duchess of Norfolk, into the Catholic Church.

Louth, Lord (Randal Pilgrim Ralph Plunkett, J.P., D.L.)—born on board the yacht "Pilgrim" near Dieppe, 1868, only son of 13th Baron (created 1541, Irel.) and Anna, daughter of Walter M'Geough Bond, of Drumsill, Co. Armagh; educated at St Mary's College, Oscott, and at Lord Petre's school at Woburn Park; was Lieut. in the Militia battalions of the Manchester and Wiltshire Regiments, retiring 1890; succeeded his father 1883; married (1890) Eugenne, daughter of Captain Edmond H. W. Bellars, Vice-Consul at Biarritz. The 6th Baron was outlawed for the support he gave to the Stuarts in the Civil War, a support continued by his successor in favour of James II in exile, and this sentence was only reversed to the 11th Baron.

Lovat, Lord (Simon Joseph Fraser, C.V.O., C.B., D.S.O.), Colonel of Lovat's Scouts Imperial Yeomanry, D.L. for Inverness-shire—born 1871, eldest son of 15th Baron by Alice, daughter of T. Weld-Blundell, of Ince-Blundell; educated at Fort Augustus Abbey School and Magdalen College, Oxford; succeeded his father as 16th Baron (of Scotland, created 1539) and 3rd Baron (of the U.K. created 1837); served as Lieut, in 1st Life Guards and 2nd Batt. Cameron Highlanders successively. Not since the '45 had there been such a gathering of the Fraser Clan (on both occasions headed by their Chief) as in the first months of 1900, when Lord Lovat enrolled his Scouts for the South African War, an act of patriotism which, with his own personal service in the field, was rewarded (not too handsomely) by a C.B. and a D.S.O. Lord Lovat is owner of some of the finest sporting ground in Scotland, and of Beaufort Castle, completed by the late Lord Lovat in 1886. and standing on a portion of the site of the Castle of Downie, described by Sir Walter Scott in his Tales of a Grandfather. He has made adventurous travels, sporting and otherwise, in Abyssinia and elsewhere, some of his love of adventure having perhaps come to him by way of Stevenson and Kipling, two modern authors whom his good literary taste early led him to admire.

LOVAT, LADY—ALICE, daughter of Thomas Weld-Blundell, of Ince Blundell: married (1866) the 15th Lord Lovat (who died 1887). Author of Clare Vaughan (a biography of her cousin, Sister Mary Clare, O.S.F., which has gone into several editions)—Life of Louis de Blois—Seeds and Sheaves, Thoughts for Incurables and Sown in Tears (a series of thoughts offered for the consolation of all who suffer).

Lowry-Corry, Rev. Gerald—born 1871, second son of Admiral the Hon. Armar Lowry-Corry, who married Geraldine, daughter of James King-King, sometime M.P. of Staunton-on-Arrow; educated at the Charterhouse; formerly Lieut. 2nd Batt. Cheshire Regiment; ordained priest of the Congregation of the Oratory 1896.

Loyola, Mother Mary, of the Bar Convent, York—the oldest convent in England, which, as a proof of its vitality has given us, in her works, a modern wealth of devotional writings for the lucky endowment of the rising generation of English-speaking Catholics all the world over. The list is long as well as inspiriting, and includes The Child of God—Holy Communion—The Soldier of Christ—Confession and Communion—Hail, Full of Grace—Jesus of Nazareth—Welcome and Home for Good, the happily chosen title of an affectionate conferring with girls on their leaving school. Of these works, with which the name of Father Thurston is associated as Editor, the words of a clerical reviewer may well be quoted:—"Priests and Religious, get Mother Loyola's books, all of them. They are like spring flowers with the scent of Heaven that gives to us and our children the taste for the things above, the only true values on earth."

Lucas, FATHER HERBERT, S. J.—born at Croydon 1852, son of Edward Lucas and Frances Everett, of Marlborough, Norfolk; nephew of Frederick Lucas, M.P., founder of The Tablet—these two brothers being the pioneer Victorian converts from Quakerism, a form of religion to which the Anglican polemics of the 17th century paid unconscious homage by describing it as the "Papist's younger brother." Father Lucas was educated at Baylis House and at Beaumont; graduated M.A. of London 1878; and entered the Society 1869. With a commanding pen, often exercised for the advantage of the readers of the weekly paper his uncle made famous. Father Lucas is known by the breadth and depth of his writings. The descendant of a long line of Puritans, he is a votary of religious art: and even to the various problems of modern education he brings what is so generally absent, an educated opinion. His work in the Society has lain at Stonyhurst, Mount St Mary's, St Beuno's College, at Roehampton, at Farm Street, and in Rome; and the books that stand to his name are Fra Girolamo Savonarola-The Westminster Cathedral and the History of Ecclesiastical Architecture and In the Morning of Life: Considerations for Boys.

Lucas-Shadwell, WILLIAM, J.P., D.L.—born 1852, only son of William Drew Lucas-Shadwell, J.P., D.L., of Fairlight, Sussex, and Florentia, daughter of the Rev. Henry Wynch, Rector of Pett; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; represented Hastings in Parliament as a Conservative 1895-1900; married (1878) Beatrice, daughter of J. Buckley Rutherford; received into the Church with his wife by Cardinal Merry del Val 1902.

Malta, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. PETER PACE, Archbishop of Rhodes)—born in Malta; consecrated Bishop of Gozo 1877; translated to Malta, with titular rank of Archbishop of Rhodes, 1889. On the occasion of King Edward's and Queen Alexandra's visit to Malta in the spring of 1907, His Grace ordained that on the arrival of the royal yacht, the Pro-Cathedral of St John's should peal a signal for all the churches in the Diocese to ring for half-an-hour. On the landing of the King and Queen the same was done until their Majesties reached the Palace, and the peals repeated whenever they passed. These peals of church-bells, rung by Catholic authority, in honour of a Sovereign whose Protestantism is the ground and the essence of his rule, and who cannot be crowned until he has done despite to the Catholic religion, is cited as one of the many instances of the triumph of the amenities of practical life over tradition and even logic. The bells that rang for Edward VII in Malta rang also a rebuff to Literalism.

Meagher, Michael, M.P.—returned as a Nationalist for Kilkenny (North) 1906.

Meath, BISHOP OF (Most Rev. LAURENCE GAUGHRAN)—for over twenty years pastor of Kells; consecrated 1906. The Bishop, writing in 1901 on the prospects of a Cathedral for the Diocese, said that he kept the Irish emigrant in view as the "second line of support" for the undertaking. "Their number" (the Bishop wrote) "is legion. In the counties of Meath and Westmeath, which form the greater part of the diocese, there is a diminished population in fifty years of 148,000. In thirty years, from 1861 to 1891, our Catholic population in the diocese was diminished by 62,000. Making due allowance for the death-roll, even as augmented by famine and pestilence, we have had a vast exodus across the seas."

Mee, Arthur, journalist and scientific and antiquarian writer—born 1860, son of George Mee, sometime Editor of The Bradford Observer; began contributing to the Welsh Press (under pen-name "Idris") 1876; edited a Cardiff evening paper for some years; author of Llanelly Parish Church—Observational Astronomy—The Heavens at a Glance (annual)—and other works; editor of Cambrian Notes and Queries; founder (with Mr Norman Lattey) of the Astronomical Society of Wales, and member of the British Astronomical and other learned associations. Meliapur (India), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. T. RIBEIRO V. DE CASTRO)—consecrated 1899.

Mellor, Walter Clifford—Count of the Holy Roman Empire, Knight of the Order of St Catharine and Charles VII of Spain; married at St James's, Spanish Place (1896) Lady Helen Stewart, dau. of 9th Earl of Galloway.

Menevia, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. Francis Joseph Mostyn, D.D.)—born at Talacre 1860, 4th son of Sir Pyers Mostyn, 8th Bart., by the Hon. Frances Fraser, dau. of 14th Lord Lovat. (Through his maternal grandmother, a dau. of 7th Lord Stafford, the Bishop is descended from three of the English Martyrs—the Ven. Philip Howard, Earl of Arundell, the Ven. William Howard, Viscount Stafford, and Blessed Margaret Pole, Countess of Salisbury). He was educated at Oscott and Ushaw; ordained at Our Lady's church, Birkenhead, 1884, where he became Assistant-priest to his cousin, the late Mgr Slaughter, whom he succeeded (1891) as Rector; consecrated Bishop of Ascalon and V.A. of Wales 1895; translated to Menevia on the creation of that See (1898).

Merry del Val, H. E. RAPHAEL, Cardinal Secretary of State—born in London 1865, a British subject, being the son of Señor Don Rafael Merry del Val, then Secretary to the Spanish Embassy, London, and subsequently Spanish Ambassador to Austria and to the Holy See. His father (descended from a branch of the County Waterford family of Merry established in Spain) married the only dau. of the late Don Pedro José de Zulueta, Count de Torre Diaz, by the dau. of Brodie McGhie Willcocks, sometime M.P. His Eminence is thus the grandson of an English lady; while his mother was educated in England and lived there until her marriage. The future Cardinal's own upbringing was English, for from Baylis House, Slough, he passed to Beaumont, and thence to Ushaw, completing his course at Rome. There he was ordained at the age of twenty-four for the Diocese of Westminster, but was retained on special service of the Holy See as Cameriere Partecipante of Pope Leo, and shortly after admitted to the Noble Academy. While one of the youngest prelates in the Papal household, he was entrusted with many important missions, visiting England to invest Papal funds in British securities, and accompanying Mgr Ruffo Scilla, the Papal Envoy to Queen Victoria's Jubilee in 1887. In 1893 he was appointed Chamberlain to Leo XIII, and assigned apartments at the Vatican. He was Secretary to the Commission on Anglican Orders in 1896, and in the same year proceeded as Papal Delegate to Canada, where he successfully adjusted the claims of the Canadian Hierarchy, as to separate Catholic schools in Manitoba, with the policy of the Provincial and Dominion Governments advanced by eminent Catholic laymen like Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, a task demanding a breadth and independence of view in which the Delegate did not fail. His Eminence was President of the Academy of Noble Ecclesiastics 1899-1901, and was consecrated under the title of Bishop of Nicæa in 1900, and translated Archbishop of Nicosia in 1902. In the same year he published his book on The Truth of the Papal Claims, and visited London as Papal Envoy at the Coronation of King Edward VII. He was Secretary to the Papal Consistory convened after the death of Pope Leo in July, 1903, and succeeded Cardinal Rampolla as Pontifical Secretary of State in the October of that year, being thereafter preconized Cardinal. The cares of that office, always great, became acute as regards France shortly after Cardinal Merry del Val's accession, resulting in a long struggle of bad faith against Good Faith, of which the end is not yet. To the ordinary responsibility of his great office, the Cardinal adds that of being an Englishman. Cardinal Newman, in a famous passage, looked forward with longing to the time when England, with her traditional openness of dealing, her favour for free speech, and general love of liberty, should regain her fair share in the counsels of the Church; and on an English Cardinal Secretary of State (who, young as he is, has a great past, but for whom, in the hopes of many, a yet greater future is in store) depends in great measure the immediate failure or fulfilment of that inspiriting prevision.

Merton, Viscount (Thomas Horatio Nelson, who has not assumed the usual courtesy title of Viscount Trafalgar held by his late brother)—born 1857, eldest surviving son of 2nd Earl Nelson by Lady Mary Agar, dau. of 2nd Earl of Normanton. Earl Nelson, formerly President of the English Church Union, has but two surviving sons—Lord Merton and the Hon. E. Nelson, and both these have performed a feat of spiritual seamanship not unworthy the name of Nelson, for both have boarded the Barque of St Peter.

Messmer, Most Rev. Sebastian, Archbishop of Milwaukee—an Advocate of Women's right—or duty as Ruskin would have preferred to say—to take part in public life. "The time has gone by," his Grace says, "when Catholics may confine themselves solely to the exercise of their religious duties. Modern times call for the hearty co-operation of every good man and woman in the interests of religion, moral right, justice, and all that concerns organized society."

Meynell, EDGAR J .- born 1859, only surviving son of His Honour Judge Edgar Meynell, of North Kilvington and The Fryerage, Yarm, Yorks., Durham County Court Judge for over a quarter of a century, by Maria Louisa, dau, of Richard Short, of Edlington; educated at the Oratory School; called to the Bar at Middle Temple 1884; is Lord of the Manors of Yarm and Sowerby, Yorks, Many members of this ancient family of Meynell or Mennell, which settled in Yorkshire at the end of the 14th century, suffered penalties as recusants; and John Mennell was a prisoner in York Castle in the 17th century, his brother Anthony being slain at Marston Moor. In 1673 Roger Mennell married Ann. dau. of Edward Charlton, of Hesleyside, and among their children was a Dame of the English Benedictine Convent of Dunkirk. In the next generation Thomas Meynell, born 1737, became a Jesuit, and assigned his estates to his brother Edward, whose son, George Meynell, was called to the Bar, as was his nephew, Edgar John, the late County Court Judge, and, now again, Mr Edgar Meynell the present head of the family. The present mission at Kilvington (fostered by the family) dates from 1690.

Meynell, Thomas Henry—educated at Stonyhurst; admitted a Solicitor 1880; married (1883) Marguerite Mary Anketell, dau. of Walter Burke.

Meynell, Wilfrid, Journalist—born 1852, descended from a family settled during many generations at Stillington, in the North Riding of Yorks.; gt-gt-grandson on his mother's side, of William Tuke, of York, whose efforts to humanize the treatment of the Insane were rewarded by the abolition of fetters in County Asylums and by other amenities in private institutions. This service was continued by his son. of whom and of his father, William Wilberforce said they were comparable, in talents, to the two Pitts. The tradition of personal service was illustrated in a later generation by Mr Meynell's uncle, James Tuke, banker and Philanthropist, the story of whose aid, rendered during the Irish Famine, and afterwards to emigrants (the Government aiding), is told in the "Life" written by his friend, Lord Justice Fry. Educated in York, Mr Meynell became a Catholic in 1870, and married seven years later ALICE, dau. of T. J. THOMPSON. He edited The Weekly Register 1881-99. and Merry England 1883-94; was Hon. Sec. (with Duke of Norfolk) of the Manning Memorial Committee 1892; succeeded Mr Ward as literary adviser to Messrs Burns and Oates, and is the author of Iournals and Iournalism (under pen-name of John Oldcastle)-Cardinal Newman-Faith Found in London-Benjamin Disraeli: an Unconventional Biography, He edited Cardinal Manning's Pastime Papers: and has been a contributor to The Tablet-Daily Chronicle-Athenaeum—Academy—Saturday Review—Illustrated London News-Nineteenth Century-Contemporary Review. and many other periodicals here and in the United States.

Mevnell, ALICE CHRISTIANA GERTRUDE—vounger dau, of T. J. Thompson; educated in England, Italy, and France, by her father, to whom (as a man who "had always praved moderate prayers and harboured probable wishes") she paid a tribute of gratitude in one of her essays. The encouragement of her family's friend, Mr Ruskin, led to the publication of Preludes in 1876, with very peaceful illustrations by her sister, Lady Butler, painter of the "Roll Call." These poems, written in early girlhood, were republished with later additions in 1893, their author becoming known also as an essayist, at first in The National Observer under Mr Henley. Her works include Poems-The Rhythm of Life—The Colour of Life—The Children— The Spirit of Place-John Ruskin-Later Poems and Children of the Italian Masters. She has edited English poems for the "Red Letter Library," and made a choice of the best English poetry in an anthology called The Flower of the Mind; she contributed the Introduction to The Work of John Sargent, R.A.; has introduced to English readers a Selection from the Poems of Father Tabb (1907); has translated from the Italian Venturi's Madonna in Art. and been a contributor to the leading periodicals of England and the United States. It has been the luck of this lady and her sister to convert two men of genius to a recognition of woman's ability, for Ruskin unsaid for the one "what I have always said-that no woman could paint," and Coventry Patmore referred to the other as "one who —I am bound to confess—has falsified the assertion that I made some time ago that no female writer of our time has attained to true distinction." Like her parents and her sister, Mrs Meynell is a convert to the Church.

Meynell, EVERARD—born 1882, second son of Wilfrid and Alice Meynell; godson of Cardinal Manning; educated at St Charles's College, London and Slade School; artist and art critic; on staff of The Illustrated London News and contributor to other periodicals; author of Giovanni Bellini in "Great Artists Series," and of a life of Corot.

Middelton, Marmaduke Francis—born 1861, eldest son of Charles M. Middelton, J.P., D.L., of Stockeld Park; educated at Stonyhurst. William Constable, Mr Middelton's great-grandfather, took the name on succeeding to the Stockeld property. His collateral ancestor, John Middelton of Stockeld, was indicted with other Catholics at York Castle in 1679 for treason, by the exploiters of the "Popish Plot."

Middlemass, Jean—is one of the many novelists to be found in the present generation of Catholics, and particularly of converts. She is the author of In Storm and Strife, and other works.

Middlesbrough, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. RICHARD LACY)—born in Ireland 1841, son of Richard Lacy, of Navan, thus making a welcome link between the episcopates of the two Islands—a link formerly supplied by Bishop O'Reilly of Liverpool, and Bishop Carroll of Shrewsbury. Educated at Ushaw and the English College, Rome; ordained 1867; assistant-priest at St Patrick's, Bradford, 1868-72, when he became Incumbent of St Mary's, Middlesbrough. Here he built the Cathedral in which he was consecrated its first Bishop by Cardinal Manning on the division of the old Diocese of Beverley into the new Sees of Middlesbrough and Leeds in 1879.

Moran, CARDINAL (PATRICK FRANCIS, Archbishop of Sydney)—born in Co. Carlow 1830, and, as a boy of twelve. accompanied his uncle, Cardinal Cullen, to Rome, where, later, he made his ecclesiastical studies, and was ordained. As student and Vice-Rector of the Irish College, and Professor of Hebrew at the College of Propaganda, he resided in Rome for 25 years. He returned to Ireland in 1866 as Secretary to his uncle, the Cardinal Archbishop of Dublin. and in 1872 was consecrated as Coadjutor of Ossory, and ruled that See as Bishop 1873-84. In the latter year he succeeded Archbishop Roger Vaughan in the Primacy of Australia, and was created the first Australian Cardinal in 1885. His Eminence, who assisted at the Papal Conclave of 1903, is known to all students of Irish history by his writings. In such books as his Memoir of the Ven. Oliver Plunkett-Essays on the Origin of the Irish Church-Monasticon Hibernica-Irish Saints in Great Britain and Ireland, her Priests and People, he has diligently served his native land with his pen as the uncompromising defender of her religious institutions. Unlike his uncle, who was twitted with the British "Cullinization" of Ireland, Cardinal Moran is an advocate of Home Rule; and, unlike the Convention, he favoured the acceptance of the Irish Council Bill in 1907.

Nazareth, Mother General of the Poor Sisters of (Mother Margaret Mary Owen)—an Order founded in 1851 by Madame Victorie Larmenier, aided by Cardinal Wiseman. The Hammersmith Mother House was built in 1857. Today the branch-houses in Great Britain and Ireland, in Australia, and in South Africa, number nearly thirty. In Faith Found in London, Nazareth House, Hammersmith, with its many hundreds of inmates, is cited as a main illustration; luckily it exhibits not merely faith but works—works which can scarcely be rivalled by any efforts of man in the same direction during the same period. What portion of this great achievement belongs to the Mother General (the influence of whose great qualities has reached far beyond the immediate round of her duty) it would not be agreeable to her that we shound attempt to determine.

Neligan, HIS HONOUR JUDGE SIR JOHN CHUTE, K.C.—born 1826, son of William Neligan, of Tralee; educated at Trinity College, Dublin (M.A.); called to the Irish Bar 1849; County Court Judge 1866; took silk 1874; Bencher of King's Inn, Dublin, 1897; Recorder of Londonderry 1883, and of Cork 1892; knighted 1899; married (1854) ELLEN, dau. of Denis O'Sullivan, of Cork.

succession to the family honours, his elder brother, Lord Merton, being unmarried.

Nelson, WILLIAM-J.P. for City of Liverpool since 1893.

Nevile, RALPH HENRY CHRISTOPHER, J.P. for Lincolnshire and Peterborough—born 1850, only son of Henry Nevile, J.P., D.L., of Walcot Hall, Northampton, and Ellen, dau. of Rev. C. Bryan (she married, secondly, 1864, Weston Cracroft-Amcotts, of Hackthorn); educated at Trinity College, Cambridge (B.A.); was High Sheriff of Lincolnshire for 1883; convert to the Church 1874; married (1871) MILDRED, dau. of Charles Robert Scott-Murray, of Danesfield. The Nevile family, who have been resident at Walcot, Northampton, and Welingore, for generations, are a branch of the Neviles, Lords of Raby, who became Earls of Westmorland (title extinct 1571).

Nevill, George—born 1878, eldest son of late Henry William Nevill, by Anne, dau, of William Fenwick, grandson of Captain George Nevill, of Nevill Holt, Leicestershire, who married Matilda, dau. of Sir Henry Paston-Bedingfeld, Bart.; served in South African War with Natal Mounted Rifles; now Assistant President in N. Nigeria; married (1907) at the London Oratory, RITA, dau. of the late Walter Selby, of Biddlestone.

Nevill, Lord William Beauchamp—born 1860, 4th son of 1st Marquis of Abergavenny; formerly Lieut. 3rd Batt. West Kent Regiment, and sometime A.D.C. to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; received into the Church at Melbourne 1886, while on the personal staff of the Governor-General; married (1889) Luisa de Murrieta, dau. of the Marques and Marquesa de Santurce. Author of Penal Servitude, under the initials W.B.N. (1903), a book written in aid of much-needed prison-reform, but also in protest against the severity of the sentence passed upon him. "If you were plain Bill Sykes, he would make it much lighter for you," said a sympathetic fellow-prisoner on the morning of the trial, thus reversing the Disraelian aphorism that "a Jack Straw might be hanged when a Lord John Straw" (with an eye on Lord John Russell) "might be Prime Minister of England."

Newburgh, EARL OF (PRINCE SIGISMUND GIUSTINIANI-BANDINI)—born 1818, second son of Charles, Marquis of Bandini, and Cecilia, 8th Countess of Newburgh in her own right (created 1660, Scotland); took the name of Giustiniani as heir of his uncle, Cardinal Giustiniani; succeeded his father in the Italian titles of Duca di Mondragone, Marquis Bandini, Lord of Varana in the Papal States 1850; naturalized by Act of Parliament 1857; created Prince in the Roman States by Pius IX 1863; succeeded his mother as 9th Earl of Newburgh 1877, and is, through her, a descendant of King Edward I; married (1848) MARIA SOPHIA ANGELICA, dau. of Cavaliere MASSANI, of Rome.

Newcastle, Henrietta Adela, Duchess of—only dau. of Henry Thomas Hope, of Deepdene, Surrey, to whom Disraeli dedicated Coningsby; received into the Church 1879; married first (1861) the 6th Duke of Newcastle, and secondly (1880) Tom Theobald Hohler, who died 1892. In 1893 the Duchess, at the call of Cardinal Vaughan, "took the Cross" of the new Crusade, the Catholic Social Union, becoming head worker at the Girls' Club of the Tower Hill Settlement. In a magazine article the Duchess has revealed "her home in Whitechapel" to the casual gaze, and is able to affirm from her experience that "the West can learn from the East a daily lesson of courage and confidence in God." The Social Union workers have since become known by the title of the Ladies of Charity of St Vincent de Paul.

Newdigate. ALFRED-born at Astley Castle, Warwickshire, 1820, son of Francis Newdigate, I.P., D.L., of West Hallam, by Lady Barbara Legge, dau. of 3rd Earl of Dartmouth, Educated at Eton, at Christ Church, Oxford (M.A. 1851), and at Wells Theol. College. Anglican Curate at Aylesbury 1853-56; Vicar of Kirk Hallam 1856-75; received into the Church 1875; Poor Law Guardian 1884; Member of Charity Organization, N.S.P.C.C., and Society of S.V.D.P.; founder of the Art and Book Company; School manager: married (1860) SELINA CHARLOTTE, day, of the Rev. Griffith Boynton, of Barmston Rectory, Yorks. Among the collateral ancestors of the Newdigates are Blessed Sebastian Newdigate, a favourite courtier of Henry VIII, later a Carthusian monk and martyr; also Sir Roger Newdigate, Bart, M.P., of Arbury, Co. Warwick, Chancellor of Oxford Univ. and founder of the Newdigate Prize. "George Eliot." who was born on the Arbury estate, has left us a picture of Sir Roger as Sir Christopher Cheverel in her Scenes of Clerical Life. Mr Alfred Newdigate's parents suggested, in another of the Scenes, at least the names of Mr and Lady Felicia Oldinport.

Newdigate, Rev. Charles Alfred, S.J.—born at Kirk Hallam 1863, eldest son of Alfred and Selina Newdigate; educated at Stonyhurst, where he was received into the Church 1875; B.A. London University (1st class Classical Honours); entered Manresa Novitiate 1881; ordained at St Beuno's 1896; Prefect of Studies at St Ignatius's College, Stamford Hill, a post he formerly held at Stonyhurst.

Newdigate, Bernard H.—third son of Alfred Newdigate, M.A.; educated at Stonyhurst; B.A. London Univ.; late Manager of the Art and Book Company, but withdrew in order to give complete attention to one branch of its former business, the Arden Press, now established at Letchworth, and renowned for its artistry, as shown in the many books produced in association with Messrs Burns and Oates, Mr Newdigate was connected with Newman House Settlement in Southwark, and, like his father, has devoted his first thoughts in all his undertakings, not to his personal advantage, but to the promotion and credit of the Catholic cause.

New Guinea, Vicar-Apostolic of (Right Rev. Andrew Navarre)—consecrated 1887.

Newport, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. JOHN CUTHBERT HED-LEY, O.S.B., D.D.)-born at Morpeth 1837, son of Edward A. Hedley, M.D.; educated at Ampleforth; entered English Benedictine Order 1854; ordained 1862; consecrated by Cardinal Manning as Auxiliary to Bishop Browne, O.S.B., of Newport and Menevia, 1873, and succeeded as ruler of the Diocese 1881; Chairman of the Universities Catholic Education Board. This "Bishop of his Flock" is indeed a shepherd of sheep far beyond the boundaries of his own Diocese. Round about him has centred much of the modern Catholic history of England. It was his voice that sounded the funeral panegyrics of two successive rulers of Westminster, while by his pastorals and sermons, by learned yet intelligible articles in the reviews, by a series of volumes of wide range and answeringly wide appeal, he has conferred on his generation of English-speaking Catholics a service never to be forgotten. As an author the Bishop has had the fortune to be throughout an instructor of others, and one whose learning and piety have had the attractive setting supplied by literary gifts. His books include Our Divine Saviour—The Christian Inheritance—A Retreat—The Light of Life—A Bishop and his Flock—Lex Levitarum and The Holv Eucharist.

New Westminster (British Columbia), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. Norfolk. Duke of (Henry Fitzalan-Howard, K.G., G.C.V.O., Premier Duke and Earl, and Earl Marshal of England)—was born in 1847 in Carlton House Terrace, eldest son of Henry Granville, 14th Duke, by Augusta Mary Minna, dau, of Edmund, 1st Lord Lyons, Educated at the Oratory School, and privately, he succeeded in 1860, and has now borne his title for a longer period than has fallen to the lot of any other English Duke outside the Royal Family. He received his knighthood of the Garter in 1886 from Queen Victoria, and the Grand Cross of the Order of Christ from Pius IX. The Duke was Special Envoy from Oueen Victoria to Leo XIII at his Jubilee in 1887; was Mayor of Sheffield 1895-96 and 1896-97; Postmaster General 1895-1900; first Mayor of Westminster 1900; Mayor of Arundel 1902; first Chancellor of the Univ. of Sheffield 1905; and Chairman of the Royal Commission on the Militia and Volunteers 1903-04. He has commanded the and Vol. Batt. Royal Sussex Regt. since 1891, and set a personal example in 1900 by serving with the Sussex Yeomanry during the war in South Africa. He holds, moreover, the Hon, Colonelcy of the 1st (Duke of Norfolk's Own) Cadet Batt, of the Rifle Brigade, which he raised in 1004 with the concurrence of the War Office, having its headquarters at Mile End, a district where the public benefactions of his sisters are household words. He has been President of the Catholic Union of Great Britain since its foundation in 1871, and is Chairman of the Catholic Education Council. Since 1905 he has held the Lord Lieutenancy of Sussex. So much may be baldly stated, but it would be impossible to appreciate justly within present limits the high influence of the Duke of Norfolk as a Catholic layman, felt by all, including those who differ from him most in political ideals. Of the great work done by him in Catholic matters there is no need to speak in any detail here; from what is known of it (especially of his charities and the churches he has built and helped to build) the unknown may be at least surmised, and the whole might well make up an ordinary man's labour. As a politician the Duke has been here, there, and everywhere in the service of the party to which he belongs, and his rule at the Post Office during the Salisbury Administration of 1895-1900 conferred one boon after another on the public. Cardinal Manning's words, addressed to a great public gatherng in Liverpool, have become truer with each succeeding year: "If there is any man in England who has acquired by the most just titles the affection and respect of every Catholic, that man is the Duke of Norfolk, I hardly know of any man of whom I can say with more confidence that he has a perfect rectitude of mind and life." The Duke married first (1877) Lady FLORA HASTINGS, dau, of the 1st Lord Donington and Edith Flora, Countess of Loudoun (she died 1887); and secondly (1904) the Hon. GWENDOLEN CONSTABLE-MAXWELL, elder dau, of Lord HERRIES, and heiress of Carlaverock.

Norreys, Lord (Montague Charles Francis Towneley-Bertie)—born 1860, eldest son of 7th Earl of Abingdon and Caroline Theresa, dau. and co-heiress of Colonel Charles Towneley, of Towneley; educated at Stonyhurst; Captain 3rd Batt. Berkshire Regiment 1883-86 served in South Africa with the Imperial Yeomanry 1900; J.P. for Oxon and J.P. and D.L. for Berks.; married (1885) the Hon. Rose, dau. of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Henry Carr Glyn.

Norris, Rev. John, D.D.—born in Liverpool 1843; educated at Merchant Taylors' School, Crosby, at the Catholic Institute, Liverpool, and at Ushaw; joined Congregation of the Oratory 1865; ordained 1869; has been Head Master of the Oratory School since 1872; President on various occasions of the Catholic Head Masters' Conference; Member of the Secondary Education Council nominated by the Conference of Catholic Colleges; Member of the Universities Catholic Education Board. Author of numerous papers on educational questions.

Norris, LIEUT.-COLONEL RICHARD JOSEPH, D.S.O., late West India Regiment—born 1854, son of Edward Norris; educated at Mount St Mary's and Beaumont; entered West India Regiment 1879; served on the West Coast of Africa 1892 (D.S.O.); and in command of the first Karene expedition 1898; was Assistant Military Secretary at Bermuda 1890-1904.

North of Kirtling, LORD (WILLIAM HENRY JOHN NORTH)born 1836, only child of 10th Baroness North (created 1554. Engl.) and Colonel the Right Hon. J. S. North, M.P.; educated at Eton and Christ Church, late Lieut. 1st Life Guards; Major Oxfordshire Hussars 1872-76; Col. 2nd Vol. Batt. Oxfordshire L.I. from 1805; Knight of Malta; J.P. for Oxfordshire, Cambridgeshire, Suffolk and Middlesex; County Councillor for Oxford, Lord North, who is Vice-President of the Fifteen Club, was received into the Church with Lady North (Frederica, dau. of Commander R. H. Cockerell, R.N.) in 1879. A Unionist, Lord North has made more than one stand in opposition to members of his party who are opposed to the right of Catholics in Ireland to a national system of University Education. Writing in 1899 to The Morning Post, he declared that "We Catholic Unionists will continue to remind our party of the fundamental article of its political creed—that England can do for Ireland everything that Ireland could legitimately do for itself. I plead for a fair and temperate consideration of this important question of Catholic University teaching in Ireland on the part of Unionists, feeling sure that a generous and statesmanlike dealing with this subject on the lines suggested by Mr Balfour will prove an inestimable benefit to the Unionist Party."

North, Captain the Hon. William Frederick—born 1860, eldest son of 11th Lord North; educated at the Oratory School; formerly Captain 3rd Batt. Norfolk Regiment and Lieut. Oxfordshire Yeomanry; J.P. for Oxford; married 1885) Arabella, daughter of Charles North, of Rougham, Norfolk.

Northampton, BISHOP OF-(See Vacant).

Northcote, Rev. Philip M., O.S.M.—born at Monkokehampton, Devonshire; educated at Honiton Grammar School, at Haileybury, and at Edinburgh Episcopal Training College; received into the Church; studied at College of Propaganda, Rome; ordained at Mill Hill 1899; served missions at Begbrooke, Oxford, at Dundee, Natal, S.A., and at Fulham. Author of The Bond of Perfection (1907)—Consolamini—The Way of Truth.

Nottingham. BISHOP OF (Right Rev. ROBERT BRINDLE, D.S.O.). Knight Grand Cross of the Order of Isabel la Católica—born at Liverpool 1837; ordained at the English College, Lisbon, After mission work at Plymouth he began his career as Army Chaplain in 1874. He had his first experience of war in the Egyptian campaign of 1882, when he was the first chaplain to arrive at the front. From 1882 to 1886 he saw incessant service, including the battles outside Suakim in 1884, and in the Nile Expedition. On the last occasion he captained one of the boats of the Royal Irish Regiment—the regiment which won the prize offered by Lord Wolseley to the first boat to reach the end of the river journey. In 1886 he was present at the battle of Ginniss, after which came ten years of home service at Colchester and Aldershot. In 1896 he went on the Dongola expedision, and won golden opinions during the long wait at Sarras, when cholera was in the camp. At Dongola he successfully took a gunboat into action. In 1898, for his conduct in the field at Atbara and Khartoum, he received the D.S.O., being then the only chaplain on whom such a decoration had been conferred. At Khartoum he was one of the three chaplains who performed the Gordon memorial service, and he composed a prayer which was recited on that occasion, and printed for distribution by Lord Kitchener's order. He has been mentioned in despatches five times, and twice promoted for war service. Added to the D.S.O. he wears an array of British and Egyptian medals and clasps, as well as the Turkish Orders of the Medjidie and Osmanieh. He is, moreover, the recipient of a "Good Service Pension," the grant of a civil C.B. having been only refused him on the ground that such a decoration could not be conferred on a chaplain. He is the compiler of the prayer-book for Catholic soldiers which has been adopted by the War Office. The Bishop has served in lands as far apart as Canada and the Soudan, and he knows Egypt as few Englishmen do. His long connexion with the army ended in 1899. In March of that year he was consecrated titular Bishop of Hermopolis by Cardinal Satolli at Rome, and acted as Bishop-Auxiliary of Westminster till 1901, when he was translated to Nottingham, being the fourth ruler of that Diocese. He received into the Church, 1906, Queen Victoria Eugenia of Spain.

now in the Indian Mutiny; and in the Ashantee Expedition of 1873, when he was promoted Brevet Lieut.-Colonel; retired 1887 with the rank of Major-General. This brave General has the glory of being the only living Victoria Crossman who has risen from the rank of private to that of General Officer.

O'Connor, LIEUT.-COLONEL PATRICK FENELON, C.B., late Indian Medical Service—born 1850, son of Patrick O'Connor of Killiskillen; educated at Belvedere and Carlow Colleges, and Catholic University of Ireland (M.D. and M.Ch.); entered Indian Medical Service 1875; mentioned in despatches for service in Afghanistan 1879; served in Egypt 1882; again mentioned in despatches for his services in Burmah 1886-87, in Chitral 1895, and on the North West Frontier of India 1897-98; was Principal Medical Officer with China Field Force 1901-02; retired 1905.

O'Connor, THOMAS POWER, M.P. for Scotland Division of Liverpool since 1885, and journalist-was born and brought up in the town of Athlone. An imaginative and somewhat melancholy child (he has told us), he went to an Athlone boarding-school when he was eleven, and there spent four of the wretchedest years of his life, the one gleam of sunshine he recalls during that time being the kindness of the late Father Suffield. Later, at Oueen's College, Galway, he carried off many prizes, graduated M.A., and distinguished himself in the Debating Society. In 1867, at the age of nineteen, he reported on Sanders's Newsletter, and, two years later, came to London, securing a berth on The Daily Telegraph after a six weeks' search for work, during which he used to breakfast off a penny cup of coffee and a penny roll, varied on Sundays by four slices of buttered bread, in a coffee-shop in Drury Lane. His next move was into the London office of The New York Herald, and in 1876 came his first great success—his Lite of Disraeli, which, bitter indictment as it is, holds an indispensable place in the literature of Lord Beaconsfield, Four years later Mr O'Connor himself entered the political lists. going into Parliament for Galway. As the founder and editor of The Star, The Sun, The Weekly Sun, M.A.P., T.P.'s Weekly, and P.T.O., this "stranger within the gate" has been one of the kings of Babylonian journalistic enterprise, while in politics it has been his feat to wage a guerilla warfare against the two great parties by offering alliance first to one and then to the other. In 1907 Mr O'Connor completed a quarter of a century's presidency of the United Irish League of Great Britain, an office to which he was first elected at Leeds on the proposition of Parnell.

Wales. One of the most eloquent of living politicians, he has published a selection of his Historical and Political Addresses; and has had successes such as that which marked his visit to the Oxford Union in 1907. Amidst general cheering a vote was then carried in favour of Home Rule after a speech which he fittingly closed with the following words:-" Ireland was a weak country, no doubt. In the field of physical effort she was powerless, but she was strong in the sympathy of every man who had read her tragic story, and who believed in the great democratic principle of the right of the people to govern themselves according to their own lights and desires. She was rich in her own faith and hope and charity. Rich in faith that there was a great destiny yet before the Irish race, she was strong in her hope. Hope had never left her; it was as strong as ever it was. She was strong in her charity, for she longed for an oblivion of the past. He was now addressing an assembly largely composed of young men who had a future before them. He was convinced in his heart that before long they would see the triumph of that cause, and though he himself had spent over twenty-six years in the movement, he believed that, with God's mercy, he also would live to see that triumph."

Riddell, Edward Charles, J.P. for Warwickshire—born 1868, elder son of John Gerard Riddell, of Hermeston Hall, Rotherham, Notts, by Katharine, dau. of Edward Chaloner; nephew of the late Bishop of Northampton; married (1896) Edith Mary only child of Captain Frederick Gerard, of Kinwarton House, Alcester.

Riddell, EDWARD FRANCIS, J.P. for Northumberland,

Knight of the Sovereign Order of Malta, Major Northumberland Hussars Imperial Yeomanry 1901-03—born 1865, eldest son of Francis Henry Riddell, of Cheeseburn Grange, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Thornburgh House Yorkshire, by Ellen, dau. of Michael Blount, of Mapledurham; educated at Woburn Park (under Lord Petre), at Beaumont, and at Corpus Christi College, Oxford (B.A. 1888); a Director of Messrs Burns and Oates, Ltd.

Rideout, Mrs—Mary Ellen, dau. of Joseph Austin, J.P., of Leeds; sister of the Poet Laureate; married (first) W. S. Jackson, of Moor House, Headingley; and (secondly) Major-General Arthur Kennedy Rideout, C.B.

Rigby, Canon William Augustine (retired)—born in London; educated at Woolhampton, at Douai, at St Sulpice (Paris), and at Ushaw; ordained 1866; Chaplain at St Clare's Abbey, Darlington, 1866-1904; Member of Hexham Chapter; Sec. and Treas. of the Northern Brethren's Fund.

Rigg, Hon. John, Member of the Legislative Council of New Zealand—born in Melbourne 1858; educated at Wellington, New Zealand, where he served his apprenticeship as a compositor in the Government Printing Office; President of the Typographical Society of Wellington, and of the Wellington Tailoresses' Union.

Rimington, F. C.—descendant of William de Rimington, of Sawley Abbey, Yorkshire, who, in the 13th century, was a prominent opponent of Wickliffe, and was twice Lord Rector of Oxford University. Mr Rimington is a convert to the Church, a J.P. in India, and a contributor to Indian periodicals. He married ALICE, dau. of Baron von RÜSENBERG.

Rimouski (Canada), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. ANDREW BLAIR)—consecrated Coadjutor in 1890, and succeeded in 1891.

Ring, Rev. Timothy J.—Member of Executive of Catholic Education Council; first priest in charge of Silvertown Mission 1887; worker in the cause of total abstinence; succeeded Father Dooley as Rector at Commercial Road 1905; Rural Dean.

Ring, REV.WILLIAM JOSEPH, O.M.I.—born 1834 at Belfast, where his father was a doctor, he was brought into contact with Catholics, and himself became a Catholic in his 'teens; educated at Lys Marie, Wetherby and Montolivet, Marseilles; ordained 1859; Superior at Tower Hill, London, where he built schools. In September 1870, when he was in the night-mail from Ireland which left the rails at Tamworth, his colleague, Father Edward Healy, perished, but Father Ring was rescued, and Lord Denbigh (an old friend and benefactor of the Tower Hill mission), took him to his home at Newnham Paddox, where he was assiduously nursed, but it was some years before he was quite himself again. Later he served at Kilburn and for a long time on the mission staff in Ireland; held office as Provincial and subsequently as Superior at Stillorgan, Dublin, where he built the beautiful church of Our Lady of Lourdes, and Superior at Inchicore, where he built the new church of Mary Immaculate. Despite his ill-luck as a traveller, he has organized many pilgrimages to Lourdes and to Rome.

Riordan, Lieut.-Colonel John, M.B., late Roy. Army Med. Corps—born 1856; served in Burma 1885-86; late Senior Medical Officer at Delhi; retired.

Riordan, Most Rev. Patrick William, Archbishop of San Francisco-born in New Brunswick 1841; graduated at Louvain Univ. 1864; Professor of Theology at Seminary of St Mary's of the Lake; Pastor at Joliet, Ill., and at St James's, Chicago; titular Archbishop of Cabesa 1883; Archbishop of San Francisco 1884; delegate, in 1902, before the Hague International Arbitration Court for the settlement of claims made by the Church in California upon the Government of Mexico as to ancient ecclesiastical endowments existing when Mexico and California were Provinces of Spain. His Grace's special interest in his Seminary is well known even in London, where he is an occasional visitor; and the ordeal by earthquake through which his Diocese passed at enormous sacrifice of ecclesiastical property has gained for him the sympathy of Catholics in every part of the world.

Ripon, Marquis of (Right Hon. George Frederic Samuel Robinson, K.G., P.C., G.C.S.I., F.R.S., Bart.)—was appropriately born in Downing Street, the son of a Prime Minister, in the reign of George IV. In 1852 he entered the House of Commons as Member for Hull; and shortly afterwards, with a courage that never failed him in politics, as in any other department of life, he left a safe seat to win doubtful Huddersfield for his party. Before the 'fifties were over, having succeeded to his father's and his uncle's titles—the Earldoms of De Grey and Ripon—he was already an Under-secretary—for War—with Palmerston for his leader, and Gladstone as his colleague. From Under-secretary he became Secretary; and, a little later, under Earl Russell's Premiership, he went to the India Office as its head. In 1869, under Gladstone, Lord Ripon took office as Lord President of the Council. The Alabama Arbitration gave him a hand in that great experiment in arts less barbarous than those of war; and this immense public service was marked by the bestowal upon him of a Marquisate. In the same year, 1871, he became Grand Master of the Freemasons, an office he relinquished three years later to become a Catholic. His reception, doubly satisfactory as that of a typical hard-headed Englishman of a class little represented among converts, took place at the London Oratory on September 4, 1874. It may be asked if there was ever quite so much excitement about the religious act of a politician before. Gladstone's attack on Lord Ripon was afterwards expiated; for Lord Ripon's appointment in 1880 to the Indian Viceroyalty was the Liberal statesman's most perfect way of retracting his impeachment of Catholic loyalty, "God has blessed India and England," wrote General Gordon, "in giving Lord Ripon the Vicerovalty. Depend on it, this vast country will find that in spite of all obstacles the rule of Lord Ripon will be blessed; for he will rule in the strength of the Lord, not of men." The truth of these words, written in 1880, was borne witness to by cheers and blessings from millions of tongues when Lord Ripon left India four years later. The Catholic Vicerov's popularity with the natives of India remains as a traditional asset of England, while all the prognostications of ill made in regard to his policy (in particular with reference to the Ilbert Bill) by his less enlightened fellow-countrymen, have passed into lumber-rooms of controversy. The key to that policy may be found in Lord Ripon's own declaration that "the first condition of the permanence of our possession is that we should constantly labour to help forward along the path of civilization and progress the people over whom we have been called to rule." As Colonial Secretary from 1892-95 Lord Ripon, without ostentation and without bloodshed, kept steadily before him "the progress and prosperity of those great colonies, upon which the development and expansion of the Empire depend." His services to education and his equally well-known efforts on behalf of those co-operative schemes which unite labour and capital, can have no more than a mere allusion here: and the same must be said of his service of the poor in the Society of St Vincent de Paul, the English Presidency of which he assumed in 1899. His association with St Joseph's Foreign Missionary Society, his Vice-Presidency of the Catholic Union, and his Chairmanship of the Leeds and Middlesbrough Diocesan Schools Association, are among his many Catholic activities. Lord Ripon married (in 1851) HENRIETTA, dau. of Captain Henry Vyner, and became a widower in 1907. Lord Ripon served as Mayor of Ripon in 1895. He is, moreover, a keen sportsman, his shooting parties having included, at one time or other, both the King and the Prince of Wales. His son, Earl de Grey, is married, as chance has it, to the daughter of another famous convert, Lady Herbert of Lea.

Ritchie, CHARLES—the member of a family allied by marriage to Thackeray; a convert to the Church; and with his cousin, the late Mr Reginald Balfour, and Father Hugh Benson, joint author of The Alphabet of Saints.

Roper, ALFRED FRANCIS, M.A.—son of Rev. T. H. Roper, some time Rector of Puddle Hinton, Dorchester; educated at Lancing and Oxford Univ.; received into the Church 1894; Headmaster of Ladycross School, which he opened in 1894.

Rose, SIR PHILIP FREDERIC, Bart, J.P., D.L., and sometime High Sheriff of Bucks—born 1843, eldest son of Sir Philip Rose, of Rayners, Penn, by Margaretta, daughter of Robert Ranking. His father (whom he succeeded in 1883), the friend, neighbour, and legal adviser of Lord Beaconsfield, and one of his executors, was created a Baronet in 1874. Sir Philip was educated at Harrow, and joined the famous firm of Baxter, Rose and Norton, Parliamentary Solicitors. He is a director of several public companies, and went on a special mission to Afghanistan with Mr J. Stanniforth to report on the Turkish debt in 1887. He married (1866) Rose, daughter of the Rev. W. W. Pym, Rector of Willian, Herts.—a lady who, like her husband, and like so many associates of Disraeli, has been received into the Church.

S. Whitehill.

Ross-of-Bladensburg, SIR JOHN FOSTER, K.C.B., Chief Commissioner of the Dublin Police, Lieut.-Colonel Coldstream Guards (retired)—born 1848, son of David Ross-of-Bladensburg, of Rosstrevor, Co. Down, and Harriet, daughter of Viscount Ferrard; grandson of that Major-General Ross who gained a victory at Bladensburg and captured Washington in 1814—whence the Bladensburg added to the family surname; educated at Radley and at Woolwich; served in the Suakim Campaign of 1885 as Captain of Coldstream Guards; Assistant Boundary Commissioner in Turkey 1878, and Secretary to Mr Burke's Financial Commission at Constantinople 1881; Assistant Secretary to Mr Forster when Chief Secretary for Ireland, and on the staffs of Lord Carnarvon and Lord Spencer at Dublin Castle; Secretary to two British missions to the Holy See—that of the Duke of Norfolk (1887) and of Sir Lintorn Simmons (1889); his reception into the Church took place in 1880—other members of the family having become Catholics, including his elder brother, Father Robert Skeffington Ross-of-Bladensburg, S. J. (on whose death in 1892 he became head of the family); Chief Commissioner of Dublin Police 1901; knighted 1903; married (1870) BLANCHE, daughter of 10th Viscount Masserrena and Ferrard. Author of The Marquess of Hastings, in "The Rulers of India" Series—History of the Coldstream Guards—and The Coldstream Guards in the Crimea.

Ross, BISHOP OF (MOST REV. DENIS KELLY, D.D.)—born in Co. Tipperary 1852; educated at Ennis Dioc. College and Irish College, Paris, where he was ordained 1877; Professor (1877-81), Vice-President (1881-90), and President (1890-97) of Ennis Dioc. College; consecrated 1897; Commissioner of Poor Laws (Irel.) 1906.

Rosslyn, Blanche, Countess of—second daughter of Henry FitzRoy, of Salcey Lawn; married Henry, only son of the last Lord Maynard, by whom she is the mother of the Countess of Warwick. The children of her second marriage, with the 4th Earl of Rosslyn, include the Duchess of Sutherland. Lady Rosslyn was received into the Church by Father Bernard Vaughan 1905.

Rouleau, Hon. Charles Borromée, Judge of the Supreme Court in the N.W. Territories—born in Province of Quebec 1840; educated at Laval Normal School, Quebec; after serving as Inspector of Catholic Schools for Ottawa, he was called to the Quebec Bar in 1868; appointed District Magistrate for the N.W. Territories, with a seat on the Executive Council 1883; Member of the Quebec Parliament (Conservative) 1875; formerly an active contributor to the columns of the Montreal L'Ordre and La Minerve; married (1877) ELVINA DUMOUCHEL.

Royds, Francis Twemlow, J.P. for Lancashire—born 1863, eldest son of the Rev. Charles Twemlow Royds, J.P., Rector of Heysham; educated at Rugby and Christ's College, Cambridge (B.A.); entered Anglican Orders; formerly curate of the Parish Church, Leamington; received into the Catholic Church; married (1894) KATHARINE, daughter of late F. W. GRAFTON, M.P., of Heysham Hall, Lancashire.

Rushbrooke, Captain William Henry, Roman Count, J.P.

Cork, on Council of Catholic Soldiers' Association—born 1849, eldest son of Captain William Henry Rushbrooke, R.N., by Anne, daughter of Dr Mathias, R.N., of Gibraltar; was Captain 1st East Yorks, Regiment 1879-1887; served in Afghan War of 1880; created Count of Rome by H.H. Leo XIII 1892; Lord of the Manor of Ringmen, Co. Cork; married (1887) MARGARET MARY, daughter of Henry F. Whyte, of the family of Whyte of Leixlip.

Russell of Killowen, LADY-ELLEN, daughter of Joseph Stevenson Mulholland, M.D., of Belfast; married (1858) Lord Russellof Killowen, Lord Chief Justice of England from 1804-1000 Like her sisters. Lady Gilbert and Miss Clara Mulholland, Lady Russell is an author, though the stories she has contributed to periodicals have not merged into a book. Her life has been otherwise a very full one. The devoted mother of a large family, she nevertheless had time to take rank among London's most appreciated hostesses. At her house in Harley Street, Gladstone, Parnell, Lord Randolph Churchill and Mr Wilfrid Blunt met at the same table; and, in Cromwell Place, her dinner guests included the King. Lady Russell's interest in all Catholic charities has had many practical illustrations; and one of her daughters is included in the ranks of Religious, actively engaged in the work of teaching.

Russell, His Honour Judge the Hon. Arthur—born 1861, eldest son of Lord Russell of Killowen, by Ellen, daughter of Joseph Stevenson Mulholland, of Belfast; educated at Beaumont and Oriel College, Oxford (M.A.); called to the Bar 1886; was Junior in several important cases, especial responsibility resting on him during the prolonged proceedings of the Parnell Commission. In addition to his chamber practice, he undertook a good deal of legal literary work, and in 1894 became his father's private secretary; appointed County Court Judge 1900; married (1891) Florence, daughter of James Cuming, M.D., of Belfast.

Russell, Hon. Charles—born 1863, 2nd son of Lord Russell of Killowen; educated at Beaumont; articled to Sir John Hollams, Sons, Coward and Hawksley, and admitted a Solicitor 1888; founded his own famous Firm in Norfolk Street, at first in partnership with the son of another Judge, Sir John Day; Solicitor for the British Agent in the Behring Sea Arbitration, held in Paris 1893, earning the commendation of the Canadian Government expressed in a vote of thanks; contested Central Hackney as a Liberal 1895; refused other offers of Parliamentary contests in order to devote himself to his profession, in a business which grew in importance more quickly than perhaps any business of the kind has ever done under a single hand; served for many years on the Political Committee of the Eighty Club; Solicitor to the Canadian Government; Director of the Law and Equity Assurance Society; on Executive of Catholic Education Council since 1906; President of the Federated London Catholic Associations; author of The Catholics of London and Public Life. As a publicist, Mr Russell has shown himself his father's son on various occasions, but never with such effect on the platform than in the championing, both at the Albert Hall and in the Provinces, of the rights of Catholic parents during the Education controversy over Mr Birrell's Bill. He married (1889) Miss ADAH WALMESLEY WILLIAMS, granddaughter of Sir Joshua Williams, one of the founders of The Daily News.

Russell, Hon. Cyril—born 1866, third son of Lord Russell of Killowen; educated at Beaumont and University College, Oxford; member of a firm of stockbrokers; married (1894) Helen Mary, daughter of Alexander Pirie, of Leckmelm, N.B.

Russell, Hon. Frank—born 1867, fourth son of Lord Russell of Killowen; educated at Beaumont and Oriel College, Oxford; called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn 1893; Member of the General Council of the Bar; married (1900) Mary, daughter of Lord RITCHIE, of Dundee.

Russell, Captain the Hon. Bertrand, R.A.—born in 1876, youngest son of Lord Russell of Killowen; educated at Beaumont; entered Royal Artillery 1896; served in the last South African War; appointed Extra A.D.C. to Lord Lieutenant of Ireland (Lord Aberdeen) 1906; married (1904) DOROTHY, daughter of John George Leeming, K.S.G.

Russell, Father Matthew, S.J.—born 1834 at Newry, the younger son of Arthur Russell, of Seafield House, Killowen, and Newry, by Margaret, daughter of Matthew Mullan, of Belfast; educated at Maynooth, where Dr Charles Russell, his uncle, was then Professor, the "dear friend" named in Newman's Apologia who most helped him to become a Cathloic. Father Matthew Russell's elder brother became Lord Chief Justice of England, but his three sisters, like himself, entered Religion. He joined the Jesuit Novitiate in 1857, and was ordained in 1864. School and church work in Limerick occupied him till 1873, and since then his life has been centred at St Francis Xavier's, Gardiner Street, Dublin, and University College, Stephen's Green. His editorship of The Irish Monthly, begun in 1873, has done immeasurable service for contemporary Irish literature. Its pages have been a nursery for young reputations, particularly in poetry; and among young writers who have owed their first literary coaching to its editor are W. B. Yeats, Alice Furlong, Mrs Francis Blundell, Elinor Sweetman, Dora Sigerson-Shorter, Katharine Tynan and Miss Madge Blundell; Miss Rosa Mulholland (Lady Gilbert) brought her practised pen into new service for its editor. Father Russell's own gift of verse to the publicverse for the most part religious in motive—is circulated far and wide. Even in his Soggarth's Secular Verses he has not been able to keep very far from the altar. His other works include The Harp of Jesus-Moments before the Tabernacle—Erin: Verses Irish and Catholic—At Home near the Altar-Eucharistic Verses-Idylls of Killowen-Life of Mary Babtist Russell-(his sister), "The Editorial chair." says Father Russell, "is said to be a bar to canonization; no editor has ever yet been beatified." But that editors have helped in the making of Saints, whether canonized or not, Father Russell would be well able to testify. His own influence has extended far beyond the immediate circle of his friends. It has been stated that his verses, entitled "Land! Land!" of which the opening stanza runs:

My dying hour, how near art thou?
Or near or far, my head I bow
Before God's ordinance supreme;
But ah, how priceless then will seem

were among those that recurred to Mr Gladstone on his death-bed.

Russell of Killough, Count (Henri Patrice Marie Russell)—born 1834, eldest son of Thomas John Russell (the representative of the Irish Russells of Killough, who was created a Count of Rome by Pius IX in 1862); allied on his mother's side with Marshal Macmahon, Duke of Magenta; educated in France and at Clongowes. An indefatigable mountain-climber and explorer, Count Russell is the owner of the Vignemale Peak in the Pyrenees (10,800 feet), which the French Government presented to him. He is a member of the French Legion of Honour and of several scientific societies, and he has turned his world-wide travels into literary account in such works as Souvenirs d'un Montagnard—Biarritz and the Basque Countries—Seize mille Lieues à travers l'Asie et l'Océanie.

Russell, Count Ferdinand Marie—born 1841, third son of Thomas John Russell (representative of the Russells of Killough), who was created Count of Rome by Pius IX in 1862 with limitation to his issue male, by his second wife, a cousin-german of the late Marshal Macmahon, President of the French Republic. Count Ferdinand formerly held a Lieutenancy in the 49th Regiment, British Service.

Russell, Right Rev. Mgr Arthur, Provost of Clifton—born 1846; convert 1867; educated at Ushaw for Philosophy and Divinity; ordained 1870; Diocesan Secretary to Bishop Clifford 1871-92, and to his successor Bishop Brownlow 1892-1902; Adm. of Pro-Cathedral, Clifton, 1898-1904; Canon 1888 and Provost 1897; Vicar-General 1895-1904; Vicar-Capitular on the deaths of two Suffragans—Bishops Clifford and Brownlow; Dom. Prel. 1903; retired 1904 after thirty-three years of devoted service to the Diocese.

Russell, Henry Patrick—late in Anglican Orders and Vicar of St Stephen's, Devonport; received into the Church 1897. Author of Cyril Westward: the Story of a Grave Decision (1898), and other works.

Ryan, CANON ARTHUR, V.G., Parish Priest of Tipperary—son of John Ryan, J.P., of Scarteen, Co. Limerick; brother of the late Major-General Thaddeus Richard Ryan, who took part in the siege and capture of Delhi during the Indian Mutiny; educated at Oscott; was right-hand man of that "Lion in Judah" Archbishop Croke, of Cashel, during the most anxious years of Ireland's recent political history, and the contributor of many enlightening letters to the organs of English opinion.

Ryan, Charles Edward, M.D., F.R.C.S., J.P. for Co. Tipperary—son of John Ryan of Scarteen; married daughter of Sir Henry Watson Parker, of Roslyn Hill.

Ryan, John Joseph, J.P. for Co. Limerick—born 1871, eldest son of Major-General Thaddeus Richard Ryan, R.A., D.L., a hero of the Indian Mutiny, and Gwendaline, daughter of Sir James Power, 2nd Baronet; educated at St Mary's College, Oscott; served as a Volunteer in the South African War; and is Master of the Scarteen Black and Tans.

Ryan, Rev. Edward, Chaplain to the Forces—born 1851; educated at St Edmund's College; entered Chaplains' Department 1883; Chaplain of the 3rd Class 1895; served in the last South African War.

Ryan, Most Rev. Patrick J., Archbishop of Philadelphia—born near Thurles 1831; educated by the Christian Brothers at Thurles, at Dublin, and at the Dioc. College of St Louis, U.S.A.: ordained 1854: V.G. to Archbishop Kenrick, of St Louis 1864-72; consecrated 1872 as Coadiutor to Archbishop Kenrick; appointed titular Archbishop of Salamis 1884, in which year he succeeded Archbishop Wood as Archbishop of Philadelphia; bearer of a present from President Cleveland to Leo XIII on his Golden Jubilee 1887. In presenting the gift (a copy of the Constitution of the United States) to the Holy Father, Archbishop Ryan said, "While your Holiness receives the expression of the respect of the kingly governments of the world, receive also the tribute of a free and independent people—a people, naturally brave, generous and just, whose future is likely to vie with the past of any nation in the history of our race. In your Holiness's admirable Encyclical. Immortale Dei. you truly state that the Church is wedded to no particular form of government. Your favourite theologian, St Thomas Aguinas, has written true and beautiful things concerning republicanism. In our American Republic the Catholic Church is left perfectly free to act out her mission to the human race, free by constitutional guarantees."

Ryan-Lenigan, LIEUT.-COLONEL JOHN VIVIAN, D.L. and J.P. for Co. Tipperary—born 1831, son of John Denis Ryan and the daughter of Thomas Lenigan, of Castle flogerty, Thurles; took name of Lenigan 1878; late commanding Tipperary Militia; High Sheriff of Tipperary for 1887.

Ryder, Rev. Charles Edward—born 1842, son of George Dudley Ryder by Sophia, daughter of the Rev. John Sargent, Rector of Woolavington; since 1882 priest of the parish of St Philip Neri, Smethwick, Staffs.

Ryder, Father Cyril, C.SS.R.—born 1844, third son of George Dudley Ryder, M.A., sometime Rector of Euston, Suffolk, who married Sophia, daughter of the Rev. John Sargent, Rector of Woolavington. Father Cyril Ryder, therefore, included among his uncles Cardinal Manning and the two Wilberforces, who also married "Sylph-like Sargents." He is also a grandson of Bishop Ryder of Lichfield. Like his brother, the late Father Ignatius Dudley Ryder, of the Birmingham Oratory, he contravened, by his Catholic upbringing, a family tradition of "Evangelicalism" for which the name of the Earl of Harrowby stands in Victorian politics. Father Cyril Ryder has spent his life in missionary work in the Redemptorist Order at home; and he is the author of the Life of Thomas Edward Bridgett, C.SS.R.

Sabela, Right Rev. Mgr Hermann J.—ordained 1872; first resident priest at Wellingore Hall (St Augustine's) 1874-77; founded missions at Sleaford (1881) and at Broadbottom (1896); Rector of St Charles's, Hadfield, since 1885; member of Nottingham Chapter 1887; Dom. Prel. 1894.

- St Albert, BISHOF OF (Right Rev. EMILE J. LEGAL, O.M.I.)—born in Brittany 1849; educated at Nantes; ordained 1874; entered Congregation of Oblates of Mary Immaculate, and joined their missions in Western Canada 1878; evangelized the Black Feet Tribes of Southern Alberta 1881-97; Bishop-Coadjutor of St Albert 1897, and Bishop 1902.
- St Andrews and Edinburgh, Archbishop of (Most Rev. James A. Smith, D.D., Ph.D.)—born in Edinburgh 1841; educated at Wellburn Academy, Lochee, at Blairs College, and at Scots College, Rome, which he entered in 1858; ordained in Rome 1866; laboured in the busy parish of St Mary's, Dundee, till he was appointed Professor at Blairs in 1867, and there continued for twenty-three years; consecrated Bishop of Dunkeld 1890; translated to St Andrews and Edinburgh 1900; received Pallium (1901) in Edinburgh Cathedral (where he had served Mass as a boy). The See of St Andrews (founded before 900 and erected into a Metropolitan See in 1472) was vacant from the time of the execution of Archbishop Hamilton at Stirling in 1571 till its restoration in 1878.
- St Boniface, Archbishop of (Most Rev. Louis Philip A. Langevin, D.D., O.M.I.)—born in Province of Quebec 1855, son of François Langevin, and kinsman of late Sir Hector Langevin, Canadian Minister of Public Works; educated at Montreal; ordained as an Oblate of Mary Immaculate 1882; Vice-Dean of the Theological Faculty in the Catholic University of Ottawa 1886; Rector of St Mary's Church, Winnipeg, 1893; consecrated 1895 in succession to Archbishop Taché. The Province of which His Grace is Metropolitan comprises the Dioceses of St Boniface and St Albert, and the Vicariates of Athabasca and Saskatchewan. During the first decade of his rule the Archbishop founded twenty parishes, eighteen educational convents, two hospitals, one orphanage, and two Indian boarding-schools, and doubled the number of Indian missionary stations.
- St George, Sir John, Bart.—born 1851, son of 3rd Baronet; succeeded his half-brother as 5th Baronet (created 1766, Irel.) 1861; Lieut. in the Army 1872-83; married (1894) Rose, daughter of Sir George Berkley, K.C.M.G.
- St George, MOTHER, Superior of the Convent of the Faithful Virgin, Folkstone—professed at the Norwood Convent of the Order, which she left in 1854, with other volunteers, in response to the appeal of Bishop Grant, to tend the wounded and cholera-stricken in the Crimean war; decorated by Queen Victoria with the Royal Red Cross.

St George's (Newfoundland), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. NEIL McNeil)—consecrated V.A. 1895; Bishop of St George's 1904.

St Hyacinth (Canada), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. ALEXIS BERNARD)—consecrated 1906.

St John, Canon Edward—born 1855, 6th son of Frederick St John, by Mary, daughter of Edward Bramah; nephew of the late Father Ambrose St John, of the Oratory. The possessor of a business head which has been of incalculable advantage to the Diocese of Southwark, Canon St John has been connected with the Southwark Rescue Society for many years and has had much to do with emigration work. He is Member of Southwark Chapter, and Dioc. Treasurer.

St John, TIMOTHY CHARLES ST ANDREW, formerly Lieut. R.N.—born 1853, second son of General Robert St John, of the family of the famous Lord Bolingbroke; educated at Beaumont; associated with The Times, The Illustrated London News, and other publications, as their representative with important advertisers, a department in which he is without a compeer for success in the London Press; married (1877) CECILIA, daughter of Major Henry LAVIE, Bombay Army.

St John (New Brunswick), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. TIMOTHY CASEY)—consecrated 1900.

St John's (Newfoundland), Archbishop of (Most Rev. Michael F. Howley)—consecrated Bishop 1892, becoming first Archbishop of the new Metropolitan See of St John's 1904.

Sec. to the Westminster Vol. Schools Association 1897-1905; received Knighthood of St Gregory from Pius X 1905, and has given two sons to the priesthood among the Oblates of St Charles.

Sale (Victoria), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. JAMES CORBETT)—consecrated 1887.

Salford, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. Louis Charles Casar-TELLI)—born in Manchester 1852, son of Joseph Casartelli, of Como, Italy; graduated M.A. of London 1873 while at Ushaw College, whence he passed to Louvain University. Here he acquired a mastery of Eastern Languages, and took degree of Doctor of Oriental Literature. After ordination in 1876, he taught at St Bede's College, Manchester, of which he became Rector 1801: President of Manchester Statistical Society 1898-1900; Professor of Zend and Pehlevi, Louvain, 1900-03: Secretary of many annual Conferences of Catholic Colleges; consecrated Bishop of Salford 1903; Chairman of the Salford Catholic Protection and Rescue Society; author of La Philosophie religieuse du Mazdéisme sous les Sassanides (Louvain, 1884, and since translated into English by a Parsee priest) and of other publications in English and French dealing with subjects of Oriental study; edited Illustrated Catholic Missions 1889-1903; published in 1906 a volume of essays entitled Sketches in History, Chiefly Ecclesiastical; valued contributor to The Tablet, and other publications, and writer of a Preface for the popular edition of The Cross in Japan, published in 1905.

Salome, Mother Mary—(a daughter of Mr William Wilfrid Oates, one of the earlier partners in the publishing Firm); formerly of the Bar Convent, York, and now of St Mary's Convent, Cambridge; a spiritual daughter of Mary Ward, of whose adventurous Life she is the admirable recorder in a volume published in 1901, with a preface by the Bishop of Newport. She is the author, also, of The Life of Our Lord for Children—Some Little London Children (a story which reads like a record, in part, of her own childhood in Portman Street)—The Feasts of Mother Church—Amelia and the Dwarfs and Good Night Stories.

Saltoun, LADY—MARY HELENA, daughter of Thomas Arthur Grattan-Bellew, and sister of Sir Henry Grattan-Bellew; married (1885) 18th Lord Saltoun.

Salvin, GERARD THORNTON—born 1878, eldest son of Captain Henry Thornton Salvin, of Croxdale (who died 1897); educated at Beaumont; Lord of the Manors of Croxdale and Butterwick. Croxdale came to the family in the 15th century, and has descended in uninterrupted succession through seventeen generations to the present owner.

Salvin, Marmaduke Henry, D.L. for Co. Durham—born 1849, son of Marmaduke Charles Salvin, J.P., D.L., of Burn Hall, by Caroline Mary, daughter of Sir Charles Wolseley; educated at Oscott; married (1897) Annette, daughter of Sir W. Vavasour.

Sandhurst (Victoria, N.S.W.), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. STEPHEN REVILLE, O.S.A.)—Coadjutor 1885; Bishop 1901.

Sands, W. H.—publisher of all classes of literature, including Catholic; received into the Church 1894.

Sandys, Mrs J. E.—on the Council of proposed Catholic College for Women at Cambridge.

Santley, SIR CHARLES, K.C.S.G.—was born in 1834 at Liverpool, with a Welsh strain of ancestry. From his father he had his first lessons in music, and at the age of twenty he started for Italy with £40 in his pocket. Those were days of hard struggle, and on the conclusion of his studies under Nava, he was almost reduced to starvation in Milan, Returning to England, he completed his training under Garcia, making his London debut at a Crystal Palace concert in 1857. His first great success came in Opera two years later; thenceforth he went rapidly forward in fame, till he was ranked as "the greatest baritone vocalist that these islands have produced." Gounod composed the air of "Avant de quitter ces lieux" (Valentine's Farewell in Faust) expressly for Santley after he had completed the score of the opera, so impressed was he with the range and power of his voice. Not less dazzling than his connexion with opera were his appearances in Oratorio; while to the younger generation of his lovers, his art has been associated with the concert-room. He has made the reputations of several song-writers, to whose work his exquisite interpretations first gave currency. His luck it was to give Mr Graves' "Father O'Flynn" its passport to popularity. Mr Santley was received into the Catholic Church in 1880, and his constant appearances at Catholic functions and in aid of Catholic charities have endeared him to his fellow believers. He has published various songs and piano-pieces, both secular and religious, a number of them bearing the name "Ralph Bretherton"; while his impressive Mass became familiar at the Kensington Pro-Cathedral in pre-Gregorian days, His memoirs, which appeared some years since under the title of Student and Singer, are stored with memories of the great contemporaries whose friendship he enjoyed—Gounod, Sullivan, Garcia, Gye, Reeves, Irving, Dickens and Thackeray. The public he has served so long and his fellow artists whose homage he has won kept the jubilee of his professional life at the Albert Hall in 1907, Pope Pius X sending his blessing to the great singer and devoted son on whom his predecessor had conferred a Knight-Commandership of St Gregory. Sir Charles has been twice married—first (in 1859) to the late Gertrude Kemble, a granddaughter of Charles Kemble, the Actor, who could claim kinship with a yet greater actor in life's drama, the Ven. John Kemble, English Martyr; and secondly (in 1884) to ELIZABETH MARY, daughter of George Rose-Innes. An early Tuke portrait of Mr Santley's three daughters will be recalled by visitors to the Royal Academy. He was knighted in 1907.

Saskatchewan (Canada), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. ALBERT PASCAL, O.M.I.)—born in Languedoc, France, 1848; Indian Missionary in the North West 1874-91; consecrated titular Bishop of Mosynopolis and first Vicar Apostolic of Saskatchewan 1891, the Vicariate being erected into a See in 1896.

Sault-Sainte-Marie (Canada), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. DAVID J. SCOLLARD)—consecrated 1904.

Savile, Hon. George—born 1871, third son of 4th Earl of Mexborough, by his second marriage with Miss Raphael; educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge; Lieut. 3rd Batt. Yorkshire Regiment 1892-93; a "founder" of Westminster Cathedral.

Sbarretti, Most Rev. Donatus, Archbishop of Ephesus, Delegate-Apostolic to Canada since 1902—born at Montefranco, Umbria, 1856; ordained 1879; professor of Ethics and Minutante in the Urban College of the Propaganda, Rome; auditor of the Apostolic Delegation at Washington; U.S.A., 1893; Bishop of Havana 1900; Titular Archbishop of Ephesus 1902.

Scannell, Canon John M., D.D.—educated at St Edmund's, Ware, and the English College, Rome; ordained 1872; for many years stationed at Southampton; Head Master of St Mary's College, Woolhampton, 1900-1903; Member of Portsmouth Chapter.

Scannell, Rev. Thomas B., D.D.—born 1854; educated at St Edmund's, Ware, and at the English College, Rome; ordained 1878; for some time Professor of Philosophy at St Edmund's. Student and a book-lover all his life, he has yet been an indefatigable missioner, as Brighton, Norwood, Sheerness, Folkstone, and now Weybridge know. He sat on the Papal Commission on Anglican Orders (1896), and was for many years an Administrator of the Southwark Fund for Infirm Priests. Author of The Priest's Studies and (with Dr Wilhelm) of A Manual of Catholic Theology; editor and reviser of the later editions of the invaluable Catholic Dictionary.

Schobel, Right Rev. Mgr Victor J., D.D.—born in Germany 1848; educated at Oscott, at the Wurtemburg Gymnasium, and at Rome; ordained 1871; Professor of Philosophy at the English College, Bruges, 1872-73; Professor of Dogmatic Theology at Olton Seminary 1873-85; Professor of Philosophy and Moral Theology at Oscott 1886-96; Chaplain at Oulton Abbey, Stone, from 1896.

Scieluna, Marquis (GIUSEPPE SCICLUNA), Maltese banker—born 1855 at Valetta; 2nd holder of a Marquisate created by Pius IX.

Scoles, Canon Alexander J. C., the "Priest-architect"—born 1844, 3rd son of Joseph John Scoles, Vice-President of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and one of the founders of the Syrio-Egyptian Society; worked with his father; ordained 1878; served missions at Taunton, Bridgwater, Yeovil and Basingstoke; resigned Canonry in Clifton Chapter 1904; Canon of Portsmouth 1905. Canon Scoles is the architect of Woodford Church and Friary, and churches at Stroud Green, Kew, Bridgwater, Burnham, Minehead, Clevedon, Handsworth, Ascot, Dawlish, St Ives, Swanage, Caversham, Reading, Yeovil, Basingstoke, Eastleigh, Rye, and other buildings; completed Portsmouth Cathedral and Prior Park church.

Scott, RIGHT REV. MGR CHRISTOPHER, D.D., V.G. and Canon of Northampton-Dom. Prel. to the Holy Father 1901; Rector of the Cambridge mission 1884—since 1890 of the Church of the English Martyrs, then built by Mrs Lyne-Stephens; during his Cambridge residence he has worked hard and successfully in the interests of Higher Education among Catholics, the scheme for founding a College for Catholic Women in the University Town having his approving support. In 1895 the Fisher Society was founded at his suggestion to promote literary pursuits and a closer social union among Catholic members of the University. In that year the number of Catholic students in residence at Cambridge was fifteen; in 1907 it was seventysix. To Mar Scott's personal qualities, to his breadth of mind and enlightenment of learning, that splendid increase, so ensor aging for the future, is largely due.

Scott, Giles Gilbert, Architect—born 1880, son of George Gilbert Scott and grandson of Sir Gilbert Scott, so that he is the third of a famous line. His great-grandfather was the Rev. Thomas Scott, the commentator. To his father (who designed for the Duke of Norfolk St John's, Norwich, one of the largest churches erected in England since the Reformation, the Central Tower of which can be seen at Yarmouth Roads, twenty miles away), Mr Giles Gilbert Scott owes his possession of the Catholic Faith, he having been a convert. He was educated at Beaumont; and in 1903 was the successful competitor for the designing of the Anglican Cathedral at Liverpool, thus beginning at twentyfour a work which might well be the crown of a long career. Mr Scott is also the designer of the Church of the Annunciation, Bournemouth, and the Chapel of the Visitation Convent, Harrow.

Scott, Major Philip Clement, A.S.C.—born 1871, eldest son of Clement Scott, journalist and dramatic critic; educated for the Army at Mottingham House, Eltham; joined Army Service Corps 1890; Captain 1898; Major 1904; served in South Africa before and during the last War; D.A. Light Infantry—born 1875, eldest surviving son of Charles Aloysius Scott-Murray (late of Danesfield), of Hambleden, Bucks; educated at the Oratory School; entered Army 1896; served in last South African War; married (1907) Miss Jane Seymour De Trafford.

Scott-Murray, Ronald Charles—born 1879, second surviving son of C. A. Scott-Murray, of Hambleden; educated at the Oratory School and Trinity College, Cambridge; married (1905) Magdalen Mary, daughter of W. H. Martin-Edmunds, of Worsborough Hall.

Scott-Murray, Major Basil Henry, late Scots Guards—born 1859, son of Charles R. Scott-Murray, J.P., D.L., of Danesfield, by Hon. Amelia Fraser; educated at the Oratory School; served in Nile Expedition 1884-85; retired 1899.

Scrope, SIMON CONYERS, D.L. and J.P. for the North Riding—born 1857, eldest son of Simon Thomas Scrope, of Danby, by Emily, daughter of Robert Berkeley, of Spetchley; educated at Stonyhurst; is Lieut.-Col. Yorkshire R.G. Artillery. The family of which he is a representative is a famous one in Yorkshire annals. During a period of 300 years it yielded two Earls and twenty Barons, one Chancellor, four Treasurers, two Chief Justices, five Knights of the Garter, and numerous Bannerets. As heir male of Sir William Scrope, K.G., Earl of Wiltes of the time of Richard II, Mr Scrope's grandfather claimed before the House of Lords in 1859 that title. The pedigree was proved, but the claim was disallowed in consequence of an old attainder.

Scully, HIS HONOUR JAMES ALOYSIUS, Judge of the Sussex County Court—born 1856, son of James Scully, of Golden, Co, Tipperary, and Dublin; educated at Stonyhurst; called to the Bar at Middle Temple, and after practising in London at the Common Law Bar, localised in Liverpool; was Chief Lecturer in the Law of Real and Personal Property and Conveyancing under the Council of Legal Education; Judge 1903; married (1888) GERTRUDE, daughter of Right Hon. William Court Gully, now Lord Selby.

Nagle, of Wisconsin, U.S.A. Sir Thomas, always a host in himself, entertained in 1907 a party of British journalists during their visit of inspection to the Dominion.

Shaw, James Frederick—well known in hunting and polo circles in Warwickshire; resident at Leamington, where the Sacred Heart Chapel at St Peter's stands as a memorial of his mother; married (1890) Beatrice Mary, daughter of Henry Bowyer, niece of Sir George Bowyer (the eminent convert of 1850), and sister of the present Baronet.

Shea, SIR EDWARD D'ALTON—Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland and Clerk of the Council 1874-1886; President of the Legislative Council 1886; Chairman of Newfoundland Savings Bank; knighted 1902; married Miss Gentrude Correct.

Shea, LADY—LOUISA, daughter of J. BOUCHETTE, of Quebec; widow of Sir Ambrose Shea, K.C.M.G., Governor of the Bahamas, who died 1905.

Shearer, C. J., J.P.—educated at Stonyhurst, at Glasgow University, and abroad. Author of On Heather Hills—A Family of Quality, and volumes of poems.

Shebbeare, WILFRID, Organist at Downside; formerly organist to the Cowley Fathers, Oxford; collaborated in The Cowley Carol Book and other restorations of medieval music in use there.

Shee, Henry Gordon, K.C., Recorder of Liverpool—born 1847, son of Sir William Shee (the first Catholic Judge since the Revolution); educated at Ushaw (where his father was before him) and at Christ Church, Oxford; called to the Bar 1870, joining Northern Circuit; contested Whitehaven (Liberal) 1886 and 1891; Q.C. 1892; Judge of Salford Hundred Court and Recorder of Burnley 1893; Commissioner supplying for Judge at various Assizes. During the education crisis of 1906, Mr Shee presented the Catholic case from the Albert Hall, and other platforms; and it is a little ill luck that has hitherto denied him the exercise of his marked capacity for a Parliamentary career.

Shee, RICHARD JENERY, Barrister-at-Law of the Inner Temple—born 1822; helped to organize British hospital service during the Franco-German War; a notable linguist.

Sheehan, DENIS DANIEL, M.P. for Mid-Cork since 1901—born in that County 1874; edited the Preston Catholic Herald for two years, and a Cork paper for five; President of the Irish Land and Labour Association, and a supporter of Mr William O'Brien.

Sheehan, CANON PATRICK, D.D., P.P., and in two senses one of the "best read" men of the day-born at Mallow 1852; educated at St Colman's, Fermoy, and Maynooth; after ordination, in 1875, served for two years on the English mission in Devonshire, where his preaching and personality made him at once remarked and appreciated, although no hint was then given of his future career in literature. Subsequently he was Curate at Queenstown and at his native town, becoming P.P. of Doneraile 1895. He was installed Canon of Cloyne Cathedral in 1903, and received the degree of D.D. from Leo XIII, who also sent him a medal in recognition of the service rendered to religion by his writings. These include Geoffrey Austin-The Triumph of Failure (said to be the author's favourite) -My New Curate-Cithara Mea-Luke Delmege-The Spoiled Priest-The Lost Angel of a Ruined Paradise and Lisheen. From an appreciation of his books, which is universal, we may pick out for repetition the salient words in which the Rev. Dr William Barry greeted The Triumph of Failure: "The other day I opened Father Sheehan's volume. I read and read, and was delighted. He had written a story, but he was preaching a crusade. With learning in plenty, Greek, German, English, secular and sacred, with flashes and gleams, undoubtedly of genius; in a language always touching, often exquisite; and deeper than all these fine qualities which become an eloquent style was the austere, kindly, imaginative mood, Celtic and none other, that had seemed to be falling out of a world not worthy of it. It is a trumpet-call to our people."

Sheehyn, Hon. Joseph, K.C.S.G., Canadian Senator—born Quebec 1829; entered Provincial Parliament 1875; Provincial Treasurer 1887; member of the Marchand Administration 1897-1900; Dominion Senator 1900; Knight of the Order of Leopold.

Sheil, EDWARD—born 1851, son of General Sir Justin Sheil, K.C.B., Minister to Persia, who married a daughter of the Right Hon. Stephen Woulfe, M.P., Chief Baron of Exchequer in Ireland; nephew of Richard Lalor Sheil, M.P., the famous orator; Home Rule M.P. for Athlone 1874-80; and for Meath 1882-92.

Sherbrooke (Canada), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. PAUL LA ROCQUE)—consecrated 1893.

Sherwood, FREDERICK WILLIAM, M.A., Scholar of Balliol College, Oxford—sometime President of the Hardwicke Society; convert to the Church; called to the Bar at the Middle Temple 1890; Revising Barrister, Oxford Circuit, 1899; married (1907) HILDA CLARE, youngest daughter of Dr John Kent Spender, of Bath.

Shield, Miss M. A.—contributor to Month and other magazines, especially on subjects connected with her special study of Stuart history. Miss Shield is known also under the pen-name of "Alison Buckler."

Shipley, Orby—born 1832, son of the Rev. Charles Shipley, of Twyford House, Hants; educated at Jesus College, Cambridge (M.A.); an Anglican clergyman for twenty-two years prior to his reception into the Church in 1878; married (1868) Zoë, daughter of the Right Hon. James WILson, one of a well-known group of brilliant sisters. His literary labours have been legion, As an Anglican he published essays, lectures and sermons; while as a Catholic he has edited various old English ascetical works, and is the compiler of the Annus Sanctus, and of two goodly volumes of Carmina Mariana. At the request of Cardinal Manning, Mr Shipley's services (always at the free disposal of his fellow-Catholics) were given to The Weekly Register, which he edited during the term of His Eminence's absolute ownership, his rule intervening between the far more extended ones of Mr Charles Kent and Mr Wilfrid Meynell. Of necessity something of a controversialist, Mr Shipley's tastes have taken him away from mere polemics, whenever he could escape from them, to the more congenial fields of devotional literature.

· Shorter, MRS CLEMENT-DORA, daughter of Dr George SIGERSON, F.R.U.I., of Dublin; studied art in Dublin before she published her first Verses in 1894. These have been followed by The Fairy Changeling-The Lady's Slipper-Ballads and Poems-The Father Confessor-The Woman who Went to Hell-The Song of Earl Roderick, and other works, of which a critic has said: "There is race in her writing; it smacks of the soil; it is no mere imitative cultureproduct, but an expression of innate emotion and impulse." Miss Sigerson married (1897) into the heart of London journalism, becoming the wife of Mr Clement King SHORTER, the well-known critic, and one of the ablest of contemporary editors. Of Mrs Shorter's latest novel. Thro' Wintry Terrors, The Athenæum reports that she treats her theme with "individuality and distinct power," In 1907 her Collected Poems appeared with an introduction by George Meredith.

Shrewsbury, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. SAMUEL WEBSTER ALLEN)—born 1844 at Stockport; educated at Oscott and Rome; ordained 1870; Secretary to Bishop Brown, of Shrewsbury, 1871-79; Adm. of Shrewsbury Cathedral 1875-97; consecrated in 1897 by Cardinal Vaughan, and has since exercised an exceptional authority in council, and also beyond the confines of his own Diocese among all who are happy enough to come within his sphere of influence.

Souter, RT REV. MGR JOSEPH H., Canon of Birmingham (retired)—born 1828; educated at St Mary's College, Oscott, which he entered in 1838; ordained 1852; after leaving Oscott in 1856, he devoted his life to the work of education, founding, and successively conducting, St Chad's Grammar School, Birmingham. Leaving that city in 1864, he served for nine years the mission of Banbury, and then undertook the charge of Sedgley Park School, which he translated to Cotton Hall. On the death of Dr Acton in 1885, he was appointed President of Oscott, his rule ending in 1889, when the College was closed to lay education. In 1888 he was named Dom. Prel. to Leo XIII, and he retired from mission work a few years later.

Southwark, BISHOP OF (Right Rev. PETER EMMANUEL Amigo)—born at Gibraltar 1864; educated at St Edmund's. Ware, and Hammersmith Seminary; ordained 1888; first mission work at Stoke Newington till September; Professor at St Edmund's 1888-92; Assistant-priest at Brook Green 1892-96; succeeded Canon Akers at Commercial Road 1899: in charge of Walworth Mission 1901; V.G. of Southwark 1902; consecrated Bishop of Southwark 1904. The Southwark Incorporated Rescue Society and the Catholic Boys' Brigade count the Bishop as something more than their President—their warm ally, and he is a member of the League of the Cross, the Sign (of the pledge) by which we conquer for the coming generation those social conditions, which now largely render futile the apostolate of the Church among the people. Like the man in the coach who met the painter Wilkie and "thanked God to find him so young a man," we may rejoice that the Bishop has before him time enough to see his valiant Rescue Crusade become superfluous by reason of a prevention of loss, far better than the best cure.

Southwell, VISCOUNT (ARTHUR ROBERT PYERS SOUTHWELL, Bart.)—born 1872, only son of 4th Viscount, K.P., by Charlotte, daughter of Sir Pyers Mostyn, Baronet; succeeded his father as 5th Viscount (created 1776, Irel.) 1878; educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate; Captain Monmouthshire Engineer Militia 1900-02; Lieut. Shropshire I.Y. from 1906; D.L. for Monmouthshire; married (1897) Hon. DOROTHY WALROND, daughter of 1st Lord WALERAN.

Southwell, Charlotte, Lady—eldest daughter of Sir Pyers Mostyn, 8th Bart.; married (1871) Thomas Arthur, 4th Viscount Southwell, K.P., who died 1878.

Spalding, RIGHT REV. JOHN LANCASTER, Bishop of Peoria, U.S.A.—born Kentucky 1840, descendant of a colonist family of Lord Baltimore's expedition; nephew of late Martin Spalding, Archbishop of Baltimore; educated at Emmitsburg, Louvain and Rome: built St Augustine's Church, Louisville, for Catholic negroes, 1869; Theologian to Abp. Blanchet at II Plen. Council of Baltimore 1866; consecrated 1877 as first Bishop of Peoria; one of the Arbitrators appointed by the U.S. Government to settle the relations between masters and men in the great Coal Strike of 1902. Bishop Spalding's published sermons and essays, as welcome on this side of the Atlantic as his own, include Education and the Higher Life—The Religious Mission of the Irish People-Things of the Mind and Opportunity, and have given him a high place among contemporary writers and thinkers. Bishop Spalding stands forward among his brethren as an accomplished modern scholar; he seems in his pastoral charges not only to address his immediate flock, but mankind—a man speaking with the larger voice to men. In a sense, he may be called the founder of the Catholic University at Washington. At the laying of its foundation-stone his warning ran: "To look back to Pagan civilization or to Christian barbarism is to love darkness more than light. Aristotle is a great mind, but his learning is crude and his ideas of nature are frequently grotesque. St Thomas is a powerful intellect, but his point of view in all that concerns natural knowledge has long since vanished."

Sparrow, William John—born at Blackburn 1850, son of John Sparrow, J.P.; educated at the Oratory School (1863-1874), of which he is one of the "oldest" boys; B.A. and LL.D. Spedding, Carlisle James Scott, Private Chamberlain to the Holy Father—born at Summergrove, Cumberland, 1852, younger son of Captain James Dykes Spedding, who married Emily, daughter of the Hon. W. F. Wyndham; educated at Tonbridge School and Queen's College, Oxford; appointed Chamberlain of the Sword and Cloak to Leo XIII 1894, and to Pius X 1903; acted as a Gold Staff Officer at the coronation of Edward VII.

Spender, Hugh F.—born 1873, son of Dr John Kent Spender, of Bath, and of Mrs Spender, the novelist; educated at Oriel College, Oxford (B.A.); late Assistant-Editor of The Daily News; Lobby Representative of The Westminster Gazette, which is under the able editorship of his brother, Mr J. A. Spender; contributor to other papers and reviews; became a Catholic 1894.

Stafford, LORD (FITZHERBERT EDWARD STAFFORD-JERNING-HAM, Bart.)—born 1833, youngest son of Hon. Edward Stafford-Jerningham, and brother of 10th Lord Stafford. whom he succeeded in 1892. The Jerninghams, whose Baronetcy dates from 1621, amalgamated in the middle of the 18th century with the Howards, Barons and Earls of Stafford. The Earldom, conferred in 1688 upon the eldest son of the martyred Viscount, expired in 1762, but the Barony, previously conferred in 1640, was restored in 1825 in favour of Sir George Jerningham, 7th Baronet, by the reversal of the attainder of the Ven. Sir William Howard, 1st Baron, and only Viscount Stafford, done to death in 1680 during the Oates Plot. Lord Stafford can boast illustrious ancestors in a very special sense, since these comprise the Ven. Philip Howard, Earl of Arundel, the Ven. William Howard, above-mentioned, and Blessed Margaret Pole, Countess of Salisbury:

Stagni, Most Rev. Peregrine M., O.S.M., Archbishop of Aquila—an Italian by birth, but educated in England, and entered the English Province of the Servite Order; was for many years parish priest at Fulham until, on his election as Prior General of the Order, he was called to Rome; consecrated Archbishop 1907, his appointment adding another to the English prelates at the Papal Court.

Stanbrook, Lady Abbess of (Dame Cecilia Heywood, O.S.B.).—This Abbey is under the jurisdiction of the English Benedictine Congregation of Monks. The Community, driven from Cambrai at the French Revolution, settled first at Woolton, then at Abbots Salford, and finally at Stanbrook, where the grilles and strict enclosures, and the practices and traditions of Cambrai have been restored. The Liturgical and other works published by the Stanbrook Benedictines are familiarly known to Catholics everywhere.

Standish, Henry Noailles Widdrington—born 1847, eldest son of Lionel C. H. Standish, of Standish Hall, Lancashire, by Sabine de Noailles, daughter of the Duc de Poix; married (1870) Helène de Perusse, daughter of the Comte des Lars.

WALSH, of Dublin. Editor of Aristophanes, and other Greek texts. Dr Starkie has also written on educational questions, including a trenchant criticism on the management of Irish National Schools.

Stebbing, Very Rev. George, C.SS.R.—born 1859; educated at St Joseph's College, Clapham, and Catholic Univ., Kensington; ordained in Redemptorist Congregation 1885; Rector of St Mary's, Kinnoull, 1893, and of St Benet's, Monkwearmouth, 1900; Provincial C.SS.R. 1904.

Steele, FRANCESCA M.—born in London, daughter of Robert Steele and Frances Mary, daughter of B. Francis; educated at Bedford College, London; published her first book (for children) 1878; convert 1887. Author of a large number of children's books, several novels, and works on The Convents of Great Britain—The Anchoresses of the West and Religious Houses of Great Britain and Ireland. Miss Steele is well known to the novel reading public as "Darley Dale," and much, if not all, of her fiction has a strong Catholic interest.

Steuart, Captain John Malcolm, Scottish Horse Imperial Yeomanry, J.P. for Perthshire—born 1863, eldest son of John Steuart, K.S.G., of Ballechin, by Carolina, daughter of Sir Albert Larpent, Bart.; educated at Fort Augustus Abbey School; late Captain Rifle Brigade; married (1896) Anastasia, daughter of Edward Madden, of Iowa, U.S.A. This family descends from Sir John Steuart, of Sticks, Co. Perth, a son of James II of Scotland; and until the death of its representative in 1876 there had been an unbroken succession in its male line for four centuries. The family seat, Ballechin House, was made famous by the late Lord Bute in the annals of Psychical Research.

Steuart, Bernard—born 1875, 4th son of John Malcolm Steuart, K.S.G., J.P., D.L., of Ballechin; educated at Fort Augustus Abbey School; served in last South African War in Lumsden's Horse; late Lieut. Black Watch.

L. Stevenson at Samoa, who speaks with high appreciation of his South Sea Idylls. To the same volume Mr W. D. Howells refers as "the lightest, sweetest, wildest, freshest things that ever were written about the life of that summer ocean." Others of his works are: Summer Cruising in the South Seas—The Lepers of Molokai—Hawaiian Life—Letters from Lazy Latitudes—The Wonder-Worker of Padua.

Stokes, PHILIP FOLLIOTT SCOTT, LL.B.—born 1852, eldest son of Scott Nasmyth Stokes; educated at Ushaw; B.A. London Univ. (1st class honours); Barrister-at-Law, with a large practice at the Chancery Bar; married Miss MAY RAPIER.

Stokes, Adrian—born 1854, second surviving son of Scott Nasmyth Stokes, H.M.'s Chief Inspector of Schools, a Cambridge convert in 1842, who married Emma Louisa, daughter of the Rev. F. C. Walsh; studied at the Liverpool Institute and the Royal Academy Schools; first exhibited at the Royal Academy 1876; Medallist at Paris, Chicago, and other Exhibitions; received mention honorable in British Art Section of Paris Exhibition 1900. In 1903 his Academy picture was bought for the Nation by the Chantrey Trustees; and an exhibition of his pictures, and those of his wife (née Marianne Preindlsberger) was held at the Leicester Galleries, Mrs Meynell prefacing the Catalogue with an appreciation of their work.

Stokes, Mrs Adrian (Marianne Preindlsberger)—an Austrian by birth; studied in Munich, where she began her career by winning a scholarship. Later she exhibited in Munich, Vienna and Paris; and since her marriage she has taken a place of her own in this country, often exhibiting at the Royal Academy and the New Gallery. To her "Madonna and Child" in the New Gallery in 1906, this great praise was given: "It belongs to all time and to every place; it does not affect to revive mediævalism; it is of its own day, but of all days. Few, indeed, are the artists now living who (like Mrs Adrian Stokes) can bring to the representation of this subject the tenderness of spirit which it demands together with a sufficiency of technique commensurate to the theme."

Stokes, LEONARD ALOYSIUS SCOTT, F.R.I.B.A.—born 1858, 3rd surviving son of Scott Nasmyth Stokes; was Vice-President of the Architectural Association 1887-88, and its President in 1889—probably the youngest of the line; gained médaille d'argent (Architecture) at Paris Exhibition of 1900; married (1898) EDITH NELLIE, daughter of William Edward Louis GAINE. An American observer of Mr Stokes's work has said: "He is handling Gothic as a twentieth century architect should. He is developing it, shaping it to contemporary conditions, revitalizing it. Everything he does is instinct with life and interest." His buildings include the Chelsea Town Hall; Lincoln Grammar School; Minterne House (Lord Digby's seat); 47, Palace Court, W. (for Mr and Mrs Wilfrid Meynell); churches at Maidenhead, Folkstone, Southampton and Exeter; Servite Church, Begbrooke; St Clare's, Sefton Park; Nazareth House, Southsea, and Nazareth House, Bexhill.

Stokes, FREDERICK WILFRID SCOTT—born 1860, youngest son of Scott Nasmyth Stokes; educated at St Francis Xavier's, Liverpool, and the Catholic Univ., Kensington; engineer; managing director of the firm of Ransome and Rapier; employed in the construction of the Assouan Dam; awarded Order of the Osmanieh by the Khedive (1903); married (1899) IRENE, daughter of Luke IONIDES, a member of a Greek family famous as friends of Art, her uncle being the bequeather of the Ionides Collection to the South Kensington Museum.

Stokes, JOHN SCOTT—son of Charles Scott Stokes, and nephew of Scott Nasmyth Stokes; educated at the Oratory School; in the Post Office; "devilled" for Harold Frederic, and has himself shown a decided, if desultory, aptitude in the handling of a pen.

Stokes, Canon George Frederick, B.A.—educated at St John's College, Cambridge; convert; served mission at Olney, Bucks, 1884-99; Rector of Church of Sacred Heart, Leighton Buzzard, since 1899; Member of Northampton Chapter.

Stone, Miss Jean Mary—educated at a Calvinist school in the Parc de Neuilly, Paris, and in Germany, where she was received into the Church by Bishop Ketteler of Mainz; her first book, Faithful unto Death, was published through the encouragement of Father Joseph Stevenson, S. J. (himself a convert through the study of history), with a preface by Father Morris, S. J. This was followed by a study of Franciscan history; and (in 1897) by her memoir of the Scotch convert, Eleanor Leslie. Later her admirable monograph, Queen Mary, won high praise from The Athenæum's and other critics. Her Reformation and Renaissance—Studies from Court and Cloister—and The Church in English History (1907), establish her authority as a historian of the special periods she treats.

Stonor, Hon. Henry Julian, M.V.O., Groom-in-Waiting to the King—born 1859, son of 3rd Lord Camoys; educated at Oscott; was Gentleman Usher to Queen Victoria 1883-1901; Chevalier of the Legion of Honour 1905.

Stonor, Hon. Edward Alexander—born 1867, son of 3rd Lord Camoys; educated at Oscott and under Lord Petre at Woburn; Lieut. Oxfordshire Yeomanry 1885-92; Clerk in the House of Lords; married (1899) widow of Ambrose Ralli.

Stonor, Charles Joseph, J.P. for Lancashire—born 1837, son of the Hon. Charles Stonor, of Anderton Hall, Lancashire, by Sophia, daughter of John Cary, of Tor Abbey, Devon; married (1865) MAUD MARY, daughter of Charles Noel Welman, of Norton Manor, Somerset.

Stonor, EDMUND CHARLES JOSEPH—born 1866, eldest son of Charles Joseph Stonor, J.P., of Anderton Hall, Lancashire; educated at Oscott; formerly Lieut. 3rd Batt. East Lancashire Regiment; married (1896) MARY LOUISA, daughter of Thomas RIDDELL, by Lady Henrietta Plunkett.

Stonor, HIS HONOUR JUDGE HENRY—born 1820, the son of a Stonor whom Penal Laws had sent into the Spanish service; maternal grandson of Charles Butler, K.C. (the first Catholic called to the English Bar since 1688, a lawyer of repute and one of the most zealous laymen of his day); a great-grand-nephew of the Rev. Alban Butler; educated at Oscott and Old Hall; called to the Bar at the Middle Temple 1842; Chief Commissioner of West Indian Encumbered Estates 1858-65; County Court Judge 1865-1905; J.P. for Counties Surrey, London and Middlesex; married (1858) MARY ANNE, daughter of John Kirsopp, of The Spital, Hexham.

Storer, Bellamy—received into the Church while a Member of Congress by Archbishop Ireland (1896); late United States Minister to Austria, having previously held the same post to Spain; married Mrs Maria Longworth, a lady who preceded her second husband into the Church. The circumstances under which Mr Storer retired from Diplomacy belong to the domain of the unexpected; a red hat for Archbishop Ireland, which President Roosevelt had seemed to encourage Mr Storer to move for in the Vienna that was in touch with the Vatican, gleams out brightly enough amid much that is otherwise veiled. In the end America lost a first-class diplomatist, the President, in many quarters, his good name for plain dealing, while Archbishop Ireland did not get the Hat his head would manifestly adorn.

Story, Captain William Oswald, R.N.—served at Perak (1875-6), in Egypt in 1882 (when he was named in despatches and promoted), and in the Suakim Expedition of 1884; Commander 1896; Captain 1902.

Strickland, Roger Walter—born 1872, only son of Walter Charles Strickland, J.P., D.L., of Sizergh Castle, Westmoreland, by Rosetta, daughter of C. W. Medex, of Brussels; educated at Stonyhurst; formerly Lieut. 5th Batt. Royal Irish Fusiliers; married (1897) Annie, daughter of Joseph Rowley, of Dee Bank, Flintshire.

Strickland, Walter George, Secretary to the National Gallery of Ireland—son of Thomas Strickland; educated at Ushaw.

Strong, Austin—grandson of Mrs Robert Louis Stevenson, in whose upbringing "R.L.S." himself was deeply concerned; a convert to the Catholic Church.

Strong, MISS SUSAN—born in California; formerly an American prima donna; added her name to the long list of musicians of note who have become Catholics, being received by Father Maturin in June, 1904. Miss Susan Strong, who has sung at Covent Garden in Wagner Opera (she was the "Venus" in Tannhaüser), and who ranks among the most brilliant of contemporary concert-singers, has also a controlling interest in a laundry de luxe in Baker Street.

Stuart, Canon Alexander—born at Glenlivet, Banffshire; educated at Blairs and Scots College, Rome; ordained 1883; Vice-Rector of Scots College, Rome, for one year; served St Columba's, Edinburgh, for fifteen years; Adm. of Edinburgh Cathedral and Member of Chapter from 1903; Member of Edinburgh School Board; on committee of Heriot Trust and Charity Organization Society; Parish Councillor for five years.

Sutton, FATHER WILLIAM, S.J.—born in Co. Cork; educated at Clongowes and in the Irish Province S.J.; some years Prefect of Studies in Mungret College; Rector of Tullabeg 1890-95; Rector of Milltown Park 1895-1903; Rector of Mungret 1903-05; contributor to New Ireland Review; author of Mind and Instinct and The Shakspere Enigma.

Swale, Sir James Bishop, Bart.—born 1867, eldest son of Sir James Swale, of Rudfarlington, claiming as 10th Baronet; educated at Ampleforth. This title (created 1660, Engl.) is presumed to have become extinct on the death of the 4th Baronet in 1733, when the direct line failed; but it was assumed by the Rev. Sir John Swale, O.S.B., in 1877, he being in lineal descent from a younger son of Sir Solomon Swale, the first Baronet.

Sweetman, EDMUND CASIMIR, J.P. and D.L. for Co. Kildare—born 1831, eldest son of Patrick Sweetman, of Longtown, Co. Kildare; educated at Oscott; High Sheriff of Kildare for 1888; married (1881) ALICE, daughter of Richard BUTLER, of Suirvale, Tipperary, and sister of General Sir William Butler.

Sweetman, John, Chairman of the Meath County Council—born 1844, son of John Stanislaus Sweetman, of Merrion Square, Dublin; M.P. (Home Ruler) for East Wicklow County 1892-95; married (1895) Agnes, daughter of John P. Hanly, of Knockboyne, Navan. Mr Sweetman has of late become known as a strong supporter of Sinn Fein.

Sweetman, Captain Michael James, late Worcestershire Regiment—born 1864, son of Michael James Sweetman, J.P., of Lamberton Park, Queen's Co., and Mary Margaret, daughter of Michael Powell; educated at Downside; Captain 1896; Superintendent of Gymnasia, Western District, 1895-99; subsequently filled same post at Gibraltar and in Cork; like his brother-in-law, Mr Egerton Castle, a very good fencer; served in the last South African war.

Sweetman, Miss Elinor—daughter of late Michael James Sweetman, of Lamberton Park, Queen's Co., and Mary Margaret, daughter of Michael Powell, of Rich View, Co. Dublin. The sister of Mrs Egerton Castle and of Mrs F. Blundell, she herself began publishing poetry in The Irish Monthly. Of her Footsteps of the Gods (1894), a critic writing in Merry England said: "Few first volumes of poetry wear a form of such dignity, finish and calm... Miss Sweetman's volume has not a page without signs of elect feeling and elect intelligence." This book has been followed by another—Palms, and by a number of poems in periodicals.

Sweetman, Major M. James, East Yorkshire Regiment—born 1865, son of Walter Sweetman, of Cholamon, Ferns, and Mary, daughter of Richard Butler, of Suirvale, Co. Sir John Gorst, of whose social reform policy he is a disciple. Author of Through Five Turkish Provinces (1900)—Dar-ul-Islam (1904)—D'Ordel's Pantechnicon (1904).

Sykes, Father Richard, Provincial S.J.—born in Lancashire 1854; educated at Mount St Mary's and Stonyhurst; entered Society of Jesus; ordained 1857; for some years head of the College and its mission of St Francis Xavier, Liverpool; Prefect-Apostolic of the Zambesi 1896-1900, years of great missionary progress throughout the Prefecture; succeeded Father Colley as Provincial of the English Province, S.J., 1904. His favourite study is literature, classical and English, and gardening is his hobby, or would be if he had time to pursue it.

Symons, William Christian, artist—an exhibitor of many pictures, notable for their technical excellence and brilliance of lighting, at the Royal Academy. Among the mostrecent of these may be noted "The Invalid Connoisseur" and "Ecce Ancilla Domini." Mr Symons has also distinguished himself in portraiture. His most permanent achievement, however, is to be found in Westminster Cathedral, for which he designed the mosaics in All Souls Chapel, and the Rood. The most comprehensive private collection of his works is that formed by Mr R. Le Brasseur, of Hampstead. Mr Symons has latterly resided at Battle, Sussex.

Synnott, Nicholas Joseph, J.P. for Co. Kildare—Director of the Bank of Ireland, Director of the Great Southern Railway Company, Secretary to the Catholic Laymen's League of Dublin—born 1856, son of Thomas Synnott J.P., of Innismore, Co. Dublin, by Catherine, daughter of T. Dunne; educated at Stonyhurst and London University (B.A. 1877); called to the Bar at the Middle Temple 1879; contested seat in the London County Council Election 1895; High Sheriff of Co. Kildare for 1906; married (1891) Barbara, daughter of Joseph MacEvov-Netterville, of Villa Rita, Biarritz. Mr Synnott is one of the most active laymen in Ireland, and an authority on the Higher Education Question, a subject to which he has devoted much attention and which he has treated in print and in evidence with conspicuous ability.

Synnott, Captain Wilfrid T., R.A.—born 1877, son of Thomas Synnott, of Innismore, Co. Dublin; educated at Stonyhurst; Royal Artillery 1898; served in last South African War; Captain 1905; married (1907) GWENDOLINE HERMIONE, daughter of Captain Keown-Boyd.

Taafe, VISCOUNT (HENRY TAAFE)—born 1872, only son of 11th Viscount Taafe (who was Prime Minister of Austria 1879-93) and Maria Francisca, Countess Csaky; succeeded his father 1895. As 12th Viscount Taafe of Corren and Ballymote, Co. Sligo (created 1628), he has claimed a vote at elections of Irish Representative Peers. He is Count of the Holy Roman Empire, and married (1897) MARIA MACDA FÜCHS. The Taafe family have been domiciled in Austria since the Battle of the Boyne, in which the 2nd Viscount fell on the Iacobite side.

Taafe, Anthony—born 1860, only son of W. Taafe, J.P. (60th Rifles), of Cappagh Lodge, Co. Roscommon; married (1886) Philomena Rose, youngest daughter of Edward M. Norris, of Kieran, Co. Meath.

Taafe, George Joseph, J.P. for Louth and Meath, late Captain 4th Batt. King's Own Regiment—born 1866, only son of Stephen Taafe, of Glenkeiran, and grandson of George Taafe, of Smarmore; educated at Stonyhurst; Deputy Lieutenant for Co. Louth, and High Sheriff of the County for 1907. Mr Taafe who is a prominent member of the Irish Reform Association and keenly interested in the industrial revival in Ireland, married (1895) ALICE, daughter of Captain B. T. GRIFFITH-BOSCAWEN. The Taafes acquired Smarmore as far back as 1320, and the old castle, incorporated in the present dwelling-house, is supposed to date from that period. The family suffered much during the Cromwellian invasion.

Tabb. Rev. John Banister-born in Virginia 1845; became a Catholic when he was twenty-six; studied at St Paul's College and St Mary's Seminary, Baltimore; ordained 1884; published his first poem, "The Cloud," in Harber's, 1877, and his first book in 1889; Professor of English at St Charles's College, Ellicott City. "Few words and fair" form an appropriate motto for Father Tabb's work, which has the proverbial brevity of wit allied with natural simplicity and spiritual intensity. Some have likened his art to that of carving on a cherry-stone, but, in the carved cherry-stone, the more deft the workmanship, the less do we take count of the kernel. Such analogies therefore do less than justice to this great poet in small space. Father Tabb is the author of Poems—Lyrics—An Octave to Mary-Rules of English Grammar-Poems, Grave and Gay -Two Lyrics-Later Lyrics and Child Verse. A Selection from his poems was made by Mrs Meynell for English readers in 1906.

Tagliaferro, Count (Girolamo Tagliaferro)—born 1820 in Malta; educated at Malta Univ.; created Count by Pope Leo XIII 1892; is a Banker in Malta; married (1847) MARIANNA BORG, who died 1867.

Talbot, Lieut.-Col. Lord Edmund, M.V.O., D.S.O., M.P.born 1855, second surviving son of 14th Duke of Norfolk; took name of Talbot in lieu of Howard 1876, on inheriting under the will of Bertram, Earl of Shrewsbury; educated at the Oratory School; entered 11th Hussars 1877, of which he was Adjutant 1881-83, and Lieut.-Col. commanding 1900-02; served in South African War as D.A.A.G. 1900; retired 1905; contested Burnley as a Conservative 1880, and a division of Sheffield in 1883 and 1886; has sat for Chichester since 1894; Private Secretary (unpaid) to Mr Brodrick when Secretary of State for War and for India; Junior Lord of the Treasury and Whip 1905-06; Chairman of the Catholic Soldiers' Club; married (1879) Lady MARY CAROLINE BERTIE, daughter of 7th Earl of ABINGDON. Sir E. Carson, belonging to a profession which does not encourage men to believe in each other, once described Lord Edmund as "a man in whom the whole of the Unionist party put trust"; and there is a general belief, which Cardinal Vaughan, a shrewd observer, shared, that but for his natural reserve and his liking to see others preferred before him, he might have occupied a larger place in public life than that actually accepted by him. Lord Edmund has a son and a daughter.

Talbot, LADY EDMUND-MARY CAROLINE, eldest daughter of 7th Earl of ABINGDON, by Caroline Theresa, daughter of Charles Towneley, of Towneley; founder of Catholic Social Union Clubs for Girls in London and Sheffield, and associated with the Ladies of Charity since Cardinal Vaughan (in 1900) so styled the "noble women, not a few." banded together for social work, especially among such girls as (in her own words) "drag out a degraded and mischievous existence in the London slums. . . . Their lives, like the lives of their brother hooligans, are, when not spent in cheap work, with the workhouse or something worse to look forward to, a mixture of vice and intolerable monotony. . . . It is almost impossible for those whose lives are passed in luxury and ease to understand what the degradation of their poorer sisters really means unless practical experience and personal contact teach them." Lady Edmund Talbot is on the Committee of the British Institute of Social Science, and has written on Settlement Work.

Talbot, Henry Edmund—born 1883, only son of Lord Edmund Talbot, who is heir-presumptive to the Dukedom of Norfolk; educated at the Oratory School and Oxford University.

Talbot, John Hyacinth, J.P. and D.L. for Co. Wexford-born 1851, son of J. H. Talbot (sometime M.P. for New Ross), of Ballytrent, Co. Wexford; High Sheriff of Co. Wexford for 1894; married (1896) EMILY, daughter of Heffernan CONSIDINE, of Derk, Co. Limerick.

Talbot, Captain George, C.B., J.P. for Wexford—born 1823, eldest son of Captain James Talbot, Grenadier Guards, of Knockmullen, Co. Wexford; entered 13th Light Infantry 1840; served in first Afghan War, including defence of Jellalabad and capture of Cabul 1841-42; Resident Magistrate in Ireland 1851-71; Chief Commissioner of Dublin Police 1877-83; C.B. 1883; married (1852) Mary, daughter of James O'Beirne, of Jamestown, Leitrim.

Taylor, IDA ASHWORTH—born at the Uplands, East Sheen, Surrey, elder daughter of Sir Henry Taylor, K.C.M.G., author of Philip van Artevelde, by the Hon. Alice Spring-Rice, daughter of the first Lord Monteagle. Lady Taylor had for first cousin—"a brother in everything except the one remove in blood"-Aubrey de Vere, of whose conversion Sir Henry Taylor, writing in 1851, said: "I did not anticipate that he would find rest and satisfaction in the Church to which he seemed to be gravitating. In this I was mistaken; he has found peace and happiness in that Church." Miss Taylor also is a convert. She is the author of Vice Valentine (a novel)—A Social Heretic (a novel written with her sister)-Life of Sir Walter Raleigh-Life of Lord Edward Fitzgerald-The Silver Legend: Saints for Children and Robert Southwell, Poet and Martyr. She has contributed to The Dublin, The Edinburgh, The Nineteenth Century, and other Reviews, and has made a delightful collection of sayings from the writings of her much admired Madame Swetchine.

Terry, RICHARD R., Musical Director of Westminster Cathedral since 1901—eldest son of Thomas Terry, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and nephew of Sir Walter Runciman, 1st Bart.; educated at King's College, Cambridge; founder of the Cambridge Univ. Musical Club; organist and choirmaster at Downside 1896-1901, having previously filled the same post at Elstow School and St John's Cathedral, Antigua. Mr Terry, who believes that there is a "church style" in music equally as in architecture and painting, was known as a purist in the days before the Reform, and by his interpretation of Palestrina and Plain Chant at Westminster, has set a standard for all England. He is a reviver of Tallis, Tye, Byrd, Philips, and other English Catholic composers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, whose works had mostly lain in museums and libraries for 300 years. Among the music thus heard in Westminster Cathedral for the first time since the Reformation is Byrd's Gradualia, and also Peter Philips' Cantiones Sacræ, which Mr Terry copied and scored from the only complete set in the King's library at Buckingham Palace. Mr Terry is himself the composer of a number of masses, motets, and other Church Music: the editor of Motets, Ancient and Modern-Downside Masses—and Downside Motets; the compiler (in 1907) of a valuable and detailed catalogue of Catholic Church Music: and the author of a standard volume on church music, He has contributed (words as well as music) to several hymnals, English and German; and was jointeditor of Byrd's five-part Mass, performed under Richter at the Birmingham Festival of 1900.

Terry, Stephen Harding, M.Inst. M.E.—born 1853, son of Rev. Stephen Terry, M.A., of Dummer House, Basingstoke; educated at King's College, London; articled engineer to Messrs Aveling and Porter, of Rochester; Engineering Inspector to the Local Government Board 1878-90; equipped the first Natural Vaccine Station for calf lymph; patented, with Sir Fortescue Flannery, the Terry-Flannery system of ventilating the bulks of oil-carrying steamers; has contributed largely to the technical press; married first (1884) Katharine, daughter of Frederick Maples, and secondly (1902) Lilian, daughter of R. T. Porter, of Rochester.

Testaferrata-Abela, Hugo, C.M.G. (Baron Gomerino)—born 1852, son of 7th Baron Gomerino (created 1710, Malta); educated at Stonyhurst; succeeded as 8th Baron 1885; is a Patrician of Messina, Citta di Castello, Rome and Benevento, and President of the Committee of Privileges of the Maltese Nobility; created C.M.G. 1901; married (1905) LUISA BORG CARDONA.

Testaferrata-Olivier, Marquis (Louis Testaferrata Olivier, Knight of the Holy Roman Empire)—born 1855, son of fourth Marquis; educated at Malta University; Captain Royal Malta Regiment 1889, and Major 1898; commanded detachment of the Regiment present at Queen Victoria's Jubilee in London 1897; in command of the 2nd Batt. 1900-01; Member of Local Commission of Colonial and Indian Exhibition held in London 1886; President of the Malta Agrarian Society; Member of the Committee of Privileges and of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; married (1882) ELISE, daughter of Professor Robert Casolani.

Thackwell, Mrs E. F. (LADY POPE-HENNESSY)—CATHERINE, daughter of Sir H. Low; married (1878) Sir John Pope-Hennessy, K.C.M.G., Governor of Mauritius, and secondly (1894) Edward Francis Thackwell.

Thaddeus, FATHER, O.F.M., Ex-Custos of Friars Minor—ordained 1870; author of The Franciscans in England (1600-1850)—Ceremoniale Provinciæ Angliæ Fratrum Minorum, and an expert on à'Kempis's Imitation of Christ, of which he has prepared the most accurate and scholarly edition.

Thaddeus, Henry Jones, R.H.A.—born in Cork 1849; studied art in Paris. Painted a well-known portrait of Leo XIII in 1886, the first British artist since Sir Thomas Lawrence to be favoured with the sittings of a Roman Pontiff; and again next year in his famous picture "The Obedienza," he painted the Pontiff seated on his throne receiving the Oath of Obedience from his Cardinals—a picture now the property of Cardinal Moran. Mr Thaddeus also painted the first portrait of Pius X as Pontiff (1903), and among others of his sitters have been Mr Gladstone, the Abbé Liszt, the Grand Duke Michael, and Lady Clifford of Chudleigh.

Thesiger, Hon. Mary Lincoln—born 1840, daughter of 1st Lord Chelmsford (Lord High Chancellor); Lady-in-Waiting to H.R.H. the Duchess of Teck 1880-97; received into the Church 1907.

Thompson, Francis—born 1860, son of a Lancashire doctor and convert to the Church; nephew of Edward Healy Thompson, an Oxford clerical convert and polemical writer and hagiographer; educated at Ushaw and at Owen's College, Manchester; published his first poem in Merry England 1888, and (in 1803) his first volume. Poems, which went into four editions within the first year of publication. an acceptance which has ever since been maintained. This volume was followed by two others, Sister Songs and New Poems: while in his Health and Holiness (edited by Father Tyrrell), Mr Thompson has given proof of the unusual powers as a prose-writer which have made him a welcome contributor to The Athenæum, and other critical reviews. He is versed in Franciscan studies, and has contributed both prose and verse to Franciscan Annals. Mr Coventry Patmore (to whom Mr Thompson dedicated his last volume) gave the younger poet an instant welcome as one whose "qualities ought to place him in the permanent ranks of fame, with Cowley and with Crashaw." Lovers of poetry think themselves fortunate when they can claim for one of their own generation a place among the great poets: and that pleasure must, in Mr Thompson's case, be intensified among Catholics by his use of imagery particularly dear to them. Robert Browning (in a letter to Mr Wilfrid Meynell), Professor Dowden in The Illustrated London News, Mr H. D. Traill in The Nineteenth Century, Mr Louis Garvin in The Fortnightly, Mr Quiller Couch in The Speaker. Mr William Archer in his Poets of the Younger Generation and the anonymous critics of The Quarterly Review, Academy, Bookman, Daily Chronicle and Pall Mall Gazette, and many others, have proved to be pioneers who have redeemed our generation from the reproach that a poet must wait till he is dead before he is claimed as an immortal.

Thompson, James Eyre, M.A. and late Scholar of Wadham College, Oxford, Barrister-at-Law—convert to the Church; formerly member of The Times reporting staff in the Houses of Parliament; Times Law Reporter in the House of Lords, and Law Journal Reporter in the House of Lords and the Privy Council; Member of North Kensington Catholic Association.

Thompson, Lady—Anne, daughter of J. Affleck; married (1870) the Right Hon. Sir John Thompson, Canada's Catholic (convert) Premier, who died at Windsor Castle 1894.

Thompson, MRS CHRISTIANA—daughter of J. B. WELLER, and widow of T. J. Thompson; friend of Charles Dickens, Mr Ruskin, and many other lovers of the arts she has practised as a "divine amateur." Some of her songs, including "The Winter it is Past," "Aubade," "The Milk Maid," "Heaving the Lead," "Sospiri Mei" and "Summer Sweet," have been before the public; and she has exhibited pictures in the Royal Academy and other exhibitions, especially landscape drawings in water-colour, of which Mr Ruskin exclaimed, "How right they are!" The friendship of Dickens for the brilliant young bearer of a name he had taken not at all in vain in the most famous of his books was expressed, after almost their first meeting, in the lines:

I put in a book once, by hook and by crook,
The whole race (as I thought) of a "feller",
Who happily pleased the town's taste (much diseased),
And the name of this person was Weller.

I find to my cost that one Weller I lost, (Cruel Destiny so to arrange it!); I love her dear name, which has won me some fame, But Great Heaven! how gladly I'd change it.

Mrs Thompson, who is the mother of Lady Butler and Mrs Meynell, was received into the Church by Father Hermann, a Carmelite of spiritual fame.

Thornton, CANON ROBERT—son of Thomas Thornton, of St John's Wood; educated at Ushaw; ordained 1881; Rector of St Godric's, Durham, from 1895; Canon of Hexham 1905; County Councillor and Poor Law Guardian for Durham City.

Thorold, Algar Labouchere—only son of the Right Rev. Anthony Wilson Thorold, Bishop of Winchester (who died 1895) by his second wife Emily, daughter of John Labouchere, of Broome Hall, Surrey; nephew of the Right Hon. Henry Labouchere, P.C.; educated at Oxford University; a convert in 1884; married (1894) Theresa Mary, daughter of the Rev. Owen L. Mansel, Rector of Church Knowle, Dorset. Editor of The Dialogues of St Catherine of Siena, prefaced by an Introduction on "The Study of Mysticism"; author of Catholic Mysticism, and contributor to the Independent Review, Downside Review, and other periodicals.

Thorp, Joseph, "a young man with a programme"—born 1873, son of the Rev. W. Thorp, D.D.; educated at Baylis House and Stonyhurst; Jesuit novitiate 1891; Oscott 1901; took position in the Art and Book Company in 1904, and was chiefly associated with the development of the Arden Press; joined as commercial traveller W. H. Smith and Son, and was rapidly promoted; married (1905) Nellie Syrett, a fan-painter known to connoisseurs, and sister of Netta Syrett, the novelist; contributor to papers and magazines both in prose and verse; his papers in The Guardian (1903) on Our Brotherhood in Christ, received a good deal of attention, and brought him into contact with many prominent non-Catholics; A Plea for Agnosticism, published anonymously in America, also received a full measure of friendly and unfriendly attention; published, in 1902, Eight Cradle Songs, under pseudonyms of Claude Monroe and Cecil Fortescue.

Thorp, SIDNEY BENSON—born 1864, son of Dr Thorp, by his marriage with a kinswoman of Archbishop Benson; educated at St Edmund's Hall, Oxford (B.A.); Anglican Curate of Christ Church, Clapham, and St Matthew's, Sheffield; a convert in 1890; contributor to Academy, Pall Mall Gazette, Pall Mall Magazine, Tablet, and other papers, and a member of the choir of Westminster Cathedral.

Throckmorton, SIR NICHOLAS WILLIAM GEORGE, Bart .born 1838, son of 8th Baronet (created 1642, Engl.), whom he succeeded in 1862; educated at Downside; Captain Worcestershire Yeomanry 1871-82; J.P. and D.L. for Berkshire, Worcestershire and Warwickshire: Sheriff of Berks, for 1872. The Throckmorton of the day figures in the history of the Gunpowder Plot; and it was at Coughton, the fine old seat of the Throckmortons in Warwickshire, that the Jesuit Father Garnet, that martyr to the seal of Confession, was captured after the flight of the conspirators. The 1st Baronet, Sir Robert, had his estates sequestrated during the Civil Wars, and Coughton Castle was at one time held by the Parliament. The 5th Baronet was the friend of Charles James Fox and of the poet Cowper, who has left in his Letters a description of the life of the household at Weston Underwood. The 3rd Baronet married the daughter and ultimate heiress of Sir Charles Yate, Bart., through whom Buckland accrued to the Throckmorton family.

Throckmorton, Captain Richard Charles Acton, late 87th Foot—born 1839, second surviving son of Sir Robert Throckmorton, 8th Baronet, and Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Acton, 6th Baronet; educated at Downside; entered Army 1857; served in India 1858-59, and in China 1860; married (1866) Frances Stewart, daughter of Major John Moore, whom he survives.

Throckmorton, Captain Courtenay Brabazon, late Royal Welsh Fusiliers—born 1866, eldest son of Captain Richard Acton Throckmorton and Frances, daughter of Major J. A. Moore, sometime Director of Hon. E.I. Company's Service; educated by Lord Petre at Woburn Park; entered Royal Welsh Fusiliers 1887; Captain 1896; served in the last South African War; Adjutant 2nd Vol. Batt. Royal Welsh Fusiliers 1902; married (1905) Lilian, only daughter of Lieut.-Col. Langford Brooke.

Throckmorton, Commander Herbert John Anthony, R.N.—born 1872, third son of Captain Richard C. A. Throckmorton; educated at Fort Augustus; Lieut. 1898; saw service at the Cape during last South African War.

Throckmorton, Miss Mary Elizabeth, Dame de la Croix Etoilée—daughter of Sir Robert Throckmorton, 8th, and sister of the present Bart.; formerly a Lady-in-Waiting to the Empress of Austria.

Thunder, Patrick, J.P. and D.L. for Co. Meath—born 1838, eldest son of Michael Thunder, J.P., D.L., of Lagore, Co. Meath; educated at Stonyhurst; married (1871) Mary Anne, daughter of P. de Pentheny O'Kelly, of Barretetown, Co. Kildare. His eldest son, Michael Pentheny Thunder, was born in 1874, was educated at Clongowes, served with the Irish Imperial Yeomanry during last South African War, and married (1900) May, only child of Patrick Sullivan.

Thunder, MICHAEL HARMAN D'ALTON, J.P. for Co. Meath—born 1842, son of Michael Thunder, of Lagore; educated at Stonyhurst; sometime Lieut. 58th Regiment; married (1878) MARY, daughter of Sir Stuart KNILL, whom he survives.

Thunder, James W., J.P. for Meath—born 1848, 4th son of Michael Thunder, J.P., D.L., of Lagore, Co. Meath; married (1873) Laura Mary, daughter of William Plowden, of Plowden.

Thurston, Father Herbert, S. J.—born 1856, son of G. H. Thurston, M.R.C.S.; educated at Stonyhurst and in the Society of Jesus; B.A. of London Univ.; Master at Beaumont College 1880-87; ordained 1890. Father Thurston is a writer of marvellous variety of range and research, from whose fiercest polemics the note of the special pleader, which has forfeited for so many controversial champions the respect of readers, is almost uniformly absent. The candour of his articles on the myths commonly associated with popular devotions such as the Rosary, has led to one or two of those controversies in which we hear a good deal about loss of faith, but see only loss of temper. His volumes include The Life of St Hugh of Lincoln-The Holy Year of Jubilee-Lent and Holy Week-The Stations of the Cross. Together with Mgr Ward he edits the "Westminster Library," and frequently contributes to the reviews.

Thynne, SIR HENRY, C.B.—born 1839, son of Edward Thynne, of Ipswich, Queensland; educated at Queen's University (M.A., LL.D.); Resident Magistrate in Ireland

Tichborne. SIR HENRY ALFRED JOSEPH DOUGHTY, Bart., I.P. and D.L. for Hants,-born 1866, son of 11th Baronet by Teresa, daughter of 11th Lord Arundell of Wardour: succeeded at his birth to the title, his right to which was to be challenged by the adventurous Arthur Orton, a claimant whose cases occupied the Law Courts an unconscionable time, and resulted in his imprisonment for perjury. Educated at St Augustine's, Ramsgate; High Sheriff of Hampshire for 1892. Sir Henry, who has followed the path of travel nearly all over the earth, married (in 1887) MARY, daughter of Edward Henry Petre, of Whitley Abbey, Coventry. The Tichbornes are one of the few families whose estates have been held in succession from Saxon times. The young and accomplished Chidiock Tichborne, executed for Babington's Plot in 1586, was a scion of the house. The ist Baronet proclaimed James I at Southampton, and the and served Charles I during the Civil War. The 5th Baronet entered the Society of Jesus at Ghent.

Tighe, Thomas—born 1829, eldest son of Robert Tighe, J.P. of Ballinrobe and The Heath, Co. Mayo; educated at Clongowes; M.P. for Co. Mayo 1874; Chairman of the Ballinrobe and Claremorris Railway, and Member of the Irish Railway Clearing House; J.P. and D.L. for Co. Mayo; married (1875) MARIE ANTOINETTE, daughter of Peter Hubert DOLPHIN, J.P., of Danesfort, Co. Galway.

Tighe, MAJOR VINCENT JOHN, D.S.O., Manchester and West African Regiments—born 1863, eldest son of Major M. J. Tighe, 70th Regiment; enlisted 1886; received commission W. Riding Regiment 1894; Lieut. W. Indian Regiment 1898; Captain Manchester Regiment 1900; served with Niger Expeditions 1896-97, in Benin Hinterland 1898, in Siama Expedition (severely wounded, D.S.O.) 1899, and Kumasi Expedition 1900; has been employed in Royal Niger Territories since 1896; married (1906) Angela Lucy, 4th daughter of Osmund Seager.

Tighe, Lieut.-Col. Michael Joseph, D.S.O., Indian Army—born 1864, son of Major M. J. Tighe, 70th Regiment; entered Leinster Regiment 1883; Capt. I.S.C. 1894, Major 1901; served in Burmese War 1886-88, with Karan Expedition (despatches and D.S.O.) 1888-89, in Burma again (1890), in East Africa 1896, in Uganda 1898-99, and in Mekran and S.E. Persia, including capture of Nodiz Fort, 1901; married (1900) KATHARINE, daughter of Hugh Baillie Scott.

Tighe, MAJOR STANISLAUS MICHAEL, Indian Army—born 1867, third son of Major M. J. Tighe, 70th Regiment; Captain 20th Punjaub Infantry 1888; served on the North-West Indian Frontier 1897; Major 1903; married (1905) CATHERINE, youngest daughter of Osmund SEAGER, of the Admiralty.

Tohin, Miss Agnes, the translator of Petrarch, is a native of San Francisco, where her father was a lawver and banker, Miss Tobin's brothers (pioneers of polo and other sports on the Pacific Coast) include Mr Richard Tobin, who is the head of the Hibernian Bank in San Francisco, and Mr Joseph Tobin, who, standing for the Mayoralty in 1900. was defeated by the rascal Schmitz. Of her two sisters one is the wife of Mr Charles Duval, and the other of a son of Senator Clarke of Arizona. Miss Tobin's social talents are very well known in London, where she has ranked among her friends most of the "interesting people" during the last decade, and hers are the initials ("A,T,") which appear on the dedication page of Mrs Meynell's Later Poems. Her first translation into English verse of nine sonnets and a canzone by Petrarch, was published under the title Love's Crucifix in 1903. It was followed by The Flying Lesson, and (in 1907) came the volume labelled On the Death of Madonna Laura. In these renderings of Petrarch the translator was allowed by critics to have achieved a faithfulness of spirit while avoiding the barren technicality that is the translator's bane. The imaginative beauty of phrasing that she brought to her task belied Sydney Smith's saying, already disproved by Rosetti, that a translation is always made for the worse—except a Bishop's.

Tobin, RICHARD, F.R.C.S.I., M.R.C.P.I.—born at Waterford; educated at Clongowes; retired Brigadier-Surgeon A.M.S., having taken part in Suakim Expedition (1885); Member of Governing Body of Catholic Univ. School of Medicine; Surgeon to St Vincent's Hospital, Dublin; President of the Irish Medical Association 1904-05; on Committee of Clongowes Union; author of A Synopsis of Surgery.

Todhunter, Captain Herbert W., King's Own Scottish Borderers—born 1870, fourth son of late I. Todhunter, F.R.S., D.Sc., St John's College, Cambridge; served in last South African War; married (1904) Anne, daughter of John Kenyon, K.S.G., J.P., of Gillingham.

Toke, Leslie—convert to the Church; married a daughter of Captain Thomas Cholmeley, R.N., of Brandsby; is interested, like his brother-in-law, Mr Hugh Fairfax-Cholmeley, in social work; has contributed to the Downside Review and other periodicals.

To mention some of these earlier names is to revive in a multitude of minds happy and grateful experiences of a writer who brought a newly added significance to old truths. Since Father Tyrrell ceased to belong to the Society, under circumstances that are familiar, he has suffered further estrangements which no one without grief could regard as final. Father Tyrrell now dwells in retirement at Storrington, the Sussex village where, also beneath the shadow of the Premonstratensian Priory, the late Francis Thompson first knew himself to be a poet.

Tyrrell, WILLIAM GEORGE—Assistant Clerk at the Foreign Office; married a daughter of the late David Urquhart, M.P., and the Hon. Mrs Urquhart.

Vasey, FLEET-SURGEON SAMUEL WILLIAM, R.N., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.—served in Zulu War 1879, in West Africa 1880, in Egyptian War of 1882, and in operations against the anti-foreign Chinese in 1900; Fleet-Surgeon 1898.

Vassall-Phillips, FATHER OLIVER RODIE, C.SS.R.—eldest son of Robert Lowe Grant Vassall, of Oldbury Court, Bristol, by Matilda, daughter of William Phillips, of Whitson Court. Mon.; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; received into the Church 1879; ordained priest in the Redemptorist Order 1882; successively Rector of Bishop Eton, Wavertree, Liverpool, of Bishop's Stortford, and of Kingswood. Bristol; took maternal name of Phillips 1901.

Vaughan, Father Bernard, S.J.—born at Courtfield 1849, twelfth of fourteen children of Colonel J. F. Vaughan and Eliza Rolls. The three brothers of Father Vaughan's father became priests—one a Jesuit, one a Redemptorist, and the other the Bishop of Plymouth. The next generation enlarged the record, for of Father Vaughan's eight brothers, six entered the Church, including the Cardinal, Archbishop Bede Vaughan of Sydney. Father Jerome, the founder of Fort Augustus, Father Kenelm and Monsignor John Vaughan. Five of his sisters became Nuns, among the rest that uncanonized Saint, Clare Vaughan, and another who said, "If I cannot live a Nun, at least let me die one." Father Bernard was educated at Stonyhurst, the beginnings of which his great-grandfather Weld had given to the Society; he entered the Novitiate in 1868, and was ordained in 1876. He spent twenty years in Manchester, where his manifold activities as Rector of the Holy Name Church made him known to all classes of his fellow-citizens. In 1900 he settled in London. where his activities have been divided between the pulpit at Farm Street and work in the East End slums. As a preacher it has been Father Bernard's fortune to attract to his sermons and addresses in various parts of Europe all sorts and conditions of men, including King Edward VII. His spoken words are at once reproduced in the Press, and his more seriously published lectures and sermons include The Roman Claims (a series delivered at the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, in reply to Bishop Moorhouse)—Sinless Mary and Sinful Mary (a sermon at the Marian Congress in Rome 1904) and The Sins of Society. Father Bernard Vaughan, though a Jesuit, has always been very much Father Bernard Vaughan, and, indeed, rejoices in the preservation of his ego. "I have been," he says, "through what the Americans call 'the Jesuit Gospel mill,' and though the process is supposed to crush out all the notes of individuality in the wretch so foolish as to submit himself to its grinding wheels, I flatter myself that I managed to get through with every bit as much of my own individual character left as I care to call my own. I have met Jesuits of many nationalities, but never yet came across the type set forth in works of fiction; nor do I think that, human nature being what it is, that type anywhere exists in fact. While there are easier and pleasanter ways of qualifying for a place in lowest hell, I do not believe any created being would submit himself to the severe strain of a Jesuit training just to become the villain who is put forth as the diabolical hero in so many modern works of romance."

Vaughan, Rev. Kenelm—born 1840, third son of Colonel Vaughan of Courtfield; educated at Oscott; promoter of the House of Expiation at Chelsea; Private Secretary to Cardinal Manning; traveller in Spain and South America, where he collected with indefatigable zeal the money for the foundation of the Expiatory Chapel of the Blessed Sacrament in Westminster Cathedral, and propagated the Holy Scriptures so diligently as to be described as constituing in himself a "Bible Society." Victoria Eugenia, H.M., Queen of Spain—born at Balmoral October 24, 1887, only daughter of Princess Henry of Battenberg, and grand-daughter of Queen Victoria; god-child of the Empress Eugénie; received into the Church by Bishop Brindle 1906; married (May 31, 1906) Alfonso XIII, King of Spain, the rule by which English royalties intermarry among Protestant Teuton Houses receiving thereby a breach vastly better than its continued observance. Nothing could exceed the popularity of the match in England, no less than in Spain, a strange reversal of the feeling expressed by the old balladmonger in Queen Mary's days when there was talk of a former Spanish match. The bigots then sang:

"The King of Spain—him is a Paynim, A follower of Mahound; And pity it were if lady fair Should marry a Popish hound!"

Vizagapatam (India), BISHOP OF (Right Rev. JOHN MARY CLERC)—consecrated 1891.

Walpole, Captain Horace Henry Maximilian—born 1867, eldest son of Frederick Goulburn Walpole (a convert to the Church, who died 1901), and his wife Amalie, daughter of Edward Binns, of Ware Park, Jamaica; formerly Captain 9th Batt. Rifle Brigade.

Walpole, Colonel Horace John—born 1848, son of Horace Walpole, and kinsman of the great and witty bearer of that name; late Captain King's Royal Rifles; Lieut.-Colonel 4th Batt. Norfolk Regiment 1889-96; convert to the Church; married (1887) Pauline, daughter of the Hon. Charles Langdale, of Houghton.

Walters, FREDERICK A., F.S.A., architect—among the many buildings of his designing (which include some notable examples of the Early English style) are Our Lady's and St Philip's, Sydenham (1882)—St Joseph's, Roehampton (1883)—restorations and additions at Buckfast Abbey (1886 and 1906)—Wonersh Seminary (1891)—Church of the Precious Blood, Red Cross Street, Borough (1891) — Sacred Heart, Battersea (1892) — Franciscan Friary, Chilworth (1892)—St Joseph's and St Anne's Orphanages, Orpington (1894)—St Thomas of Canterbury's, Sevenoaks (1896)—St John's, Heron's Ghyll, for Mr J. F. Hope (1897)—St Joseph's and St Peter's, Ealing (1899)—St Anselm's, Deptford (1900)—Sacred Heart, Deptford (1901)—St Mary's, Canton, Cardiff (1907).

Walton, Hon. Sir Joseph—born 1845, eldest son of Joseph Walton, of Fazakerley, Lancashire; educated at Stonyhurst; graduate of London University 1865; called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn 1868; practised at Liverpool till 1885; for several years member of the Liverpool School Board; became a leader in the Commercial and Admiralty Courts, and had an extensive practice in House of Lords Appeal cases; was Standing Counsel to the Jockey Club; K.C. 1892; Recorder of Wigan 1895-1901; Bencher 1896; Chairman of the General Council of the Bar 1899-1901; succeeded Sir I. Mathew as a Judge of the King's Bench Division 1901: married (1871) TERESA, daughter of N. D'ARCY, of Ballyforan, Co. Roscommon. Sir Joseph, who is a lover of books, and of "the quiet life" at Shingle Street, on one occasion narrowly escaped going into Parliament, a step which would have placed him in political office, as it had done in the case of Sir Charles Russell, whose pupil he had been in chambers when Russell was a junior on the Northern Circuit. Sir Joseph's tribute to that friend and colleague, when that friend passed away, will not easily be forgotten; and he has brought heart as well as mind to numerous addresses he has given in London and Lancashire on subjects of stirring Catholic interest, such as that of the State's attitude towards Education. Of Sir Joseph Walton's sons, one is a secular priest, two others have joined the Jesuits, while another died of fever during the South African War.

Walton, JOSEPH ARTHUR—eldest son of Sir Joseph Walton; educated at Stonyhurst; admitted a Solicitor; partner in the firm of Gasquet, Metcalfe and Walton, of 16 Mincing Lane, E.C.

Ward, Edmund Granville, G.C.S.G., J.P. for Hants.—born 1853, eldest son of Dr William George Ward, of Northwood Park, by Frances Mary, daughter of the Rev. Prebendary John Wingfield, D.D., Headmaster of Westminster School; educated at Old Hall and Stonyhurst; created Papal Chamberlain at the Sacerdotal Jubilee of Leo XIII, who conferred upon him the Grand Cross of St Gregory at his Episcopal Jubilee 1893; Member of the first Hampshire County Council; Lord of the Manors of Northwood, Debourne and Weston. Mr Ward, who was long the friend and benefactor of the English Benedictines at Douai, where he built himself a house, and spent £10,000 in adding a new wing to the College, had the mortification, in 1903, of seeing the entire property sold by the French Government.

Ward, WILFRID—born at Old Hall, Herts, in 1856, son of Dr William George Ward, whom Tennyson (his friend and neighbour in the Isle of Wight) hailed in verse as the "most generous of Ultramontanes." From St Edmund's and Ushaw, he passed to the Gregorian University, Rome, and graduated later at London University. In 1890 he was Lecturer in Philosophy at Ushaw, and held the post of Examiner in Mental and Moral Science at the Royal Univ. of Ireland 1891-92. In 1906 he assumed the editorship of The Dublin Review—an organ made justly famous, though on somewhat different tracks, by his father before him. Mr Wilfrid Ward's programme is to "bring into combination the work of those Catholic thinkers and men of learning who know the intellectual language of the day, who accept what is true in modern research, science and criticism, while still reverencing the authority and ancient traditions of the Church—that is to pave the way for the synthesis between Faith and Learning which any age of intellectual activity of a new kind demands"-a programme worthy the requisite devotion of a lifetime for its fulfilment. As a controversialist on the philosophy of religion, Mr Ward has taken a place among the publicists of his day. Since he entered the lists with The Wish to Believe, a volume published when he was only 28, Mr Ward, as a writer, has spoken a language intelligible to his contemporaries, because he has put himself in touch with actualities, and is aware of the advance of time. He is a ready contributor to the monthly reviews. and among his volumes are several biographies which well illustrate his gift of insight—those of his father, of Cardinal Wiseman, and of Aubrey de Vere. He has also published two volumes on questions of the day-Witnesses to the Unseen and Problems and Persons. In a French estimate of Mr Ward, the Abbé Dimmet writes in La Pensée Catholique dans l'Angleterre Contemporaine: "It is Mr Wilfrid Ward's distinction to be at once layman and theologian, and, as theologian, to be wide without being rash. . . . It is a rare and happy circumstance for a layman to have been disciplined in theology without losing in consequence any of his activity and independence." Mr Ward, who sat on the Royal Commission on Irish University Education (1901), married (1887) Miss Josephine Hope-Scott.

Ward, Mrs Wilfrid—Josephine Mary, daughter of James Robert Hope-Scott, Q.C., of Abbotsford, by his second wife, Lady Victoria Howard, daughter of Henry Granville, 14th Duke of Norfolk; on Executive Committee of Catholic College for Women at Cambridge (1907); married (1887) Mr Wilfrid Ward. Author of One Poor Scruple (1899)—The Light Behind (1903) and Out of Due Time (1906)—three serious studies of contemporary Catholic life, dealing with delicate problems, handled with honesty and insight. They will remain as milestones on the road over which the present generation makes, almost unawares, its great transition.

Ward, RIGHT REV. MGR BERNARD—born 1857 at Old Hall, Herts., son of the famous convert Dr William George Ward, of Northwood Park, Isle of Wight, whose "degradation" at Oxford early in the 'forties of the last century makes a landmark in "the Catholic Revival"; educated at St Edmund's, Old Hall, and at Oscott; ordained 1882; Vice-President of St Edmund's College 1890, and President 1893; Dom. Prel. to Leo XIII 1895; Canon of Westminster 1903. Established at Ware as "Old Hall Green Academy" in 1769, the College was reconstituted as St Edmund's in 1793. Began his education in France, and in 1855 went to Ushaw; ordained 1866; Assistant-priest to Provost Platt at Durham; went in 1869 to South Shields, where he built a church; ten years later he succeeded Canon Curry in the charge of the Carlisle mission, where he founded St Mary's Church 1893; retired from the Rectorship 1907; was Vice-Chairman of the old Carlisle School Board and Chairman of the Board of Guardians; for many years religious Inspector of Schools for Cumberland and Westmorland; Member of the Diocesan Chapter 1886; when in Rome with the English pilgrimage in 1887, Leo XIII's attention was specially turned to him as a lineal descendant of the recently beatified Thomas More.

Waterton, Joseph—born 1893, eldest surviving son of Charles Edmund Maria Pius Waterton, of Deeping-Waterton, and great-grandson of the Naturalist. The Watertons migrated into Yorkshire from Lincolnshire in 1435, and were seated at Walton for many centuries. Sir Robert Waterton was custodian of Richard II at Pontefract Castle; and members of the family fought at Crecy, Agincourt, and Marston Moor, the draw-bridge at Walton being broken down by Oliver Cromwell. Recent generations can boast the admixture of martyr blood—that of Blessed Thomas More.

Watkins, Francis—born 1854, son of Thomas Watkins, of Cardiff; educated at Downside; Barrister-at-Law; married (1881) ADA M. RICKARDS, of Dartmouth, Devon.

Westminster. ARCHBISHOP OF (Most Rev. Francis Bourne) -was born at Clapham in 1861, son of Henry Bourne, by Ellen, daughter of John Byrne, merchant, of Dublin. Both his father and grandfather served the Post Office Department of the Civil Service with distinction, his father as Principal Clerk under the Receiver General. His father was a convert to the Church, and the future Archbishop was educated at Ushaw; at Old Hall, Ware; at St Sulpice, Paris, where he received the Diaconate in 1883; and at Louvain University, Ordained by Bishop Coffin, of Southwark, in 1884, he spent the next five years as Assistant priest at Blackheath, Mortlake and West Grinstead, where, having the spiritual care of boys, he showed that interest in their training and fortunes which had been fostered by a stay with the Salesians in Turin, Already devoted to the education of priests in its earlier stages, he left the orphan boys at West Grinstead in 1889, at the call of Bishop Butt, to found the Diocesan Seminary at Wonersh. He retained the Rectorship till 1898, together with the Chair of Moral Theology and Holy Scripture, and made the institution so much of a model that it became, in a sense, the precedent for separate diocesan seminaries, and the best illustration of arguments he himself set forth in a series of still quoted articles in The Tablet. In 1895 he was named Dom, Prel, to Leo XIII, and in the following year was consecrated Titular Bishop of Epiphania, and Coadjutor to the Bishop of Southwark, whom he succeeded in April 1897. In September the Bishop took a leading part in the St Augustine celebrations at Ebbsfleet, and a little later he accompanied Cardinal Vaughan to Arles, a journey of memorable impressions. In the Southwark Diocese a nexus of social and "rescue" enterprises was formed during his rule. He enlisted lay co-operation in Rescue work; and, adopting Cardinal Vaughan's watchword of "personal service," he established two Ladies' Settlements for work amongst the poor. The development of Catholic Boys' Brigades, which marked his stay in Southwark, was the outcome of his old important interests on boys' behalf. While yet the youngest member of the English Episcopate, he was translated to Westminster as Cardinal Vaughan's successor in August, 1903, and received the pallium in November. As the fourth of a glorious line, the Archbishop has a heritage of great traditions, understood, respected, yet interpreted and tempered in accord with the needs and ideals of a new generation. A strong man, in quietness and confidence lies his strength.

Wheble, CAPTAIN JAMES WILLIAM ST LAWRENCE, late R.A., J.P. for Berks.—born 1853, eldest son of James J. Wheble, J.P., D.L., of Bulmershe Court, by Lady Catherine St Lawrence, daughter of 3rd Earl of Howth; educated at Oscott.

Young, BERNARD JOSEPH, J.P. for the West Riding, Assistant Chairman of Quarter Sessions and member of the Standing Joint Committee, Lord of the Manor and Patron of Kingerby, Chairman of the Trustees of "Maria Young's Spinster Fund," a Catholic charity founded by the late Miss Maria Teresa Young of Kingerby, member of the Executive of the Catholic Education Council, on the Committee of the Catholic Poor Law Guardians' Association, Chairman of the Directors of Strouts's Ltd-born 1844, eldest surviving son of John Joseph Young, J.P., of Claxby House, Lincolnshire, by Margaret, daughter of William Baldwin, of Broadwood Hall, Lancashire; educated at Downside and Ushaw; held commission in Royal North Lincoln Militia 1866-73; married (1867) SARAH ANNE, daughter of William CADMAN, of Cross Hall, Yorkshire. The Young family trace their ancestry from Tudor Trevor (Earl of Hereford), founder of the Tribe of the Marches (who died 948) to Young of Brynyork in Co. Flint, where, in the middle of the 17th century, they sacrificed their extensive estates rather than conform. Having fled from Wales, they settled at West Rasen, Lincolnshire, shortly after the Restoration; and in 1785, when the law permitted Catholics to acquire land, Isaac Young bought the adjoining parish and manor of Kingerby with its old moated mansion, where priests had habitually been harboured during the Commonwealth. This old manor-house was rebuilt in 1812. In 1893 the family built and endowed the chapel and priest's house at Osgodby. Mr Young's predecessors at Kingerby founded the missions of Grimsby, Gainsborough, Crowle and Spalding.

Young, Hugo Joseph, K.C.—born 1847, 4th son of John Joseph Young, J.P., of Claxby House; educated at Ushaw; called to Bar at Inner Temple 1872; went Midland Circuit; took silk 1898; Recorder of Lincoln from 1905; Bencher 1907; Trustee of Maria Young's Spinster Fund; married (1875) EMMA, daughter of Thomas DAVIES; author of Conventual and Monastic Institutions: their Legal Position.

Yunge-Bateman, Major George M., R.A.—born 1861; educated at Newark Grammar School; Captain 1890; Major 1899; served in last South African War.

Zahm, Very Rev. John Augustine, Ph.D., Provincial of the Congregation of the Holy Cross in the U.S.A.-born 1851 in Ohio, of mixed Teutonic and Celtic parentage; graduated at Notre Dame Univ. 1871; entered Congregation of the Holy Cross; Vice-President of Notre Dame Univ. 1876 and Director of the Scientific Department; spokesman at the Catholic Science Congress, Fribourg, 1897, and President of his own section; Member of the Société Française de Physique, Paris, of the Société Scientifique, Brussels, and of the Roman Arcadia; is a moderate evolutionist. Author of Evolution and Dogma-Bible Science and Faith-Sound and Music-Catholic Science and Catholic Scientists-Scientific Theory and Catholic Doctrine-Science and the Church, His Evolution and Dogma, after enjoying great popularity in America, was translated into Italian; but this edition was voluntarily withdrawn by the author of the book in 1900.

Zaleski, Most Rev. Ladislas, Titular Archbishop of Thebes and Delegate-Apostolic to the Indian Empire—went to India in 1890 on a mission from Leo XIII; succeeded Mgr Ajuti as Delegate-Apostolic 1892, when that prelate was recalled from India to fill a post at Propaganda; entrusted by the Holy Father with the establishment of a general seminary for native clergy at Kandy.

Zimmerman, REV. BENEDICT, O.C.D.—Prior of Wincanton; author of Carmel in England (1900). The history of the Jesuits in England found its appointed historian in Brother Foley, and the secular clergy in Fathers Morris, Bridgett, and others; while the Dominicans have found in Father Raymund Palmer, and the Benedictines in Dom Gilbert Dolan, writers who have brought to a laborious task the same painstaking care. Father Zimmerman worthily completes the list with his history of the English mission of the Discalced Carmelites, 1615-1849.

Zimmermann-Barbaro, Charles Ermolao—born 1859, second son of 4th Marquis of St George (Malta); Knight Grand Cross of the Most Holy Sepulchre, and representative of that Order in England and Malta; Knight Grand Commander of St Gregory the Great; Syndic of the Capucins of Floriana; founder and patron of the Church of Jesus of Nazareth in Sliema; formerly Treasurer to the Assembly of Maltese Nobility; married (1884) MARIA VICTORIA, daughter of Antonio Borg.

BEAUMONT COLLEGE OLD WINDSOR

& ST JOHN'S PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Under Fathers of the Society of Jesus, assisted by Lay Professors

Modern lines. Greek optional. Full Classical and Mathematical Course for Oxford and Cambridge Higher and Lower Certificates, for Responsions at the Universities and for London Matriculation. "Recognized" by Board of Education, & approved, afterinspection, by Army Council for School Leaving Certificate Examination. Navy Classes reorganized in accordance with the requirements of the new Admiralty Scheme for Naval Cadetships.

THE system of discipline is designed to allow the boys as much freedom from supervision and restraint as is compatible with their preservation from moral and physical harm. They are encouraged to manage their own games and amusements and to maintain order and discipline among themselves without undue interference from Masters. This is done through Captains chosen from the boys themselves, whose duties largely correspond with those of Monitors or Præpostors in the Public Schools.

BOYS are allowed more liberty as they rise in the School, with wider bounds and private rooms or studies for the older boys.

THE Junior School, St John's, designed by the late Mr Bentley, can claim, in addition to a most picturesque and healthy situation, to be one of the best built and equipped of the Preparatory Schools of the Kingdom. It provides a separate establishment where young and delicate boys may receive the care and individual attention they require. The boys at St John's do Physical Drill daily on the Sandow System. The number at St John's is limited to 60 and the age ranges from 8 to 13.

THE School games and amusements are Football (Association), Cricket, Lawn Tennis, Hockey, Gymnastics, Athletic Sports, Bicycling, Rowing, Swimming, Rifle Shooting, Carpentering and Gardening. The School is provided with a gymnasium, swimming-bath, carpenter's shop and rifle-range. There are Cadet Corps, Senior and Junior.

Experienced certificated Matrons at both Schools, and Governesses for the younger boys at St John's.

STONYHURST COLLEGE · BLACKBURN

ST OMERS, 1592. STONYHURST, 1794

The College comprises 3 distinct departments:

I. HIGHER STUDIES

THE higher studies are intended to supply the want of a Catholic University, and to give such training to those students who are to enter Oxford and Cambridge, as will satisfy the wishes of the Holy See and the Hierarchy, who insist "on the absolute necessity of a good and solid previous preparation for all those who are to be sent to these Universities."

The Syllabus of Studies comprises:

(a) A full course of lectures on Catholic Philosophy, based on the Stonyhurst Series of philosophical text books which has received the special approval of Pope Leo XIII.

(b) A supplementary course of lectures on Political Economy.

(c) A complete course of English Law, as required for the Intermediate and final Bar Examinations.

(d) Lectures in Classics, Mathematics, etc., in preparation for the Degrees of the London University, Pass and Honours; for Oxford and Cambridge Scholarships, Responsions, etc., for the Army and Civil Service Competitive Examinations.

(e) Lectures on Science, Chemistry, Theoretical and Practical.

(f) By following the lectures on Biology, of which a full course is now given, Students are exempted from the first year of their medical studies.

COLLEGE OF THE SACRED HEART WIMBLEDON

(Under the Fathers of the Society of Jesus)

THIS SCHOOL has two features which mark it off from other Catholic scholastic institutions.

I. AN ARMY DEPARTMENT

(opened 1898) for resident and non-resident candidates for the examinations for Woolwich, Sandhurst, Indian Police, and the Army Qualifying Certificate, the discipline being under the control of the Fathers, while the Tuition is mainly entrusted to Lay Tutors selected for their experience and success in preparing pupils for Public Examinations.

II. A DAY SCHOOL FOR DAY BOYS, DAY BOARDERS & BOARDERS

the latter living in boarding houses under the supervision of the Fathers.

The Classes and System of Teaching are those usual in the other English Jesuit Schools.

AMPLEFORTH COLLEGE

OSWALDKIRK, YORK

THIS College was opened in the year 1802 by the Fathers of the English Benedictine Congregation, for the purposes of Catholic higher education.

The Course of Studies comprises preparation for the Universities, and boys are entered for the Certificate Examinations held by the Oxford and Cambridge Schools Examination Boards.

The Staff consists (a) of Benedictine Monks, most of whom have graduated in the Ampleforth Hall founded at Oxford (1897), and (b) of Lay Masters, Graduates of the Universities.

The College is thoroughly equipped with modern requirements, in particular with excellent Chemical and Physical Laboratories. The Board of Education recognizes the School for purposes of Registration.

It lies within a short distance of York, Harrogate and Scarborough. The healthiness of the situation is proverbial.

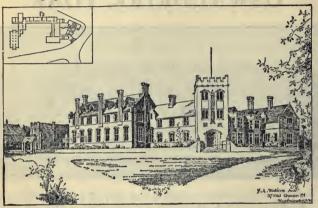

For prospectus and particulars apply to

The Right Rev. Abbot Smith, O.S.B., or to the Head Master, the Rev. J. E. Matthews, O.S.B., M.A.

DOUAL ABBEY

WOOLHAMPTON R.S.O., BERKSHIRE

Midgham Station (G.W.R.), one mile, via Reading or Newbury Telegraphic Address: "BENEDICTINES, WOOLHAMPTON"

OUAI ABBEY was first established in Paris as a royal Priory in 1611 by the English Benedictine monks as a continuation and revival of the ancient Abbey of Bury-St-Edmund's. After the French Revolution, the English Benedictines revived St Edmund's at Douai, in 1818. In 1899 Pope Leo XIII created it an Abbey.

On March 18th, 1903, the French Government, by the law on Religious Associations, suppressed the Abbey and expelled the Monks and their students. On September 17th, 1903, the Abbey and Abbey School, through the kindness of the Bishop of Portsmouth, was re-established at Woolhampton.

The Abbey is 46 miles from London (Paddington), on the Newbury and Devizes branch of the Great Western Railway, and stands in one of the most healthy and picturesque parts of Berkshire. The College has been recently entirely rebuilt, and is replete with every modern convenience.

Lay-Professors, Graduates of the Universities, assist the Fathers in the work of classical and mathematical studies.

Students are prepared for the Oxford and Cambridge Higher Certificate, and entrance to the Universities and Professions.

Further particulars and prospectus will be supplied on application to the Right Rev. Abbot or the Very Rev. Prior.

St JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

IRELAND

THIS College, which has been recently built and fitted up by the Cistercian Fathers of the above monastery for the reception of students, possesses many singular advantages. It is situated in a beautiful demesne, which abounds in woods and pasture lands. From the College windows delightful vistas present themselves, and the Devil's Bit and Slieve Bloom Mountains loom in the distance. The playgrounds and walks are spacious and numerous. Particular attention has been paid to the fittings of the Classrooms and Dormitories, which are constructed on the most modern and approved principles.

The health and comfort of the students have been kept primarily in view; hence, parents may be assured that their children shall receive every care from the Fathers. The table is plentiful and varied, and under the charge of a professional chef.

The course of instruction at this College comprises Mental and Moral Philosophy—Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics; Natural Philosophy; Mathematics; the Irish, English, French, Latin and Greek languages; Science and Drawing; Book-keeping, Shorthand, Geography; History—Sacred and Profane; Music—Vocal and Instrumental; Elocution, etc. Once a week the students are exercised in Physical Drill by an experienced Drill-Instructor.

Special attention is paid to the Religious and Moral Training of the students. A competent staff of Professors, comprising members of the Community and University Graduates, spare no pains in imparting knowledge to the students, in the various branches of education.

ROSELANDS, WALMER, KENT

Under the Patronage of
His Grace the ARCHBISHOP OF WESTMINSTER and of
His Lordship the BISHOP OF SOUTHWARK

School recognized by the Board of Education. Staff of Certificated and Registered Teachers.

THIS Establishment offers to the pupils all the advantages of a superior English Education, the comforts and refining influences of home-life going hand in hand with the highest intellectual culture. The Convent is beautifully situated at a short distance from the sea, and is surrounded by extensive grounds, to which additions have been made by recent purchases. The Church, with its artistic tower, the Convent and School buildings, have been erected according to the designs of Messrs. Pugin and Pugin, Architects, and are heated and ventilated throughout after the most modern system. Individual care is given to each pupil. The air is most beneficial to delicate girls, many of whom, after a short residence in the Convent, have become strong and healthy.

For many years the Convent has been a private centre for the Oxford Local and Higher Local Examinations and a centre for the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music; the successes achieved by those of the pupils who have desired to be presented for the examinations are a convincing proof of the efficiency of the teaching they receive. In addition to a superior English Education a thorough knowledge of modern languages, with fluent conversation in the same, is assured; and if desired, pupils are prepared for the Higher Local and Honours Examination for Women in Modern Languages, by natives highly certificated. The Piano, Violin, and all accomplishments are taught after the best and most approved methods.

The railway station is within a short distance of the Convent.

References to parents of present and former pupils in England, Ireland, and the Continent.

The following is an extract from "The Tablet," written by Lady Georgiana Fullerton:

Of the merits of St Francis of Sales' daughters, whether as nuns or teachers, little need be said. In his day they were called by the common people "the Holy Maries," and the spirit bequeathed to them by their Founder and their first Mother, St Jane Frances de Chantal, has not departed from amongst them. . . . If parents want for their children bracing sea-air . . . joined to all the other advantages of a good convent school, they could not find them better supplied than at Roselands.

WESTMINSTER DIOCESAN EDUCATION FUND

The Fund was established by His Eminence CARDINAL MANNING in June, 1866, to promote the religious and secular education of the Catholic Poor Children in the Diocese of Westminster. The Fund is applicable to:

 The erection and the maintenance of Diocesan Certified Reformatory, Industrial, and Poor-Law Schools.

2. To providing religious Inspection for all the Schools in The

 To protecting the Faith of Catholic Children who are chargeable to the Poor Rates, or who come under the operation of the Reformatory and Industrial Schools Acts.

Certified for the reception of Poor-Law Children.—St. Mary's Orphanage, North Hyde; St. Charles's School, Brentwood; St. Mary's Orphanage, Walthamstow. Industrial School.—St. Nicholas's, Manor Park. Reformatory.—St. John's, Walthamstow.

The schools included in the above list, which are immediately dependent on the Archbishop, require continual assistance from the Diocesan Education Fund to meet the expenses of repairs, painting, renewal of furniture and bedding, extension and improvement of premises, etc., which cannot be provided out of the ordinary income of the schools.

The children in the Home Office Schools (i.e., Industrial and Reformatory) have a greater claim on our pity than mere poverty, for they have all suffered from parental neglect and bad company, and without help would certainly fall into the criminal classes. The training given in these schools is not only most necessary for them, but, in nine cases out of ten, has proved thoroughly successful.

Bankers: London and Westminster Bank, Victoria Street,

Auditors: Messrs. Herman Lescher, Stevens and Co., 6

Clements Lane, E.C.

Secretary and Treasurer: T. W. Hunter, Esq., M.A., Archbishop's House, Westminster, S.W., by whom the smallest contributions will be gratefully received and acknowledged.

I give to the Westminster Diocesan Education Fund the sum of £ free of legacy duty, to be applied under the direction, and to promote the objects, of the said Society, FORM OF as if the same formed part of the funds arising from BEQUEST. voluntary subscriptions, with liberty to apply such legacy as in aid of the said voluntary subscriptions; and I declare that the receipt of the Secretary of the said Society for the time being shall be a good discharge for the said legacy.

THE ROSARY CRUSADE

An Association for the Relief of the Holy Souls in Purgatory

THIS ASSOCIATION was called into permanent existence by a Brief of His Holiness, Pope Leo XIII, dated July 12, 1893. One of the First Acts of the present happily reigning Pontiff, Pius X, was to impart his Special Blessing and Approbation by another Decree in its favour on December 8, 1903. The Bishops of Plymouth, past and present, have fully Sanctioned its Erection in their Diocese.

Its object is to enrol Members as Crusaders, who will undertake to recite the FIFTEEN MYSTERIES of the ROSARY, within each week, for the benefit of the SUFFERING SOULS in PURGATORY, and to gain for them the many and great indulgences granted to the ROSARY CONFRATERNITY.

The annual subscription is one shilling. A Mass in Perpetuity is celebrated every Saturday at the Lady Altar in the Shrine of the Rosary Crusade for all living Associates. Two Masses are offered weekly at the Shrine for the Deceased Members, in addition to many other Masses celebrated each week for the Departed Associates.

For particulars of the Association, and for Enrolment as Members, application must be made to the Superior, Syon Abbey, Chudleigh, South Devon. This is the Only Centre of the Rosary Crusade for all Catholics throughout the world.

In connexion with the Crusade, a Magazine is published monthly, under the title of "The Poor Souls' Friend and St Joseph's Monitor." It is the Official Organ of the Association. The historical articles are brought out under the immediate supervision of the Rev. Dom Adam Hamilton, O.S.B. Articles on various topics are contributed by writers whose names are well known in current literature. Dom Hamilton's own works saw the light for the first time in the pages of "The Poor Souls' Friend."

The MAGAZINE costs ONLY 1/6 per annum, payable in advance. Specimen copies forwarded free on application.

ST JOSEPH'S AFRICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY, CORK

Founded under the Special Blessing of the Sovereign Pontiff and the Lord Bishop of Cork

THE SOCIETY OF AFRICAN MISSIONS comprises Priests, Brothers and Nuns. It was established at the earnest request and with the special benediction of the late Pope Pius IX of happy memory, and has for its end the education of missionaries for the "Dark Continent" of Africa.

The missionaries of this Society have laboured with much fruit for over forty years in many parts of Africa. The most abandoned and self-sacrificing missions get their preference, such, for instance, as the benighted idolators of Dahomey, Ashantee, Yoruba, Niger, and the Delta regions.

Two houses of the Society at present exist in Ireland, St Joseph's Apostolic College, Cork, and the Novitiate for the Sisters at Blackrock Road, also in the same City. The College is for the training of students in Classics, so as to enable them to enter the higher studies at the mother house in France. Young ladies who aspire to become Nuns in the Society receive the necessary training to equip them for their holy calling at the Blackrock establishment.

The essential qualifications for aspirants to the Apostolate are: (1) Clerical reference. (2) Sound constitution, free from hereditary disease. (3) Ability to acquire the necessary studies. (4) Being within the standard age, which is from 14 to 21 years.

The venerable Clergy and religious teachers of the Country are earnestly invited to extend their valuable co-operation, by recommending pious youths and maidens whom they deem worthy for such an inestimable vocation.

Every Christian who takes to heart the honour of God and the Salvation of immortal souls, will recognize the necessity of supporting such a meritorious work as evangelizing their outcast brethren in Africa. Those who cannot consecrate their lives to this end may partake of the labours and merits of the missioners by supplying material assistance towards the education of poor but deserving students and nuns for this Society. Our Holy Father Leo XIII has bestowed his Apostolic Benediction upon the College and upon all those who support it.

A sum of £500 is sufficient to educate perpetually a young missionary, and those who contribute towards the foundation of such a Burse will be remembered in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass twice every week in perpetuity. All contributions however small are gratefully received, as the expenses are great.

Aspirants to the Priesthood or Sisterhood of the Society are asked to communicate with the Very Rev. J. ZIMMERMAN, St Joseph's Apostolic College, Cork, who will gladly give every facility to worthy candidates.

FOUNDED 1859

Registered Office: 337 Harrow Road, London, W.

President: His Grace the Archbishop of Westminster Administrator: Rev. E. Bans
Secretary: William Tipper

Now Maintaining nearly 1,000 Children (Boys and Girls) in the Homes

FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED

A SUM of £15,000 per annum is required to provide for the children in the Homes and to carry on the work successfully.

There is no assured income of any kind. The work is entirely dependent upon the contributions of the charitable.

In a Brief dated 17th February, 1906, His Holiness Pius X. says:—"To each Member of the Society, and to all who will support its most excellent work, We, in testimony of Our goodwill and as a token of Heavenly favours, most lovingly grant Our Apostolic Benediction."

All donations will be gratefully acknowledged by the Rev. E. Bans, 337 Harrow Road, London, W.

The Vaughan Homes

St Anthony's House, Church Street, Lower Edmonton, London N.

Hon. Treasurer & Director: B.INNES-BROWNE, D.R. Assisted by a Finance Committee

BLESSED BY POPE PIUS X

THE HOMES AND THEIR WORK

ANY will ask, What are the Vaughan Homes? To be as brief as possible, they are an effort to rescue lads of over 14 years of age from the streets and slums of our many big cities and to bring them up in the Catholic Faith under the influence of a real Catholic family life. We try to give our lads all that is conveyed in the words Home, Family, Father and Mother. The Homes are dedicated to the memory of our late dearly beloved Cardinal Vaughan.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED

TO enable the Homes to carry on their good work more funds are urgently needed. Try and brighten the lot of the Homeless and Starving, comfort them with your support, and if you cannot do this pray for them. Send your mite to-day and address it to Mr B. INNES-BROWNE, St Anthony's House, Church Street, Lower Edmonton, London, N.

St GREGORY'S READING UNION

Patron:

His Grace the Archbishop of Westminster

THE object of StGregory's Reading Union is to promote among Catholic ladies a fuller knowledge of Catholic doctrine, and of the science of teaching as applied thereto, with a view particularlyto enabling lay Catechists to assist the clergy in the religious instruction of the young. Catholic women only are admitted as members. The Meetings of the Union are held at the Convent of the Assumption, Kensington Square, at 5 o'clock, at intervals of about a fortnight, when Lectures are given by various Priests on Catholic Doctrine and Catechetics. There is an adjournment during the summer months. At the beginning of each Course of Lectures, a text-book is given out for members to study. Each member is allowed to bring one Catholic lady to each of the Meetings; but the same lady must not be brought more than once.

The Lecturers are all paid. The Annual Subscription is 5s. Subscriptions should be sent to the Hon. Secretary, Miss Elliot Ranken, 6 Earl's Court Gardens, S.W., who will be happy to furnish any further information.

ST CECILIA'S HOUSE

531 Commercial Road, London, E.

THIS house has been established for ladies wishing to work among the poor in the East of London, and who are willing to reside here permanently or for a few weeks or months at a time to carry on various works of charity under the direction of the Clergy of this Mission. The work undertaken is District Visiting, Instruction for the Sacraments, Mothers' Meetings, Boys' Guilds and Girls' Clubs and Classes, Dinners for underfed Children.

Ladies wishing to reside or help on the work from the outside, or anyone wishing to help with gifts of money, clothes, books, etc., which are much needed, being one of the largest and poorest Catholic parishes in London, can apply to Lady Edmund Talbot, St Cecilia's House, 531 Commercial Road, London, E.

The Yorkshire Brethren Infirm Secular Clergy Fund

President: Very Rev. Canon Collingwood, St. Patrick's, York Road, Leeds

Treasurer: Very Rev. Canon Glover, High Bank, Bentham, Yorks Secretary: Rev. F. G. Wood, Rudding Park, Knaresbro'

THE dioceses of Leeds and Middlesbrough have one common Fund (The Yorks Brethren Fund) for the support of the Secular Clergy, who are Members of the Fund, and who through infirmity of age or sickness, are incapable of performing missionary duties.

Any person may become a benefactor of the Fund by a donation of fro, for which forty masses will be said; or by a donation of for which twenty masses will be said; or by a smaller donation for which a proportionate number of masses will be said, and which will entitle the Benefactor to share in the monthly masses for ever.

Every priest who is a Member of the Fund, offers the Holy Sacrifice once in each month for all Benefactors living and dead. The number of monthly masses at present offered for all Benefactors is 196.

Shrewsbury Secular Clergy Fund

THIS Fund has been established for the support of the infirm and superannuated Clergy of the diocese of Shrewsbury, and hence it commends itself to the charity of the Catholic public. In return, Mass is said monthly by each of the clergy who are members of the Fund for the benefactors both living and dead. Any person may become a benefactor by a donation of £10, for which forty special Masses will be said: or by a donation of £5, for which twenty special Masses will be said; or by a smaller contribution (not less, however, than £1), which will entitle the donor to share in the monthly Masses for ever. The special Masses will be said at once, or deferred until the death of the donor, as he or she may direct.

Other particulars may be had by application to the Treasurer, Rev. C. Giles, Salter's Hall, Newport, Salop; or to the Secretary, Rev. J. H. Roche, Latchford, Warrington.

Sequeatly to the Rev. Chichele Giles, of Newport, Salop, Treasurer of

I be the Society called the "Shrewsbury Secular Clergy Fund," or to the Treasurer of the same for the time being, the sum of £, free of legacy duty, for the benefit of that Fund; and I earnestly hope that the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass will be offered for the repose of my soul; but I do declare that this expression of my hope shall not be construed as a condition or trust attached to the same legacy; and that the compliance with this my hope shall not be deemed necessary to give effect to the same Legacy.

ST JOSEPH'S Hospice for the Dying

Under the care of the Irish Sisters of Charity MARE STREET, HACKNEY, LONDON, N.E.

THE Hospice, as its name bespeaks, is set apart for the dying, namely those within measurable distance of death, both male and female. Though mainly intended for the lonely poor, it is open to every class and country; and may therefore with strict justice solicit the kindly and liberal support of all.

Too many, unhappily, without being poor are friendless, and on account of their surroundings are in danger of dying without the Sacraments. The aged are sometimes childless, the young sometimes fatherless, the stranger generally solitary. Some, moreover, wish to prepare in peace for the great Tribunal Summons. By common consent of the Christian World the dying have a peculiar claim to help and sympathy. No one who understands what human sympathy is can be unaware of the tender care the dying need. The Hospice, which opened on January 15, 1905, is now furnished to accommodate 25 patients. Since then over 100 poor souls have passed into Eternity, and many others have returned to their homes having regained strength. This Institution owes its existence to the labours and prayers of the late Rev. Peter Galway, S. J., whose love for the dying, and especially the dying poor, is well known to all who lament his loss.

The Sisters visit the poor of Hackney, Hoxton and Walthamstow in their homes, also the Bethnal Green Infirmary, Bethnal Green Workhouse, Victoria Park Chest Hospital, St Leonard's Infirmary, Shoreditch, and St Luke's, Shepherdess Walk. Donations of boots, old clothing, or money will be gratefully received for any of the above-mentioned Charities.

Annual Subscriptions, no matter how small, are solicited for the support of the Hospice, which is without endowment, by

Little Sisters of the Assumption

NURSING SISTERS OF THE POOR

THE Little Sisters of the Assumption devote themselves exclusively to nursing gratuitously the sick poor in their own homes both day and night, whatever may be their religious belief. They take care of the home and of the children, and make themselves practically the servants of the poor and of their families, in order to win them to God.

They never accept any payment from their patients, not even their food; and the poorer the cases appealing to their charity, the more certain are they to have immediate attention. Although, when the case requires it, the patient is never left alone, the Sisters relieving each other, yet they never take up their abode in the houses of those they nurse, but always return to the Convent for meals and rest.

The Sisters also give religious instruction.

They have several houses abroad; two in New York. The mother house is in Paris.

The postulate for English and Irish subjects is at 133 Lancaster Road, Notting Hill.

Special Prayers and Communions are offered up by the community for all their Benefactors, and for the intentions recommended to them verbally or by letter; and they also ask their sick and poor to pray for them.

The Sisters, in returning grateful thanks to all their kind benefactors, continue to make an earnest appeal to their goodness and generosity; as going only to the poor, from whom they accept absolutely nothing, they have to depend entirely upon the aid of those who are charitable for their means of subsistence and of carrying on their beloved work.

Subscriptions and donations, also food and all kinds of clothing, will be most gratefully received by the Superioress, 14 Wellington Road, London, E.; 133 Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.; 1 Earl Street, Westminster, S.W.; and 7 Chapel Field Road, Norwich.

The Sisters of Charity of St Vincent of Paul

CARLISLE PLACE, VICTORIA ST, WESTMINSTER (Near the Victoria Station)

Under the patronage of the ARCHBISHOP OF WESTMINSTER

THE House of Charity contains the following works: an orphanage for girls over two years of age, work-room and a middle-class day school for girls; classes of preparation for first Communion, and catechetical instruction on Sundays for girls also; a night-school for men and boys; and the daily visiting and relieving of the poor and sick of the two parishes of Westminster, one of the most destitute parts of London.

As these works are supported by voluntary offerings, and the greater number of the children are entirely left on the Sisters' hands, they are compelled to appeal for help, that they may carry on their work.

Yearly subscriptions, however small their amount, would be gladly accepted, and can be remitted to the Sister Superioress, Carlisle-place, Victoria-street, Westminster.

Plain and fine needlework executed in the work-room; also embroidery and artificial flowers for churches.

A Soup Kitchen has been opened for the benefit of the poor of the two parishes, for which subscriptions in kind or money are most earnestly requested.

Saint Pelagia's Home for Destitute Girls

Administrators-Philip B. Abraham, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, 1 Stone Buildings, Lincoln's Inn; Mrs Bernard Lev, 6 Longridge Road, Earl's Court, S.W.

Managers-The Sisters Servants of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary. Bankers-London and County Bank, Kensington.

Hon. Treasurer-Philip B. Abraham.

These Homes, which are for the benefit and reformation of girls who have lost their character, are situated at 1 and 2 Church Row, Limehouse, E.: 25 Bickerton Road, Highgate, N.; 684 High Road, Tottenham; 654 Rotherhithe Street, S.E.

The Limehouse and Rotherhithe Branches are for girls who have been leading an irregular life or who have given way to drink. The Highgate Branch is for girls and their infants (first cases only). They can enter the Home free of charge when the child is only a fortnight old. The Tottenham Branch is for Housing and educating these little ones after the age of two years to the age of ten years.

All these Homes receive girls of this class without payment, but on condition that they contribute to the earning power of the Homes by working at the various laundries, the only exception being at Tottenham, where a small charge is made for the children, as they cannot work for themselves.

Subscriptions are much needed, and may be sent to the Hon, Sec., Mrs Bernard Ley, 6 Longridge Road, Earl's Court, S.W., from whom further information may be obtained.

Funds are urgently needed for extension of the Building, for want of which the work is greatly restricted. The Holy Sacrifice offered in perpetuity for benefactors. Subscriptions gratefully received by the Mother Superior, Letitia Mary O'Dyer. Rev. H. J. Delhaise, chaplain.

ST ANN'S HOME FOR PENITENTS PORTOBELLO ROAD, NORTH KENSINGTON

HIS Home is conducted by the Dominican Nuns of the Congregation of Our Lady of Grace. Their special aim is the rehabilitation of those under their care. Nothing is left undone to procure them a bright and happy home. Their future also is provided for, and a respectable position in society is assured them if merited by good conduct during their sojourn in the Home.

Women and Girls of all denominations are equally welcomed.

The penitents are employed in laundry and needlework.

Subscriptions and donations will be gratefully received, also clothing.

Prayers are daily offered for all benefactors.

For particulars, apply to the Rev. Mother Prioress.

Convent of the Good Shepherd

EAST FINCHLEY, N.

Subscriptions and donations are earnestly and humbly asked in aid of the 200 poor penitents, and also to help in the support of the 140 young girls of the Preventative Home. In return the grateful prayers of the Community and children are promised for all their benefactors.

Cheques may be made payable to the Mother Provincial, Ann Parrish or to the Mother Prioress, Francesca McArdle.

The account for the Convent stands in the names of Mesdames Parrish and McArdle, London and Westminster Bank, 1 St James's Square, S.W.

Convent of the Good Shepherd

Near the Broadway, Hammersmith, W.

THE Sisters of the Good Shepherd would be most grateful for any help towards the support of the 230 poor penitents and young girls under their care. Many of the kind friends who so generously helped them in the past, are now gone to receive from the Good Shepherd the reward of their charity. The Sisters pray that He may inspire others to replace them, and help to carry on the work of rescuing those so dear to His Sacred Heart. The Penitents try to support themselves by laundry and needlework, but some are too infirm and others too old to work much, so that their earnings are not sufficient to cover their expenses. The prayers of the Sisters and Penitents are daily offered for all benefactors.

Subscriptions and donations will be most thankfully received by the Mother Prioress, Teresa M. Petre.

Convent of the Good Shepherd

FORD, NEAR LIVERPOOL

Subscriptions and donations are earnestly and humbly asked for in aid of the poor Penitents (230 in number), and in return the grateful prayers of the Community and Penitents are promised for all their benefactors.

Cheques may be made payable to the Mother Prioress,

ADA M. GIBBONS.

Convent of the Good Shepherd

BLACKLEY, NEAR MANCHESTER

THE charitably inclined and those interested in rescue work are earnestly asked, for the love of Our Lord and St Mary Magdalene, to remember the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, Blackley, Manchester, who are sadly burdened by a heavy debt incurred in providing shelter for 230 poor, erring, but repentant girls and women, and who would be sincerely grateful for any help either in money or kind.

Cheques payable to Mother Prioress, JANE M. THORNTON.

To Convert the Welsh

- (a) Priests must learn the language.
- (b) Priests must build Churches.
- (c) Priests must work hard.

Not an easy a b c to "the long-remembered beggar."

ERE in BANGOR a NEW CHURCH is needed, because the present one is TOO SMALL, TOO OLD for repair, TOO CONFINED for extension; and Who's Who who won't give? The Vernacular is Welsh; even the Catholics speak it; and the Bishop is looking for Welsh-speaking priests.

As I write, a mission to Catholics is a great success; a mission to non-Catholics was, and will be (in Lent), a huge success, numbers being unable to enter. Welsh sermons are a great success. But we want room: and Three Guineas from every Catholic Who's Who would find it; and would fittingly celebrate their having been brought together for the first time in these pages.

Best thanks in advance. Remittances will be acknowledged: and may be made to His Lordship the Bishop (Right Rev. F. Mostyn, D.D.), Wrexham; or to Rev. W. F. FINUCANE, Church of our Lady of the Immaculate Conception, Bangor, N. Wales.

NEW GUIDE TO THE HOLY LAND

With 25 Coloured Maps, and 110 Plans of Towns and Monuments

By

FATHER BARNABAS MEISTERMANN

O.F.M. (Missionary Apostolic)

Translated from the French Edition by the order and sanction of

THE MOST REV. FATHER CUSTODIAN OF THE HOLY LAND

With a Preface by

THE BISHOP OF SALFORD

The Price is 7s. 6d. net
(Postage 4d.)

In this work the author puts before the reader what is at present known of the Biblical places, showing, as the case may be, what is certain, probable, or seeming to be true. The student of Biblical questions, the historian, the archæologist, will find herein solid nourishment for the mind and the heart; the priest will find in it the elucidation of many Biblical mysteries; the pious Christian, who is not privileged to visit the theatre of the Divine manifestations, will be recompensed by a spiritual pilgrimage, and, by the sight of the different localities, be instructed in mind and consoled in heart; whilst the former pilgrim will find in it an agreeable and useful memorial of his past impressions.

"Father Meistermann's book fully justifies the praises bestowed on it as an admirably arranged, compendious, convenient and learned guide-book to the Holy Land."—Scotsman.

To be obtained from the Very Rev. Fr Francis, O.F.M., Gorton, Manchester or from Burns & Oates, 28 Orchard St, London, W., and all Catholic Booksellers.

With Portraits & other Illustrations, 6s.

SISTER MARY OF THE DIVINE HEART

DROSTE ZU VISCHERING

Religious of the Good Shepherd, 1863-1899

By the ABBÉ LOUIS CHASLE. Translated from the Second French Edition by a Member of the Order.

IS Eminence Cardinal Merry del Val, in a letter to

1 the author, says:

"The Sovereign Pontiff, who is most desirous that the devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus should everywhere increase, has been much pleased by the publication of the holy life of Sister Mary Droste zu Vischering, and by your presentation of it to him. At a time when so many periodicals and books filled with heretical teachings are circulated, and are spread abroad on all sides, it is a consolation to find the life of this virgin published, presenting as it does to Christian souls the most salutary examples of charity. It was, in fact, practically through the intervention of Mary Droste zu Vischering that this twentieth century opened under the happy auspices of the Sacred Heart.

"This is one of the most attractive and most important spiritual biographies published for many years."—Irish Monthly.

"A book to be read by all lovers of the Sacred Heart."- Catholic Times.

"The story of her life is a record of extraordinary piety, and cannot fail to prove instructing and edifying to all Catholic readers."—Catholic Herald.

"An epoch-making book, destined to mark a new stage in the history of devotion to the Sacred Heart."—Catholic Weekly.

"One of the most attractive and edifying religious biographies that it has been our good fortune to read for many months."— Universe.

By JOHN GERARD, S.J., F.L.S.

An inquiry how far Modern Science has altered the aspect of the Problem of the Universe

FOURTH EDITION, CROWN 8vo, 2s. 6d. NET

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

"IF there are really any reasoning beings who maintain that Science, even with the biggest of initial capitals, 'explains everything,' this book ought to convince them that they are wrong."

—Morning Post.

"Appearing as it does at a time when so energetic an effort is being made to popularize the other side of the question, a reply so temperate, clear and well-informed deserves a respectful hearing, and is, one would say, sure of it."—Scotsman.

"Father Gerard carries the war into the enemy's camp, and once there, makes havoc of the defences."—Sheffield Telegraph.

"Father Gerard misrepresents none of his opponents; garbles no quotations; never mistakes satire for argument; never indulges in abuse; quotes numerous modern and trustworthy authorities; and has therefore produced a book singularly unlike most other members of its class.—Academy.

"We regard this as an ideal volume to put in the hands of anyone who is in danger of rationalism, and who will here find means of defence without appeal to any sort of authority."—Nottingham Daily Guardian.

"This book exhibits the qualities which we may expect in any production of its author. It is acute, powerfully reasoned, and characterized by a uniform courtesy and moderation of tone.—

Speciator.

"For the book as a whole we have the warmest admiration."— Church Times.

"The author is familiar with recent scientific research, and is not one of those who cannot see the wood for the trees."—London Quarterly Review.

CATHOLIC HYMNS

Original and Translated. With accompanying Tunes.

Edited by A. EDMONDS TOZER, Mus.D., Oxon, 240 pages. Cloth bound, gilt lettered, red edges. Price 3s. (complete). Words only. Paper Covers, 6d. Cloth bound, gilt lettered, red edges, Is.

Contains a large collection of Hymns for all the Seasons and Feasts of the Year, Confraternities, etc.; also a Children's Mass. The best of all the old traditional tunes are included, also new ones by Musicians of the highest eminence. These only require to be known to become great favourites. (See Reviews).

HIS work, the outcome of many years' experience and thought, after consultation with priests and others interested in the subject, is issued with the sanction of the highest ecclesiastical authority, and is suitable to the needs of any Catholic mission, large or small.

The hymns are arranged in order, according to the (hurch's year; and an endeayour has been made to include as great a variety for the different seasons and your has been include as great a variety for the different seasons and teasts as possible. As a special feature, particular attention is drawn to the number of hymns allotted to Christmastide and Epiphany. Lent and Passiontide, Corpus Christi and the Blessed Sacrament, the feasts of Our Lady and the Month of May, the Sacred Heart of Jesus, All Saints and the Holy Souls, Missions and Retreats, General Hymns and Evening Hymns; besides those set apart in honour of certain specified saints, or for use at the devotions of the confraternities of the Holy Family, the Holy Rosary, the Apostleship of Prayer, and the Bona Mors. In addition to this, a series of simple hymns and tunes appropriate to a children's mass has been included. mass has been included.

The best of those old tunes, which have become by long tradition associated with certain hymns, will be found in the book, together with a large number of new compositions, written expressly for the Editor by musicians of the highest eminence.

Extracts from Opinions of the Press

MOST admirable collection of words and music, which will, we hope, do

A much to counteract the many bad influences of that once much too popular work, 'The Crown of Jesus Hymnal.' We can only stop to point out the great beauty of the Christmas Hymns; seldom have we seen finer Noel-tide music anywhere."—The Organist and Choirmaster.

"What is wanted is one general hymn-hook, so that members of one congregation will not feel altogether strangers if they happen to be present at the hymnsinging in another Church. The hymn-book best suited for this is, in our opinion, the new before we The hymn-surgery, the trues for the hymn-surgery. the one before us. The hymns are numerous, the tunes for the hymns are numerous, and all in one compact, convenient volume. Most acceptable should it prove to Missions, Convents, or Institutions, containing, as it does, all the well-known tunes, together with new tunes by acknowledged good composers."-Faith of our Fathers.

"A book suitable to the needs of any Catholic mission, large or small. The hymns are arranged in order according to the Church's year, and attention may be drawn to the number of hymns allotted to Christmas-tide and Epiphany, Lent and Passiontide, Corpus Christi and the Blessed Sacrament. In addition, simple and appropriate hymns are included for children."—Sydney Daily Telegraph.

"The Love of Jesus"

Or Visits to the Blessed Sacrament for every Day of the Month

By The Right REV. MONSIGNOR GILBERT

PORTY-SIX THOUSAND COPIES of this work have been published in England, and Ten Editions in the United States. It has been translated into French, German, Italian, and Portuguese. When first published it was received with a chorus of approval and welcome by the Press, both Catholic and Protestant. The following are extracts from reviews: "It is an eloquent book. It speaks to the soul and discovers an acquaintance with man's heart, its sorrows and its joys, hopes and fears, which can only have been gained by one who has sounded the depths of his own nature by the aid of the Divine Spirit." "It is full of pious thoughts and holy aspirations with meditative reflections of great beauty. . . . A very commendable volume." "A most charming book. We have seen many books of Visits, but never one which has pleased us so much. When this book is known, it is sure to be appreciated and loved." Time and the public have abundantly proved the truth of these extracts.

SIR R. M. HENSLEY presided, on Saturday, at the Meeting of the Metropolitan Asylums Board, at the Offices, Victoria Embankment.

The Hospitals Committee reported that they had considered reports of the engineer to the Board upon the results of the experimental heating of block G of the Gore Farm Hospital by a new method. The engineer to the Board was not yet in a position to make an exact test of the working of this new system, but, as the result of a rough test which he had made, he stated that the saving of fuel showed upwards of 50 per cent, whilst the labour entailed was so slight "that if the whole of the hospital were heated under similar conditions, instead of having twelve porters to attend to the coaling arrangements, three would be ample under the new conditions." The cost of installing this new system in block G has been £243 5s. and the work was carried out by Messrs Dilworth and CARR, Heating Engineers, of WEEDY LAWNS, TENNIS COURTS, BOWLING GREENS, &c.

TRANSFORMED into a beautiful sward of rich coloured close growing grass, free from moss, daisies, plaintains and other surface rooting weeds by "CLIMAX" lawn sand. This remarkable preparation adheres to the rough hairy leaves of the weeds, and by absorbing therefrom all the sap destroys them beyond recovery, but falling to the roots of the grass it acts as a valuable fertilizer, forcing it into active growth.

The most weedy and impoverished lawn will show a remarkable improvement after a single application. 28 lbs.

Edited by Mr WILFRID WARD

Published Quarterly. Single Copy, 5s. 6d. net

The Athenæum says:

THE DUBLIN REVIEW, under Mr Wilfrid Ward's editorship, reaches a high level of interest, and should be welcome to all cultivated people."

The Tablet says:

"We associate ourselves with English-speaking Catholics everywhere in offering a welcome to The Dublin in all its revived intellectual activities. Of its outer form it is sufficient to say that in its green—its still green—old age, it is without any equal of its class in the open competition of the world's markets, both as to its generous size and the considered beauty of its typography."

The Westminster Gazette says:

"We wish Mr Wilfrid Ward all success in a venture which, to his father's son, must, we may be sure, have special attractions. The world has moved since the 'sixties, and the Church has found that if that movement brought with it new dangers to faith it has also disclosed unexpected sources of safety."

3. A Cloud of Modern Witnesses. Illustrated. "This volume is a kind of Anthology intended to show indirectly the mind of the Church regarding Animals, by illustrating. the spirit of the Saints, its most authentic exponents, in their relations with the lower creatures of God. It will end for ever the era under which it has been possible to accuse Catholics of callousness to the sufferings of the dumb creation, and the blessing which Pius X has bestowed upon it during its passage through the Press will perpetuate and confirm the work that it is destined to accomplish. For from its first page to its last it is the Church's authentic blessing on the beast."-Tablet.

RELIGIOUS WORSHIP

And some Defects in Popular Devotions. By Mgr BONOMELLI, BISHOP OF CREMONA. With the Author's Portrait. 2s. 6d. net (postage 3d.)

THE Bishop of Cremona, in his letter to the Translator, says "Only by the slow work of religious instruction will it become possible to correct, readjust and destroy what is excessive, wrong, senseless and puerile in certain forms of popular devotions. But the doctrine of the Church, let us own is reasonable, beautiful and noble; and I think, if it is represented to them as I now represent it, cannot prove displeasing even to our brethren who are not Catholics.

"I rejoice then that you should become the interpreter of a Catholic and Italian Bishop to your fellow countrymen in order that certain difficulties may be removed from their minds which now keep them separated from the Church of Rome."
